MEXICO WELCOME BOOSTS JOHNSON

Lady Bird Stays Behind For Swinging Party; Sees Agriculture Study Unit

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — President Johnson's trip to Mexico city — his first visit to a foreign capital — may have produced little in the way of measurable results. But it has done much for the President.

Johnson, eager to visit Latin America for many months, had been told by some advisers that such a trip would be unwise. That advice followed American intervention in the Dominican Republic a year ago.

Now the President has stepped across the southern border. And all portents stemming from the 24-hour trip he concluded yesterday turned out favorable. (See picture, Page 2.)

In fact, Johnson said he couldn't recall a warmer welcome anywhere in the world, and he saw some pretty big ones as vice president.

In Mexico City, a heavy security guard was out today as Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, who remained behind in Mexico, led a 20-car motorcade 30 miles into the countryside to visit Mexico's National Center for Agricultural Education Research and Extension at Chapingo which has benifited from U.S. aid funds.

A motorcycle police escort led the way and two helicopters hovered overhead along the entire route.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk came along to view the center at Chapingo, a Mexican showcase.

Last night, Mrs. Johnson gave a swinging party for Mexico's first lady and everybody showed up—even Barry Goldwater.

The former Arizona senator who was the Republican presidential contender for her husband's job, and his wife, were most cordial and delayed his appearance at a dinner to spend a gay time at the American Embassy residence where Mrs. Johnson tossed her whing-ding.

For the first lady it was a "thank you" reception for Senora Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, wife of the president of Mexico, who had entertained the Johnson family royally on its visit to Mexico.

The President's wife sat beside her Mexican counterpart in the beautiful drawing room when Ambassador Fulton Freeman played the bass fiddle, Powhatan Baber, the embassy counselor played the clarinet and Norris Clement of Sacramento, a Fulbright scholar, put on a combo performance of "September Song" and "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered."

There were shouts of "bravo" when they finished.

Without question, Johnson was encouraged — a mild word — by the hundreds of thousands of Mexicans who turned out to greet him Thursday and forced a 9¼-mile motorcade to a 2½-hour pace. Some local police officials estimated the crowd at

Bandits Terrorize Laundry Patron, Hit Candy Store

A Fairfax woman and a San Rafael candy store clerk were the victims of two robberies within four hours last night.

In one, a pair of turbaned men terrorized a woman in a coin-operated laundry. Four hours before that, a neatly dressed young man with a chrome-plated automatic pistol held up See's Candy store, 921 Fourth Street, taking about $100.

Carol C. Ballard, 26, of 1780 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, told police she was doing her laundry in the Fair-Anselm Shopping Center about 11:30 p.m.

She said two men with towels around their heads like turbans walked into the laundry when she was alone. One had his face covered with a cloth.

One man was more than six feet tall, she said. The other was about 5 feet, 5 inches.

"Do you want to get killed?" the tall one asked her. When she said, "no," he asked, "Do you want to get hurt?" She said, "no," again and the man asked if there was a side room somewhere. Miss Ballard indicated the woman's restroom, and headed for it.

The man came toward her, she told Fairfax police, and she ran inside and locked the door from the inside.

After waiting several minutes, she looked outside, she said, and saw the pair leave in her auto. Gone from the room was her purse, containing $41, papers and car keys. The auto was found parked on Bell Avenue about a half block away, but the purse was gone, and so were the keys.

In the earlier robbery, at 7:33 p.m., clerk Jeanetta G. Long of 742 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, told police the man stood in the store several minutes, chatting, before he pulled the gun on herself and another clerk, Katheryn Tower of 25 Octavia Street, San Rafael.

The robber said, "Which one of you first?" Mrs. Long said. She asked if he wanted the store's money.

"Certainly I want the money," he replied. She handed over all the cash in the register. "Don't make a move. Don't make a sign," the man ordered as he walked out the door and headed east on Fourth Street.

The man was described as being in his early 20s, with a dark red sweater, dark trousers, and a white shirt with a black tie. He had a swarthy complexion and was neatly dressed.

Buddhists Rally; Viet Editor Shot

SAIGON (UPI) —Anti-government feeling increased today in Da Nang where 2,500 Buddhist demonstrators burned the government decree promising free elections. In Saigon, there was growing belief the Viet Cong was blamed for an attempted political assassination.

Chu Van Binh, editor and publisher of the Socialist-leaning independent newspaper Song, was shot and critically wounded today in Saigon en route to his office where he had written editorials criticizing anti-government demonstrators as "hooligans."

"It was a natural for the Viet Cong," a high-ranking Vietnamese police official said. "the Viet Cong had two reasons for striking—they could get rid of a nationalist and at the same time keep the situation agitated."

Employees of the 47-year-old Binh also blamed the shooting on the Viet Cong. He was shot four times with a 45-caliber automatic by two youths who drove up on a motorbike when he left his home.

The defiant demonstrators in Da Nang made it clear they will continue their fight against Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government despite the Buddhist church's agreement to accept it as a caretaker regime

Cranston Tells Marin Tax Hike Likely Later

By WAT TAKESHITA

"There will not have to be a state tax increase this year," State Controller Alan Cranston declared last night at a kickoff dinner for this year's Democratic campaign at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael.

A disappointing crowd of about 60 appeared at the $12.50 per plate dinner to hear Cranston and meet other candidates for both partisan and non-partisan offices.

Albert Gately of Fairfax, who presided, predicted that Cranston—once a track star at Stanford University—would run away with the race in his bid for re-election as state controller.

Cranston explained that the new accrual system of accounting which the Brown administration is using will preclude a tax increase this year. "But," he added, "there is no equivocation with the fact that there will have to be a tax increase next year" if the state is to offer its citizens all the services they expect.

Cranston warned against extremism of both the right and the left. "The right wingers and the Birch Society have picked California as the principal target to see how far they can go." He warned that if Ronald Reagan should succeed in California, the right wingers will attempt a nationwide takeover.

Cranston declared that extremists dwell on the idea that a conspiracy, either Communist or Fascist, is taking over the country. "To extremists, the end justifies all means; that's when bigotry enters."

Cranston predicted victory for all Democratic incumbents including Gov. Edmund G. Brown, but warned that these Democratic candidates must get full support if the extremists are to be turned back.

Cranston predicted that Rea-

Marin's Hot Brows Await Cooling Fog

The heat wave which sent the mercury bubbling into the 80's and 90's in Marin County yesterday and today will soon feel the cooling effects of fog rolling in from the ocean, forecasters predicted today.

The weather bureau promised the summer-style fog will drop down along the cost tomorrow and end the county's mid-April hot spell.

The almost breezeless heat yesterday gave many parts of Marin its hottest day so far this year. Among the county's warmest spots was San Anselmo, where it reached 92 degrees. Highest temperature reading in San Rafael was only two degrees cooler.

Woodacre, traditionally the county's hot-spell record setter, enjoyed a "cool" 89 degrees while Novato basked in 86 degrees and Sausalito and Fairfax thermometers hit a high of 85. In Belvedere, it hit 84 degrees, while at Inverness the high was 80.

At least one victim of the heat wave was reported. Edward C. Prescott, 78, of 400 Canal Street, San Rafael, fainted, according to San Rafael firemen. He was not hospitalized.

Critics Busy As Governor Begins Tube

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown manned the controls of a floating dredge midway between here and Oakland yesterday to start construction of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's transbay tube, scheduled to be the world's largest.

Brown scooped out a load of bay mud to start the three-year job of building the $89.8 million, 3.6 mile-long tube.

Two boatloads of pickets zigzagged around the dredge after Brown left. The pickets, three in each boat, carried signs reading "End Discrimination on BART jobs" and "Fair Prices for Our Homes."

The pickets were not alone in protesting the ceremonies. Oakland Vice Mayor Fred Maggiora refused to attend a luncheon following the event.

He said his attendance would be "a great discourtesy to both Alameda and Contra Costa Counties who are paying the majority of the BART taxes when they were not recognized at the ceremonies on the barge with the Governor."

Salmon Fishing Fleet Still Idle

A disagreement over a price difference of three cents per pound for large salmon kept about 150 salmon boats in Sausalito harbors for the second day today.

The salmon season opened yesterday, and dealers and the Salmon Trollers Assn. had agreed in negotiations on prices of 40 cents per pound for salmon under eight pounds and 50 cents per pound for salmon between eight and 12 pounds. But the boats stayed in the harbor today for the second day as the association asked 65 cents per pound for salmon over 12 pounds, and the dealers offered 62 cents.

Cass Gidley, a Sausalito fish dealer who operates Casserino's, predicted no negotiations will come until Monday.

Everybody's Unhappy About Russ Fishermen Off Coast

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— Californians, from Gov. Edmund G. Brown, down to the dockside bait boy, are anxiously trying to devise a "salt water curtain" to protect their fertile fishing grounds from the roving Russians.

They all agree the task is virtually impossible unless the United States negotiates a fishing treaty with the Soviet Union. And there's no indication this is going to happen.

"About the only other thing we can do is to talk to them as friends and ask them not to take away our fish," a state Fish and Game Commission spokesman conceded.

Concern over the possibility of the huge Russian fishing fleet sailing south after it finishes with waters off Newport, Ore., was the cause of much high-level discussion yesterday.

One of Brown's chief aides said the governor was "seriously considering" calling concerned parties into a strategy huddle soon to discuss the potential threat to California's $300 million per year offshore fishery.

The conference would be held in Sacramento just prior to April 27. On that date Brown plans to go to Washington, D.C., to find out if anything can be done to control the modern Soviet ships.

"The governor is exploring every possible approach and is anxious to convey the serious concern of the California commercial and sport fishing industry to the proper people in Washington," said Frank M. Mesple, his legislative secretary.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Vincent Thomas met with commercial fishermen in San Pedro. The Democrat, long a spokesman for fishing interests in the Legislature, said he planned to introduce a resolution in the Assembly asking the four-state Pacific Marine Fisheries Commission to study the potential threat of Russian vessels.

"There's no question they present a danger," he said. "They could take our anchovies or hake or whatever else there is down here."

Assemblywoman Pauline L. Davis, D-Portola, chairman of the influential Assembly Con-

Rhodesia Cuts More Links With London

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) —Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith today ordered the British diplomatic mission in Salisbury closed and recalled Rhodesian diplomats from London because of Britain's "despicable and cowardly" resort to force in its embargo on oil shipments to the breakaway nation.

Smith, in a broadcast to the nation, also said he would not use the 18,000 tons of oil brought to Beira, Mozambique, by the tanker Ioanna V because he did not want to involve other nations in Rhodesia's dispute with Britain.

Smith said he ordered the mission closed because of "a plague of broken promises and distortions of the truth" by the British and the discovery of acts of espionage by high ranking officers in the British mission.

Smith said British Prime Minister Harold Wilson was on record as promising that he would never use force against Rhodesia, that Britain would not blockage Mozambique ports and that the British would not go to the United Nations over its dispute with Rhodesia.

"Over the past week Mr. Wilson has broken all three of these solemn pledges," Smith said. "We believe that two wrongs never make a right."

Mortars Hit Marines, But Reds Routed; Planes Bomb 42 Trucks

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON—U.S. Marines routed Communist attackers in a hand-to-hand battle 375 miles north of Saigon today despite one of the most massive Red mortar barrages of the Vietnamese war.

The Marines killed at least 12 Communists and captured eight weapons — grenade launchers, submachine guns and carbines —and almost 100 hand grenades.

The Reds are believed to have dragged away some of their dead, but the Marines found 12 Communist bodies on he battlefield.

Marine casualties were "moderate." Many of the Marine wounded — apparently men slightly hurt by mortar fragments—returned to duty after treatment.

The Communists opened their pre-dawn attack on a company of the Ninth Marine regiment with what a Marine veteran of World War II and Korea said was "the most intensive mortar barrage I've ever seen."

The Reds opened up with submachine guns, 57 m.m. recoilless rifles and hand grenades.

The Marines replied with rifles and artillery. Then they rose and charged the Communists in a hand-to-hand attack which routed the Reds.

U. S. Air Force fighter bombers caught several North Vietnamese convoys in the open and destroyed 42 trucks, a record number in the 14-months long war against Communist supply lines, an Air Force spokesman said today.

Twenty of the vehicles were caught in the Mu Gia Pass, clogged by landslides in last Tuesday's B52 raids.

The others were hit on alternate routes the North Vietnamese have been trying to use to reach the Ho Chi Minh Trail leading south through Laos and Cambodia. The alternates are mostly trails with none of the advantages of Highway 15, now described as in a state of chaos around the area of the mountain pass.

The raids yesterday by Air Force and Navy carrier bombers totaled 49 strikes against the north.

Thunderchiefs peeled off from the assault on the Mu Gia Pass convoy to destroy a highway bridge at Dong Ca Thom, not far from the pass and about 60 miles north of the 17th Parallel border. Eight miles south of there a truck park was struck three times.

Navy planes from the carriers Kitty Hawk and Ticonderoga hit 40 targets on 29 missions, destroying 10 junks and a barge 34 miles southwest of Thanh Hoa and two more cargo junks 29 miles north of Vinh.

U.S. forces in Saigon frustrated a Communist raid on Tan Son Nhut airbase, where seven Americans and a Vietnamese were killed in a Red sneak attack Wednesday.

Red raiders crept 500 yards into the base's outer defenses before they were detected and stopped in their tracks.

Helicopter gunships and attack planes pounded the area of the guerrilla penetration with the aid of flares that illuminated the surrounding rice paddies.

The airbase, whose installations include South Vietnamese air force headquarters and the residence of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, went on alert. Battle-ready U.S. troops stood by until the aircraft signaled an all-clear at 4 a.m.

A Communist raiding party attacked a hamlet 10 miles south-southeast of Saigon today. The Reds retreated when South Vietnamese troops reached the scene.

Russ Plan Lunar Animal Voyages

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists plan to send animals into orbit around the moon to test conditions for men.

But many experimental launchings are still needed before human moon travel is possible, the president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, Mstislav Keldysh, said today in discussing results of Luna 10, the Soviet Sputnik now orbiting the moon.

Keldysh indicated that the Russians will try the rendezvous and linkup techniques recently developed by U.S. astronauts.

Garage Blaze In Novato Home

Fire, starting near a gas heater, did $1,100 damage in the garage at the home of Robert Osher, 160 Shevelin Road, Novato, about 12:25 p.m. yesterday, while the owner and his wife were at work.

Firemen said there was minor smoke damage throughout the house. A neighbor watering his garden noticed flames coming from vents beneath the eaves of the garage, and called firemen. Another neighbor, a high school student, went into the house and saved the family dog.

Cause of the fire was still under investigation today, but fireman said there was extensive damage to wiring in the garage, although none of the circuit breakers tripped.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Envoy Wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A burglar shot and wounded Jordanian Ambassador Midhat Jumaa today and stole $230 and Mrs. Jumaa's jewels, police reported. Jumaa underwent an emergency operation at the American University Hospital to remove a bullet from his chest.

Italian Trains Crash

PONTREMOLI, Italy (AP)—Twenty-eight persons were injured last night when a passenger train crashed into a derailed freight car in a tunnel near Pontremoli.

Cuba Visitors Freed

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge has dismissed charges against three college students accused of organizing a Cuban trip despite a State Department order against it. Congress had not granted the State Department jurisdiction in such cases, Judge Joseph Zavatt said. The defendants were Lee Levi Laub, 27, Stefan Martinot, 26, and Anatole Schlosser, 28, all of New York.

Judge Promoted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Myron D. Crocker, Fresno, has been named chief judge of the new Eastern California Federal Court District scheduled to begin operation here in September. Crocker's appointment followed a meeting of the three judges in the new district. The others were Sherrill Halbert and Thomas J. MacBride, both of Sacramento.

Road Work Ordered

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Public Works today awarded a $3,638,989 contract to Dan Caputo Co., Bragato Paving Co. and Bellshore Corp., Belmont, for construction of interchanges on U.S. 101 at College Avenue and 3rd, 4th and 5th streets and an undercrossing at 9th Street in Santa Rosa.

Brown Asks Milk

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Proposed cuts in federal support for the school milk and lunch programs would "mean an increase of five cents per school lunch in California," Gov. Edmund G. Brown said yesterday. He urged Congress to reject President Johnson's plan to cut the budget for the programs.

Airline Hires Negro Stewardess For First Time

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A 19-year-old San Jose girl has been hired as the first Negro stewardess for Pacific Southwest Airlines, the largest intrastate air carrier in California.

The girl, Cindy McCullough, will enter a two-week training course May 1, William Bennett of Kentfield, a state public utilities commissioner, announced yesterday.

Bennett said PSA agreed to hire a Negro after a private conference several months ago between airline officials, the State Fair Employment Practices Commission and himself.

"We didn't charge that the airline was guilty of discrimination," he said, "but every other major airline has had Negro stewardesses for some time."

An airline spokesman said Miss McCullough was hired several weeks ago and added that all applicants were screened without regard for race.

Bennett described the move as "token integration." He said not enough of PSA's 102 stewardesses are Negroes.

Pasadena Revenge Riot Quelled

PASADENA (UPI)—A mob of 75 to 100 Negroes in this Los Angeles suburb attacked police early today with rocks, bottles and a fire bomb, apparently in retaliation for the wounding of a burglary suspect by an officer.

Approximately 10 persons were taken into custody before order was restored about two hours later, but no one was seriously injured, police said.

Police said the attacking mob yelled at officers, "We're paying you back for Willie."

Officers said this was a reference to Willie Gates, a burglary suspect, who was wounded by a police officer early Thursday as he fled from an apparent burglary attempt at a market.

Officer Jerry Gardner was struck in the face and felled by a bottle. He was later treated for a nose injury.

Police said that during the melee a Molotov cocktail was tossed over a fence into a group of officers. Although it exploded and burned, no one was injured, police said.

U. S. Buys Surplus Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. sold a German firm 7,562 bombs as junk for $12,736 two years ago and now, in wartime, is buying back 5,570 of them for $114,500, it was learned today.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara disclosed the repurchase during a press conference to answer charges by House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford that the war has been shockingly mismanaged and hampered by a bomb shortage.

McNamara denied this, pointing to increasing tonnages of explosives being dropped against the Communists in the Southeast Asian country.

Then the defense chief mentioned that the United States was buying back 750-pound bombs from a German firm that bought them in 1964 for fertilizer purposes. The nitrates of bombs are plant nutrients

Red China Blasts Indonesians

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Red China today angrily denounced the sacking of its Jakarta embassy and likened the 2,000 Indonesian Chinese rioters to "Hitlerite hordes."

China handed a protest note to Indonesian Ambassador Djawoto in Peking, the official New China News Agency said in Tokyo. The note charged that Chinese Embassy staff member Chao Hsiao-shou was shot in the chest and seriously wounded during the attack yesterday, the news agency said.

The protest also charged that First Secretary Lu Tzo-po and four other Chinese officials were beaten up and injured as the attackers rampaged through the embassy compound, smashing windows and burning furniture and papers.

More than a dozen embassy staff members were seen this morning at Jakarta International Airport, reportedly preparing to board a flight to Bangkok, Thailand. Telephone calls to the embassy brought no answer.

Allies Plan For French Move

BONN, Germany (AP) — The United States, Britain and West Germany today set up a new body to deal with the French withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It will consist of the No. 2 man in the West German Foreign Ministry, Karl Carstens, and the U.S. and British Ambassadors in Bonn, George C. McGhee and Sir Frank Roberts.

The agreement was announced after two days of talks in the Bonn Foreign Ministry on the future of French forces in West Germany.

The new body's purpose, the announcement said, will be to continue the exchange of opinions.

Troops To Pull Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States official says the 6,500 American troops in the Dominican Republic might be withdrawn shortly after the June 1 presidential election.

California Hottest

NEW YORK (UPI)—The highest temperature reported yesterday to the U.S. Weather Bureau, excluding Hawaii and Alaska, was 101 degrees at Thermal, Calif. The lowest reported this morning was 17 degrees at Pellston, Mich.

Bullets Puncture Politico's Home

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two bullets fired from a passing car drilled through the door of an Ulster Unionist member of Parliament Friday night. No one was injured.

The parliament member, John McQuade, was with his wife in the living room when the shots were fired.

The shooting occurred shortly after Northern Ireland, part of the United Kingdom, moved to seal its border with the Irish Republic in hopes of averting riots when rival demonstrators march in Belfast Sunday.

DiGiorgio, Grape Workers Will Meet

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Conciliation Service has summoned all sides in the Delano area grape dispute to a meeting Tuesday to set up the ground rules for a vote of Digiorgio Fruit Corp. employees.

Thomas Nicolopulos, chief of the service, requested the National Farm Workers Assn., Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO, the Kern-Tulare independent farmers and the DiGiorgio Corp. to attend the session at Fresno.

Dixie Schools Given Deadline Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — School districts in Southern and border states have been given three more weeks to comply with the U.S. Office of Education's new school desegregation guidelines.

Harold Howe II, commissioner of education, told educators in the 17 states they now have until May 6 to file notices of compliance with the guidelines. The original deadline was Friday. About 600 of the 2,000 affected districts have prepared the notices.

Portugal Rebuffed Over U. N. Relations

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — The Inter-Parliamentary Union voted 43-26 at its final session yesterday to hold up decision on Portugal's application for admission in the group until Lisbon has "normalized its relations with the United Nations."

The application touched off debate over U.N. demands that Portugal grant independence to its African territories.

Wave-Battered Luxury Liner Limps To Port With Flag Lowered

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Italian luxury liner Michelangelo, its flag at half mast, reached port with its dead and injured today after an agonizing bout with a titanic Atlantic storm that demolished 20 staterooms and ravaged the pilot house.

The 43,000-ton sea queen was slammed by a gargantuam 60-foot wave at the peak of the storm last Tuesday with such intensity that passengers thought the liner had hit the bottom of the ocean.

THREE DIE

Two passengers and one crew member were killed and 12 other persons injured, several seriously. One of the dead was John J. Steinbach, 58, a Chicago insurance executive.

The first person taken off the vessel when it berthed this morning, two days later than scheduled, was the noted abstract painter, Fritz Glarner, 66, of Huntington, N.Y., who suffered critical head injuries when he was knocked from his feet in a corridor. He has been in a coma ever since.

SEVEN AMBULANCES

Seven ambulances took the injured to hospitals. Hundreds of worried friends and relatives crowded the Italian Line pier to greet their loved ones, some of whom lost all their luggage when the killer wave swept away staterooms on two decks which faced the bow just below the pilot house and bridge.

"The wave struck the front of the bridge with great force and intensity and smashed it, knocking out and breaking five windows," said Capt. Giuseppi Soletti, who described the storm as the worst in his 41 years at sea.

The proud, white liner was dramatically scarred by its ordeal. The windows in the pilot house were boarded up. Below was a gaping hole 60 feet wide and 30 feet high exposing the crumpled partitions of staterooms. The steel plates of the cowling at the tip of the bow were twisted like tinfoil and the railing was damaged.

Trapped Whale Dies, Towed Away

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Lashed tail-first to the end of a Coast Guard towline, Pokey the venturesome whale rode toward a burial place in the sea today.

The journey to the Atlantic deeps, where he was to be abandoned, was the final indignity for the 30-foot whale which somehow wandered into Virginia's James River and fought all week to survive.

In the end, man, the sun and the shallow James proved too much for Pokey. His 3,000-pound body was punctured by nearly 40 bullet holes. He died on a mud flat Friday.

Silverthorne Now Involved In Assessor's Bribe Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Testimony Friday by the one-time manager of the Mark Hopkins Hotel brought the name of former banker Don C. Silverthorne into the bribery trial of Assessor Russell L. Wolden.

John Parsons testified that he paid a note representing a $38,500 debt on Wolden's swank Pacific Heights apartment building which was purchased by owners of the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

The now-defunct San Francisco National Bank held the note. Former Bank President Don C. Silverthorne told Parsons to write a settlement check of $403,091 on outstanding notes including the Wolden debt, Parsons testified.

"I questioned Mr. Silverthorne," Parsons said.

Parsons said Silverthorne told him "this was to be the total amount owing to the bank and to make out the check."

Parsons has been ordered to return to the stand Monday. He is now executive vice president of Scopitone Systems, Inc., a jukebox-movie firm.

India Releasing Reds Jailed In Roundups

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government has begun releasing more than 1,000 Communists jailed in a nationwide drive 16 months ago.

A government spokesman said all but 200 hard core pro-China Reds jailed without charge or trial in January 1965 will be released over the next few weeks.

The first time an entire official family attended church services with an incoming President was on Jan. 20, 1953 after President Eisenhower was inaugurated.

Textbook Battle Brews Over State Budget Cut

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Legislators have been warned by the State Board of Education that if California's textbook budget isn't augmented by nearly $10 million board members will take their case to the voters.

Gov. Brown's budget calls for $9.6 million in new textbooks for science, social science and health subjects. The books would reach classrooms by the fall of 1967.

The State Curriculum Commission, the board's textbook adviser, has recommended $19.1 million in new books be adopted.

"We should propose $19.1 million and fight for it," board member Milton L. Schwartz said during yesterday's session of the board's monthly meeting.

Schwartz was joined by board president Thomas W. Braden, who called on lawmakers to approve what he called an adequate textbook program or he would "go to the areas of legislators who cut the budget and tell the voters what they did." Because of reapportionment, all legislators are up for re-election this year.

Braden, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, said an adequate textbook budget may be between $16 million and $19.1 million, but didn't give priority to any specific subjects.

The Curriculum Commission however, kept science texts in the top priority spot, commenting that current school science books date back 11 years.

Legislative hearings on the textbook budget are scheduled for next week.

Senior Citizen Polygamy Draws Mixed Reactions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Utah physician claims a guy ought to have more than one wife after age 60 — to ease frustrations and keep people happy — but don't look for help from Washington.

"The administration has no official position," said William Fullerton, assistant commissioner of the aging in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"This means that a man who had a wife for many, many years, would take another one after he was 60 years old," Fullerton added. "Anything I could say would get me in trouble 10 different places." Fullerton is married.

Dr Victory Kassel, a Salt Lake City, Utah, physician who has specialized for 15 years in ailments of the aged, proposed Friday that legalized plural marriage — polygamy — be adopted. He said it would help widows who subsist on inadequate diets and live in a state of sexual frustration.

There are more women than men over age 60, and about 130 women to every 100 men over age 65. Most of the men are married.

First opposition to the proposal came from the 46-year-old doctor's wife. "My wife thinks the whole thing is a bunch of nonsense," he said. "But then, she thinks a lot of things I do are nonsensical."

Some queried here said it sounded like "an interesting idea." Some said it would "pose problems." The Justice Department said possibilities of plural marriage "are dim."

The American Medical Assn. declined comment.

At the American Assn. for Retired Persons, Willis Atwell gasped and said, "You'll have to talk to Mr. Fitch. He's executive director." Mr. Fitch was out of town.

John Overholt, general counsel for the National Assn. of Retired Civil Employees, said, "Why don't they have some concern for men over 60? How will they handle this?"

"We'll have to study the proposal," said the Senior Citizens of America headquarters.

"I don't know, but I don't think that's something we ought to get into at this point," said the local Young Women's Christian Association.

A spokesman for the Young Men's Christian Assn. smiled.

Casino Risks Topless Deal

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Peek-a-boo transparent blouses and pasties replaced skirts and shirts today for seven female card dealers at the Silver Nugget casino.

It may have been the first time in the history of this gambling mecca that women blackjack dealers have worn the nearly topless uniforms.

The aim was to lure business. A hotel spokesman said there were twice as many patrons in the casino as usual when the girls took their posts behind the tables and started dealing.

Officials at the North Las Vegas club and other casino operators awaited the next move from State Atty. Gen. Harvey Dickerson who had released a hotly worded statement opposing topless costumes for female dealers.

Dickerson had indicated that the club might put its gambling license in jeopardy if it used such a gimmick to entice gamblers.

Americans Moving Around At Fast Clip

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 20 per cent of the American population lived at a different address in March 1965 than it did a year earlier, the census bureau reported today.

The bulk of the movers — 13 per cent — changed addresses within the same county. Another 3.5 per cent moved between counties within the same state, the bureau said. Only 3.3 per cent moved between states.

More than 1 million women have a hunter's license in the United States.

Ford Boosts Clausen, Criticizes LBJ Again

Gerald R. Ford of Michigan paid tribute to Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and lambasted the "high living" of the Johnson Administration last night at a sellout banquet in Santa Rosa.

Congressman Ford was principal speaker at a Clausen Appreciation Dinner sponsored by the First Congressional District Republican Committee, headed by Gerald E. Misner of San Anselmo.

A sell-out crowd of about 355 persons jammed the Los Robles Lodge to hear Ford and back Clausen's bid for re-election as the "Redwood Empire Congressman."

Ford blamed inflation and the high cost of living on the Johnson-Humphrey Administration's passion for spending the taxpayer's dollar."

"Lyndon Johnson is playing a shell game with the nation's taxpayers," Ford asserted. "Congress cut income taxes in 1964 and excise taxes in 1965, but how is it going to make those tax cuts stick?. . .This spring Mr. Johnson forced through Congress flashback tax boosts on telephone services and automobiles. Now he's talking about a $5 billion income tax increase.

"Mr. Johnson is really confused. He seems to forget that his $112.8 billion budget calls for $3.2 billion in new spending for Great Society programs while a war is going on in Viet Nam."

Ford suggested that the President should get out his sharp pencil instead of telling housewives to "get out their pencils and buy cheaper cuts of meat."

Misner, who presided at the banquet, said the $25 per plate dinner was a complete sellout, and some persons were turned away.

Clausen received a host of telegrams from fellow solons and from his well wishers.

Dr. Gaylord B. Parkinson, Republican state chairman, wired: "Don Clausen is one of the finest gentlemen and most effective members of Congress I know. His record of service to his community and his district is an outstanding example to each of us. My best wishes go to Don for continued success."

McCarthy Write-In Planned

The committee to re-elect Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, will mount a Democratic write-in campaign in the June election.

Raymond Shone of San Rafael, general chairman for McCarthy, said the executive committee directing the campaign decided to seek Democratic write-ins for McCarthy despite the fact that two of the three counties in the Fourth Senatorial District will be using voting machines instead of paper ballots.

Shone revealed that the new machine ballots require a different procedure for writing in candidates' names for the primary.

BALES DINNER

Supporters of Bruce B. Bales, who want to retain him as Marin County district attorney, will sponsor an appreciation dinner in his honor on April 28.

The $25-per-couple dinner will be held at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael. No host cocktails begin at 6:30, followed by dinner at 7:30.

Peter Krug of Larkspur has been elected president of the Ross Valley Democratic Club to succeed Herbert Hawkins.

Marinites Warned Crime Patterns Changing Fast

In the "totally new pattern of human relationships" evolving in the United States today, the crime rate is not simply increasing at an accelerated rate.

Crime is changing, the criminal is changing, and law enforcement methods must change or become completely ineffective, the dean of the University of California School of Criminology told a Marin audience last night.

Joseph D. Lohman spoke on "Crime in the Changing Community" to an audience of about 80 persons at the College of Marin as part of the college's concert-lecture series.

Lohman described our society as having no common agreement on values. It is, he said, a "collection of sub-cultures, each with its own set of values." Thus, there are sub-cultures of race, of wealth, of poverty, of youth and of old age, each with "the power of a collective self-consciousness.

"The criminal today is not so much a maladjusted individual as he is a person in a state of such extraordinary adjustment to some segment of society that he's in conflict with the society as a whole," Lohman said.

"In Marin, you may be the percursors of a subculture of suburbia. Most of the people in suburbs today were not born in suburbs. But your children will belong to a new subculture —and we don't know what problems this will create."

Crime and the criminal are changing as society changes, he said. Today's criminal is younger, has been getting younger every year for the past twenty years, and "there is no reason to think this trend will be reversed." In 1945, the average age for a criminal was 23. Today, 60 per cent of serious crimes are committed by persons under 18 years of age.

A disproportionate number of today's criminals come from minority ethnic groups — the poor, Negroes, Mexican-Americans, and young people from suburbs. Greatest rate of increase in crime is in the last group, Lohman said. "And I don't mean to suggest that there is any connection between crime and race as such," he noted. "There is a connection between crime and deprivation."

Crime to an ever-increasing degree, is organized, he contended, and is predicated on service to a large segment of the conforming society, he said. "Our law requires that we convict individuals. You can bring a corporation into court, but how can you bring the syndicate into court, when it has no legal existence?" he asked.

As for law enforcement today, he said, "If the little we know about law enforcement were substituted for the enormous amount we know is wrong it would make a terrific difference.

"Many of our practices in law enforcement are based on myth, and we know it. There is a tremendous lag in the application of what we know.

"The inadequate, abortive routines of arrest, detention and incarceration have become a prime factor in generating the type of problem they were designed to eliminate. Many police cases should begin and end with reference to educational and welfare organizations."

A criminal record, said Lohman, is more real to an employer than the man who has the record, and a man who is not a criminal when he goes to jail can become one by the time he is released.

"We must learn to put security inside people instead of around them," he concluded.

OBITUARIES

Frederick A. Hund Dies At 79

Frederick A. Hund, a member of a pioneer Marin County family and brother of Dr. Harry O. Hund of San Rafael, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness. He was 79.

A native Californian, Hund was a son of Dr. Frederick J. Hund who, in 1907, built El Recreo sanitarium in Ross.

While his father operated the institution, Frederick Hund and a brother, the late Walter Hund, took charge of the laboratory. Frederick, a research chemist and pharmacist, later became president of the chemical department of the Shell Oil Co.

In 1930, Frederick Hund left Marin County to live in San Francisco where he continued as a chemist until his retirement.

His brother, Dr. Harry Hund, is at 80 the oldest practicing member of the Marin Medical Society.

Frederick Hund was a graduate of the University of California.

He is survived by his wife, Evelyn Pollard Hund of San Francisco; two sons, Thomas and Alfred Hund; two daughters, Mrs. Kreigh Moody of San Leandro and Evelyn Hund of San Francisco; his brother, Dr. Hund of San Rafael and nine grandchildren.

Requiem Mass will be offered Monday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Annes of the Sunset Church, San Francisco. Private burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at McAvoy O'Hara Funeral Home, San Francisco.

MARY E. ORCUTT

Graveside services for Mrs. Mary E. Orcutt, 82, of 112 Spruce Road, Fairfax, will be held Monday at 10 a.m. at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Mrs. Orcutt died Wednesday at a local hospital following a long illness. She had lived in Marin County for 16 years.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Alberta Nelson of Fairfax, a son, Fred H. Raines of Los Angeles, four grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

Chapel of the Hills is handling the arrangments.

BUDDHISTS

until a new government can be elected.

Demonstrators burned a copy of Ky's decree at a mass meeting while Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, ousted commander of the 1st Corps, beamed approval from the sidelines.

A Buddhist mob wrecked the building where Song is published, last week, because the newspaper had described demonstrators in Saigon as "hooligans." However, Song also had been critical of the government and of South Viet Nam's Roman Catholics, so it was not certain the Buddhists were to blame for today's shooting.

The demonstrators were defying not only the Ky government but the leaders of the Unified Buddhist Church, which called Friday for an end to anti-government disorders.

Thi, whose dismissal March 10 from the First Corps command set off the anti-Ky agitation in South Viet Nam, openly denounced the Ky government yesterday for the first time. He said it must step down immediately or be overthrown.

Thi made the statement at about the same time that Buddhist leaders in Saigon announced that they would not oppose continuance of the Ky regime as a caretaker administration for the three to five months it will take to organize the election of a civilian national assembly.

Students in Hue, the old Imperial capital where the university is located 60 miles north of Da Nang, charged that the government's decree promising elections was a "trick" intended to buy time.

Thi demanded the dismissal of Ky and the formation of another temporary government to serve until the elections take place.

gan will beat George Christopher "by a substantial margin" in the Republican primary for governor. "I believe the polls indicating that Christopher is closing in on Reagan are not accurate," he explained. He also predicted that Brown would have an easier time defeating Reagan than he would against Christopher.

Other candidates who were introduced last night included:

County Supervisor William Gnoss of Novato, and challenger Lynes E. Downing; Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales; Phillip Drath and Supervisor Thomas T. Storer, both of whom seek the Democratic nomination for Congress; Robert Mertle of San Rafael and James Pockrus of Rohnert Park, battling for the Democratic nomination for state Assembly; Dr. William Upton, candidate for supervisor in the First District; County Clerk George Gnoss and Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

George Gnoss and Judge Gardiner are unopposed in the primary.

Terra Linda Sets Closed Meeting

Directors of the Terra Linda Recreation and Parks District will meet in closed session tomorrow to interview a Southern California man who may become the district's recreation director.

"If he is the right man," said board chairman Jack Brandon, "we are prepared to offer him more money than we have ever paid to a director." He said the district could afford this by eliminating the job of pool manager.

The man was interviewed last night by a three-member screening committee. Board members may hire him when they meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Terra Linda Community Center.

Dental Aid Students To Assist At Parley

Students in the College of Marin dental assistant program will demonstrate techniques of the Northern California Dental Assistants Assn. in San Francisco Monday, according to Hazel Torres, director of the college's program and general chairman of the meeting.

Sophomores Diane Daddario of Kentfield, Kathy Borruso of San Rafael, Janet May of San Rafael and Nancy Nutting of Ross will demonstrate dental assisting techniques. Pages will be freshmen Janet Koschetz of Olema, Dolores Grossi of Inverness, Nancy Noble of Hamilton Air Force Base and Nicolyn Staley of San Anselmo.

Ross Council Set For Ballot Count

The Ross Town Council will have a special meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Town Hall to canvass the returns of this week's council election.

Mayor Frederick S. Allen and Councilman Roy Farrington Jones were re-elected without opposition.

The council also is slated to receive more bids on a new police car, after taking no action on two earlier bids.

Tax Mailings Light

San Rafael residents, for the most part, did not wait until the last minute to mail their income tax payments. The post office in San Rafael reported 38,530 cancellations yesterday, up only slightly from the 35,710 of the previous Friday.

Youths Deny Marin City Riot Charges

Marin City residents Phillip Craig Scott, 19, and Edward Boon Green, 20, both charged with felony assault on sheriff's officers in an April 4 riot in Marin City, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Judge Peter Allen Smith scheduled preliminary hearing for both at 9:30 a.m. May 6.

Scott, of 50 Cole Drive, faces two counts of assault—on Deputy Charles T. Prandi and on Deputy Carl Tim Wiese—while Green, of 343 Drake Avenue is charged with assault on Deputy Fred Garrison.

A third defendant, Claude B. Burton, 21, of 33 Cole Drive, Marin City, was granted a continuance until 1:30 p.m. April 29 for plea entry on a misdemeanor charge of obstructing Deputy Dennis Shine and Sgt. Edward Levine in performance of their duties the same night.

Scott is represented by two attorneys, Robert D. Carrow and Richard Werthimer. Benjamin Dreyfus represents Green, and Thomas Ryan is attorney for Burton.

Setting of the preliminary hearing came despite the requests of the attorneys for a two-week delay in entering pleas. Dreyfus wanted more time to study police reports.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua Thomas urged that the hearing not be delayed.

Two other youths charged in the fracas, James Otis Ames, 17, of 69 Cole Drive, and Morison Smith, 17, of 307 Drake Avenue, have been certified to juvenile court.

Trustees Discuss Board Vacancy

Trustees of Mill Valley School District met at 7 a.m. this morning to discuss the qualifications of four persons, one of whom may fill the board vacancy left by the resignation of John G. Donhoff.

The four under consideration are Mrs. Carl Hepp, Mrs. John Goerke, Joseph Bodovitz and Gerald Weisbach.

Supt. G. R. McConnell said the board reached no decision this morning.

Bay Government Survey Suggested

A $150,000 study to determine what form regional government for the Bay Area should take was proposed yesterday by Melvin B. Lane, chairman of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Lane made the proposal in a letter to a number of public and private organizations in the Bay Area. He estimated that the study could be completed in 12 to 18 months.

Tomales Salaries

The Tomales High School faculty salary schedule, which teachers have asked not be increased next fall, ranges from $6,000 to $10,908, not from $5,400 to $9,288 as reported incorrectly in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

She said Congress should push for a treaty with the Russians.

Now, the foreigners can catch all the fish they want and in any manner they wish as long as they stay more than three miles off the coast.

The State Fish and Game Commission, which regulates California fishing to conform with good conservation practices, plans to hold a lengthy hearing on the subject April 29 in San Diego.

Glenwood School Bids Are Opened

A. J. Bresnan Co. of San Rafael was apparent low bidder yesterday of four firms which sought the contract to put in paving in front of Glenwood School in San Rafael.

The work also would cover curbs, gutters and utilities.

Other bidders, according to Charles L. Condrotte, San Rafael schools business manager, were E. A. Forde Co. of San Anselmo, $19,064; Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael, $16,492.45; and Maggiora and Ghilotti Inc. of Corte Madera, $17,582.50.

Condrotte said bids will be studied by the elementary district's engineer and contract probably will be awarded by the San Rafael Board of Education at its April 26 meeting.

Bay Area Council Elects New Officers

William E. Roberts of Redwood City, president of the Ampex Corporation, was elected chairman of the Bay Area Council yesterday in Oakland.

Vice chairmen elected yesterday were Jack Dant of the States Steamship Co., B. F. Biaggini of Southern Pacific, Walter A. Haas Jr. of Levi Strauss, and Wendell Witter of Dean Witter and Co.

Meetings Slated

Three subcommittees of the Marin County Board of Education will meet Monday night in the superintendent's new offices at 201 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera. The legislation committee will meet at 7 p.m., administrative services committee at 8 p.m. and the personnel committee at 9 p.m.

San Rafael To Decide On Park Bond Program

San Rafael's City Council Monday will consider what to do with park funds if the proposed $4.3 million county park bond issue passes June 7. The meeting of the council is set for 8 p.m. at the city hall.

The council is also scheduled to call for new bids for furniture for the new city hall, now under construction, and to hold a hearing of a general plan for East San Rafael.

The East San Rafael hearing is expected to be continued on May 18 because Daniel P. Coleman, its author, will not be present, according to City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen.

Two appointments are expected: One to the library board and one to a special committee to study the city charter and proposed revision, Irving D. Chapman, named by the council to the latter committee on April 4, declined the honor.

A hearing is scheduled on an appeal by owners of the Short Stop Market, 38 Bellam Boulevard, from planning commission denial of a permit for two self-service gasoline pumps at their store.

The council will look over plans for drainage facilities to be placed on Fourth Street before a new paving overlay is started in connection with conversion to parallel parking. It will consider again restricting parking between 4 and 6 p.m. weekdays on Lincoln Avenue.

San Rafael's share of county park bond money would be $511,738, based on population. The park and recreation commission has suggested $210,000 be used to purchase land for five neighborhood parks, $125,000 go for an East San Rafael acquatic park, and $75,000 be used toward construction of a community recreation center in Albert Park.

The furniture bids submitted to the council were all thrown out after the city received several complaints about the specifications.

Pokey Drivers Face Tickets On Freeways

SACRAMENTO (UPI)— Minimum speed limits, intended to keep dawdling drivers from tying up freeways, will be tested soon on four stretches of highway.

The Division of Highways said yesterday the minimums would range from 45 miles per hour in the right lane to 60 miles per hour in the left lane.

Freeways with more than two lanes each way will have minimums of 55 or 60 miles per hour in the middle lanes.

The California Highway Patrol said drivers who go slower than the minimums will be stopped.

Each of the experimental zones will be about four miles long. They are situated on Interstate 80 between Davis and Vacaville, Interstate 80 near the Sacramento-Placer County line, the Bayshore Freeway south of San Francisco International Airport and the Harbor Freeway in Los Angeles.

Industrial Arts Unit To Install Officers

Dr. Kenneth Dawson, executive secretary of the American Industrial Arts Assn. will be guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Marin-Sonoma chapter of the California Industrial Arts Assn. at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the College Center at College of Marin in Kentfield.

The meeting, hosted by the college's technical-vocational division, will include a tour of that division's facilities and the installation of the association's new officers.

Television Stolen

Hilda Heifetz of 28 Twin Oak Avenue, San Rafael, reported to police yesterday someone had entered her house and taken a small television set, worth about $150. There was no sign of forced entry, police said.

Auto Stolen

Walter H. Bales of 119 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael, discovered his 1964 silver-colored two-door Chevrolet missing yesterday from where he had parked it behind 101 Nova Albion Way, he told police.

two million. The real figure couldn't be calculated.

In addition, Johnson prolonged his stay in Mexico to visit the posh Chapultepec Heights home of Latin America's most famous screen comic Cantinflas.

The 15-minute visit had dramatic, and tragic overtones.

Newsmen were told that Johnson went to the Cantinflas residence — next door to the brand new home of American Ambassador Fulton Freeman — to fulfill a wish of the screen star's 6-year-old son, Mario.

Months ago the President's small jetstar transport carried Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., to Mexico City on an official mission. At that time the wife of the comedian was critically ill and needed transportation to medical facilities at Temple, Tex. The plane flew Mrs. Cantinflas — officially Mrs. Mario Moreno Sr. — to the LBJ Ranch, with Douglas going along.

At the ranch, Mrs. Moreno was moved to another plane and was flown to Temple. There she died.

Young Mario wanted to thank the President and Mrs. Johnson for this gesture and give her a gold locket that had belonged to his mother.

Machinists May Strike Airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A union pushed ahead yesterday with plans to strike five major airlines on April 23 after contract negotiations broke off without a settlement, Thursday.

The union, the International Assn. of Machinists, represents 34,000 ground crew workers. The airlines involved are United, Eastern, National, Northwest and Trans World.

The National Mediation Board is expected to recommend that a White House emergency board be created to enter the dispute and make settlement recommendations. If President Johnson created the panel, it could delay the threatened strike by 60 days.

Architect At Parley

Architect Robert B. Liles of 859 Appleberry Drive, Marinwood, will serve on the faculty at the annual convention of the International Council of Shopping Centers today through Thursday in Los Angeles. He will conduct classes for shopping center developers, managers and owners.

Burglary Charge Told Suspects

Isaiah Howard Wallace and Raymond Rudolph Beauchamp, both 24, were arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a joint charge of breaking into Brown's Home Furnishers in Mill Valley.

Judge Peter Allen Smith scheduled plea entries for 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Wallace, of 207 Drake Avenue, and Beauchamp, of 261 Drake Avenue, both of Marin City, were found in the closed store at 38 Miller Avenue Thursday night, according to Mill Valley police.

Nothing was believed taken. Wallace remained in jail yesterday in lieu of reduced $500 bail. Beauchamp's bail is $2,750 pending a hearing on his request to be released on his own recognizance.

Contract Ordered For Bay Model

Shamrock Materials, Inc., of San Rafael, was awarded the contract yesterday for an addition to the Army Corps of Engineers Bay Model in Sausalito. The construction will add a model of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta to the present model.

Shamrock's base bid was $9,408.50, slightly higher than that of McPhail's, Inc., of San Rafael, $9,337.50, but McPhail's was willing to grant a five per cent cut in the bill if there was payment within 10 days, and Shamrock was willing to cut five per cent up to 30 days from the payment due date.

Also, according to Mrs. Ann Gordon, chief of the corps' procurement branch, McPhail's neglected to submit a bid bond.

Gnoss Sets Deadline For Bond Arguments

April 28 was set by County Clerk George H. Gnoss yesterday as the final day for filing arguments for or against the $4.3 million park bond issue, to be on the ballot June 7.

The statements must be 300 words or less. Arguments will be mailed to voters in sample ballot envelopes prior to the election.

Instructions For Neckline Zippers

I don't know where to start the neckline zipper at the back of my dresses or blouses. I can't seem to get the facing turned under at the neck edge without a thick lumpy fold of excess material, and there's never a place for a hook and eye.

MRS. J. S.

DEAR MRS. J. S.:

When placing your neckline zipper in position keep the key or tab of the zipper at least one-half inch below the seamline, or in other words, about 1⅛ inches from the cut edge of the garment. I always prefer a lapped-type zipper to one that has each side meeting at the center of the zipper.

Turn each end of the facing down over the zipper tape, mitering the ends. Cut out any excess fabric from this area beforehand whipping the ends down to the zipper tape. You will find ample room for the hook and eye above the tab of the zipper if you follow these instructions.

Mrs. John Rohr, Lafayette, Ind., wins a tailor trix pressing board for the following ideas.

"I do alterations at home, so I have a lot of ripping to do. I keep a rubber and metal suede brush handy to remove all the little threads that are hard to pull out from a ripepd seam. Use the side of the brush best suited to your fabric.

"Another invaluable aid: Fold a large piece of wax paper several times until you have a six- or seven-inch square pad. This works perfectly. Just run over it with your iron and it will keep the iron from sticking."

What timing. Just when all of our old skirts need shortening (short enough to look fashionable, not silly) a progressive company comes to the rescue with a great new hem tape.

I did a rush job on my last year's dress and in less than 10 minutes, I had shortened it and was wearing it. My daughter was home from college on her spring vacation and shortened all of her skirts in an hour, a job I couldn't ever get her to to before.

It's simply called an iron-on seam binding. It's rayon with a special heat activated bonding agent. It won't shrink, is color fast, can be washed or dry cleaned, and can easily be removed for hemline changes.

Yes, I'm on a bandwagon again. I'm for anything new that gives perfect results with less time. This hem binding can be used for curtains, draperies, lengthening or shortening boys' slacks and shirt sleeves and it's perfect for seams that ravel. Best of all, you don't even have to be a sewer to get perfect results since you don't have to take a single hand stitch.

Pin your hem even (baste in place) and press the crease. Take short pressing strokes instead of long strokes used in ironing. You must not stretch the hem out of shape. Hems of dresses and skirts should be two and one-half inches wide; trim off excess fabric.

Center the seam binding over the raw edge of fabric, bonding agent side down. Press lightly with dry iron at the correct temperature setting for garment fabric. This will tack the hem in place. Now press again firmly, rotating iron in place for a few seconds until the bond lines are fully visible on right side. Continue around entire hem until tape joins, then allow completed hem to cool before wearing. Believe me, you'll never go back to hand-sewing a hem again.

So many of the new patterns have gathers around the entire waistline instead of darts. The latest one I have doesn't even have a side seam and yet the dress is a sheath-style dress. I am just plain not thin enough for even this amount of gathering. Is there anything I can do to make the dress less bulky at the waist?

MRS. C. B.

DEAR MRS. C. B.:

You can always remark your pattern, (especially the skirt back and put the back darts in your skirt. Then you can add a shaped dart at the side tapering it from about one inch at the waistline to nothing seven inches below the waist. This would be the same shape you would have if there were a side seam. Try keeping the ease in the skirt front; it shouldn't be too much and will look very new.

Fitting skirts successfully is easy when you follow my step-by-step instructions in my latest booklet "Your Pattern and You." For your copy, send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal. You'll love the simplified pattern alterations and the many sketches.

Plastic Dress Is Latest From Paris

PARIS (AP) — A Paris dress designer has come within a whisker of designing himself right out of a job: presenting a line of clear plastic dresses.

"It's a joke," laughed Daniel Hechter, the designer.

"It's a joke," said one of the models.

"Call it what you want," said a male spectator at Hechter's preview show Thursday night. "I think it's terrific."

Hechter, though he insists it's all a joke, plans to sell these dresses for $2 apiece and says he already has some takers. He has made two concessions to modesty: two horizontal bands of darker colored clear plastic above and below the midriff.

One model had on knee socks. She said they made her feel more covered.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Rhubarb' Audience Slower Than Skits

By KARL BARRON

Last night I found out what the cast of the Rhubarb Revue has to fight.

The material gets better as the show progresses, but the reaction time of the audience slows down correspondingly. As a result, all the laughs come a line after they're supposed to, and for those who are still sober it becomes a bit sticky.

This and the automatic applauders — who clap indiscriminately and for no earthly reason—work a hardship on the performers and the audience.

But it's that kind of a show and the 12th edition will be presented at the American Legion Hall in Mill Valley again tonight, as well as next Friday and Saturday and April 29 and 30. Doors open at 7:30 p.m. for those who wish to bring their own alcohol and purchase setups or beer. The curtain is at 8:45 p.m.

The show is sadly lacking in good satirical material, compared to past Rhubarb Revues. The best writers in this version, unfortunately not hip to the Tamalpais Valley scene, are James Thurber and Tom Lehrer. Thurber's unicorn skit, badly emasculated, is performed with gusto by Bill Kelly and Maggie Kelly, a very funny gangling comedienne. Husband and wife teams abound, as we shall see.

The Lehrer bit is "Be Prepared," with Dick Miller, Joe Allen, Dan Danley and Bob Davis decked out in Boy Scout shorts. Miller, a fine comedian, is hampered throughout the evening by a total lack of material. As Sir Francis Drake, his costume and manner prepare us for a lot of laughs—then he has nothing to do but chase Barbara Grupp, the most voluptuous ballerina I've ever seen (and a good one).

The best all-around talent in the show belongs to Shirley Taldo. She's a good dancer, comedienne, and singer. She's especially delightful in "We Have Each Other" with Joe Allen. Allen does an amusing take-off with the song "I Believe In You," gazing at his own reflection in a shiny frying pan.

For my money, the best number is by another h. and w. team, Andra and Conway Enscoe. A hillbilly bit titled "As You Please," it is a real pleaser, replete with action, rhythm and sparkle.

The music is a loud hodgepodge of records with which performers mime the words, combined with live songs, to which Phoebe Deignan provides excellent accompaniment. Mrs. Deignan is on stage singing and dancing part of the time, while husband Jack contributes several amusing bits on stage.

There are 40 skits in the show, far too many to cover in this space. A few outstanding ones are Esther Allen's "Ode To A Tree"; "The Addict" by Harrie Batz, in which she is plumping for Needles Anonymous, which arrested her "knitting habit"; Irene and George Pritzger comparing their "normal" lives (with children) to their unfortunate friends without progeny, who go to Europe, spend money, have a ball, etc.

Two cuties named Pat Owen and Vera Ellis spend most of their time with only their shapely legs showing out of a mule named Jennie, who is a show stealer. The show has its usual complement of pretty girls in opera stockings, and Judy Modell offers her competent dancing, but her choreography seems uninventive.

No revue today is complete without Batman, and he is played in this one by Conway Enscoe. In the place of Robin he has "Batchick" portrayed by Jane Healey. The skit has good possibilities, but never seems to really get off the ground, and Batman should.

Other familiar faces contributing to the potpourri are Miriam Burdick, Dorothy De Avila, Jean Solomon (a funny fan dance, aided by Deignan as a duck shooter) and Morrie Batz, who among other chores does his now famous SLOB, a takeoff on gooey music radio stations.

There are a number of lovely costumes, especially Miss Taldo's wild red outfit as she sings "Second Hand Rose," and Veva Ellis is credited as "costume coordinator" — apparently the gals make their own.

Greatest credit, as always, must go to Laurie Tusup for her direction. She keeps the show on the go, no matter what the material is, and this is the secret of Rhubarb's success.

The Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club has bought an 11-acre site for a recreation center with funds from the previous 11 Revues, so they must be good!

PHILIP BRADLEY
Peace Corps job

MRS. BRADLEY
Helping prisoners

Former Marin Couple Get Peace Corps Role

A former Marin couple, who volunteered for the Peace Corps last year, have been assigned to a pilot project to teach industrial skills in prison shops in Venezuela, the Peace Corps announced today.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bradley, who formerly lived at 328 G Street, San Rafael, left for their assignment in Venezuela on March 26 after completing training in California and Puerto Rico.

Bradley, a cabinetmaker and carpenter, and his wife, a wig maker, lived in San Rafael for three months before leaving last December.

They had lived previously in Mill Valley, moving there from Seattle, Wash., in August, 1962. Both husband and wife reportedly are "quite handy" and had made furniture. Bradley also reportedly had constructed three houses and sold them before moving to Marin.

In her Peace Corps assignment, Mrs. Bradley is slated to work with women prisoners, teaching them dressmaking, child care and related projects.

Clausen Named To Spain Parley

Speaker of the House John W. McCormack has nominated Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, Calif., as an official U.S. adviser to the sixth World Forestry Congress in Madrid, Spain, June 6 to 18.

Clausen will be one of two House members to serve as advisers to the U.S. delegation to the World Forestry Congress.

McCormack said he selected Causen on the recommendation of House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.

Chamber Breakfast

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday made final plans for a general membership breakfast meeting of the chamber at 7:30 a.m. Thursday in Alexander Hall on the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus. All San Anselmo businessmen have been invited, said Mrs. Harriet Haly, chamber secretary-manager.

ART REVIEW

Stuart Paintings Show Marin Of Yester-year

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Artists are said to be the pictorial historians of their time and according to the late James Everett Stuart's paintings featured at Buffs Galleries, 28 Bolinas Road, Fairfax, the Marin scene of 50 years ago was a lush and pastoral paradise.

His view of Mount Tam from the Mill Valley salt marshes shows a sunpatched landscape, empty and beautiful in a way almost forgotten and the impression is repeated in "Late Afternoon, Camp Taylor, August 1916," a spacious scene of boiling clouds in a turquoise sky below which are fields made orange with scattered sunlight and edged with darkly blowing trees.

This glimpse of Marin-past is interesting historically as well as aesthetically because Stuart documented the locale and date on the back of every canvas. One view of the present site of the Marin Art and Garden Center bears the inscription, "Looking north on county road in front of Mr. Simpson's place at Ross, June 1916." Another identifies the "creek just below water tank on Aram White's place, Mill Valley, base of Mount Tamalpais, June 1916." And there are unbelievably unpopulated scenes of Belvedere, Sausalito and rural areas that today just hint at the unending, untouched beauty depicted by Stuart's brush.

Stuart came by his interest in art quite naturally. Born in 1852, the grandson of Gilbert Stuart (most famous for his portrait of George Washington), James Everett Stuart went on to become remarkably successful in his own right. According to "Who's Who," he discovered a process of painting on aluminum by which pigments attach themselves and become like one with the metal, a process said to be impervious to the action of time. An example of this is included in the Buffs show. Before his death in 1941, Stuart had sold five of these "metal paintings" for $15,000 each and his work was hung in the White House, in American museums and universities, and in international collections.

He was equally remarkable for the geography his work encompassed. In a pre-freeway era he chronicled scenes from Maine to California and from Alaska to Panama. The Marin landscapes are the main area covered in the Buffs showing but there are also early views of missions, adobes, Yosemite and Lake Tahoe as well as Mounts Shasta, Hood, Stuart and Tacoma, each radiant with the reflected glow of dawn or evening sun.

This collection of Stuart's work, in storage since the artist's death, is being shown for the first time in 25 years and for the very first time in Marin. It is augmented by works of other early California painters, several of whom also depict Marin at the turn of the century. Among these are Bloomer, Podchernikoff and Welch and also Valencia, who lived and worked in Fairfax. Together with Stuart, they offer a handsome pictorial history with the emphasis on Marin.

Marin Delegates At Air Force Meeting

Three Marin County college students were among selected Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps cadets who attended the 18th National Air Society Conclave just ended in Dallas.

They were Robert J. Ornellas, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ornellas Jr. of 658 Olive Avenue, Novato; Samuel E. Young Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Young of 767 Plaza Amapola, Novato, and Wallace B. Frank Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Wallace B. Frank of 213 Sunset Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base.

Rotary To Hear Marin Problems

San Rafael Rotary Club members will hear a discussion of "Current Marin Problems" at their meeting at 12:15 p.m. Monday at the West End Villa.

Discussing the problems will be County Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker, San Rafael City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen, and Michael Mitchell, county auditor-controller.

They will speak on future use of the courthouse property, the $4.3 million park bond issue on the June 7 ballot, property taxes, and one-way streets in San Rafael.

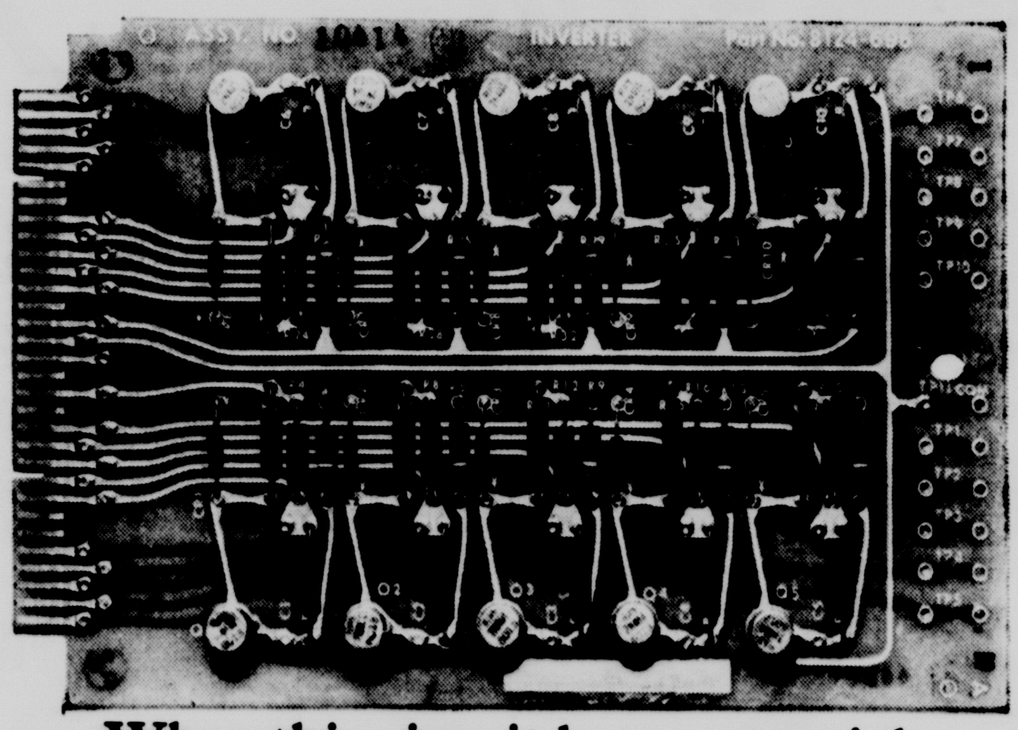
Career Day Planned For Sausalito Pupils

Twenty-nine speakers representing occupations including fireman, policeman, shoemaker, hair stylist, teacher, social worker and the Army, Navy and Air Force will participate in a "career evening" at Sausalito's Richardson Bay School at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The program is designed for eighth grade students and their parents.

There will be social periods in the multipurpose room at 7:30 and 8:40 p.m. At 7:50 p.m., students, speakers and parents will break up into five groups for the program.

The first known inks were concocted by the Chinese and Egyptians, about 2500 B.C. The inks consisted of lampblack blended with a solution of glue or gums.



When this circuit learns your job what are you going to do?

For one thing, you'll be looking for another job. And a different kind of job at that. Today, new machines and new methods are eliminating some jobs permanently. They do the work better and more efficiently than men.

That's progress. But progress is also creating new jobs, new opportunities for those who can qualify. Just remember . . .

You won't get tomorrow's jobs with yesterday's skills

To qualify for tomorrow's jobs, you'll need new skills, new abilities. And you can get them by re-training now.

Don't wait for a circuit to replace your job . . . and you. Start re-training now . . . and have a better job before it happens. For information about re-training for tomorrow's jobs, visit the local office of your State Employment Service.

ON AMERICA AND GLENWOOD SCHOOL—Pupils at Glenwood School in San Rafael work on a scrapbook which will be sent to a school in Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia. From left are Scott McNear, Diane Kamp, and Libby Whitehead. The book is part of a project of exchanging letters, pictures and tape recordings between pupils at the two schools.

Glenwood Pupils Swap Letters, Tapes With Ethiopian Pen Pals

Pupils in four classes at Glenwood School, in the San Rafael Elementary School District, have acquired Ethiopian pen pals.

Mrs. Diane Lindquist, a sixth grade teacher at Glenwood, started the project through a friend in the Peace Corps who is teaching English at Asfawossem School in Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia.

Glenwood has received about 800 letters from students in the Ethiopian school, and 131 students at Glenwood have been writing to Addis Ababa.

The first letters sent to the Ethiopian school were headed, "Dear Ethiopian Student," but a second batch of letters is being prepared, and the pupils now have the names of individual children at the school.

In addition to letters, Glenwood has sent and received tape recordings. The tapes sent from Glenwood included such things as playground sounds, the sounds of an American home (such as the sound of a dishwasher), and circle discussions by pupils on what they have been doing.

The pupils are preparing a scrapbook on "America and Glenwood School" to send to the Ethiopian school.

Letters from both Glenwood and Asfawossem describe curriculum, families, clothes and pets, and many include drawings that range from flowers, pets, and clothes to maps of the country and complete floor plans of the child's house.

Wrote one Glenwood fourth-grade student:

"My name is Diane Schultz. I have one brother named Richard Schultz. I have a dog named Lhama. Recently my dog got clipped and he looks like a rat."

Diane's letter included drawings of Lhama, before and after.

Cindy Hill, also a fourth-grader, included colored drawings of Glenwood School, the State of California, a map of the United States, and four birds.

Sara Ripp, a sixth-grader, asked, "Do you have recesses? I have about four."

Janine Simon, a fourth-grader, described "some of the clothes we wear. "The girls wear tops called 'poor-boys'," Janine wrote, "and skirts that come just above the knee, and have a big belt. They are called 'hip-huggers.' Our shoes are called 'boots,' and come almost to our knees."

The letters from Ethiopia, written by pupils studying English by the audio-lingual method, sound much the same as the letters from Glenwood.

Wrote one Ethiopian student:

"I am a girl. I am a pretty girl. I have no brother or sister. I have father and mother." The letter included drawings labeled "This is my house," and "This is my cat."

Wrote another student:

"I have three brothers and one sister of the same sex like me. Me, my sister and my second brother from the last are studying at Asfawossem School. In my school I am dealing with subjects of Amharic, English, science, arithmetic, handicraft (homemaking), history, and geography. But at this age of mine I am interested in English."

Jaycees Planning Award Dinner In Mill Valley

Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold its seventh annual distinguished service award dinner and bosses night at 7 p.m. Wednesday, at the Community and Youth Center, 415 Sycamore Avenue.

Guest Speaker will be E. Hornsby Wasson, president of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., San Francisco.

A distinguished service award will be presented to an outstanding person of Southern Marin between the ages of 21 and 35. The Jaycees have three nominees and will decide the winner tomorrow at Sabella's Restaurant.

The award winner will be announced on the evening of the dinner, according to Mike Walker, chairman.

The Methodist Church in the United States estimates its membership at 10,332,000.

Planning Chief Recruiting On Trip To East

Marin County's new planning director, Paul C. Zucker, flew East today in quest of men to fill vacancies in his department.

He will go to Philadelphia, Pa., to attend the annual meeting of the National Assn. of Planners, but along the way he will stop in Chicago to interview candidates for Marin's planning department. He has also scheduled some interviews at Philadelphia.

Needed are a chief of advanced planning, paying $11,500 to $14,000 a year, and a chief of current planning, with the same salary range offered.

He also wants to fill the position of assistant zoning administrator at $9,000 to $11,000 a year and a planning position at $8,200 to $10,000 a year.

Zucker is not empowered to do any hiring on the behalf of the county, but he can encourage men to apply.

"I hope to come back with some good applications," he said prior to his departure.

Zucker will also be spreading the word on four more positions that might be allowed in next year's budget: a senior planner, $9,000-$11,000; an advanced planner, $8,200-$10,000; a planning intern, summer only with pay based on training and experience, and a draftsman, $5,800 to $7,000.

Two Aboard Tanker

Navy Lt. (jg) John Hartman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Rodney B. Hartman of 38 Bigelow Avenue, Mill Valley, and Ensign Roger S. Lion, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Lion of 26 Wren Avenue, Sausalito, are serving aboard the Seventh Fleet gasoline tanker Elkhorn in the coastal waters off Viet Nam.

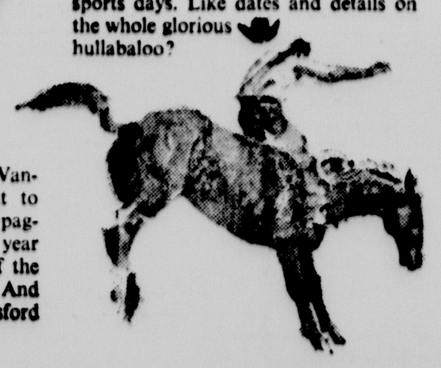
INDIAN ARTIFACTS DONATED

Miwok Indian artifacts uncovered by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. during excavation work at Bodega Head in Sonoma County for an atomic power plant which was never built, have been donated to the National Park Service and will be exhibited at Point Reyes National Seashore when permanent facilities are built there. Elias S. Day (center), manager of PG&E's North Bay Division in San Rafael, presents the collection to Paul J. Schumacher (right), regional archaeologist for the National Park Service. Leslie P. Arnberger (left), superintendent of the Point Reyes National Seashore, observes the artifacts.

There's color, excitement, pageantry this year in British Columbia

The roll of drums, the flags aloft . . . festive gaiety galore. It's Centennial Year in British Columbia!

Time to toast tradition in a dozen ways as varied as this vast, exciting land itself. From the snow-heaped vastness of the Rockies to cosmopolitan Vancouver and across Georgia Strait to Victoria, the Province is alive with pageants, parades, festivals. This is the year to see the famed Musical Ride of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. And the Centennial International Abbotsford Air Show, greatest air extravaganza ever held in North America. Recalling our past, the touring Barkerville players put on a rousing show in the manner of gold rush days... while the Dominion Drama Festival offers rich variety in polished stage entertainment. This is our year for special sports attractions, too. You can follow the gold trail swingers during the Canadian Open Golf Tournament. Join the throng at Empire Stadium for Grey Cup Football. Thrill to unlimited hydroplane racing on Lake Okanagan. And in cities, towns and villages throughout the Province, you'll find local events brighter, more lavish than ever. Rodeos. Regattas. Indian potlatches. Loggers' sports days. Like dates and details on the whole glorious hullabaloo?



Just clip and mail the coupon below. You'll receive a complete calendar of events as part of an elaborate Visitors' Kit that's also a guide to hotels and motels, night spots, points of interest. Everything you need to plan your trip to British Columbia this exciting Centennial Year.

PASTOR — Rev. Rowland Chandler has taken over as pastor of Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, Fairfax. He has served at churches in Texas and is a graduate of Concordia College, Moorehead, Minn., and of Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn. He replaces Rev. John Rotto, who left last October to become pastor of a church in Valley City, N.D.

Clerics May Be Barmen, Taxi Drivers

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — A man who runs an institute of religion believes the clergyman of the future is destined to be a bartender, a taxi driver, or in some other occupation close to the people.

Rev. Granger E. Westberg, professor of religion and medicine at Baylor University College of Medicine in Houston, believes clergymen of the future will operate more like the Peace Corps operates now.

Westberg, who is dean of the Institute of Religion at the Texas Medical Center in Houston, said churchmen will seek "more exciting ministries" among the people, by becoming things other than just clergymen.

A bartender, for example!

"This is where the people are," he said, "where they come and pour out their troubles, where the stuff of life is discussed."

"I am convinced," he said, "that we are absolutely disgusted with the complacency of the church as it is now and we are not going to let it continue this way. Tremendous changes are to be made in the next 10 to 20 years.

"I don't think you are going to recognize the church."

Pastor To Officiate At Final Rite Here

The rite of confirmation will be administered to 11 persons who will renew their baptismal vows at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at Trinity Lutheran Church, San Rafael.

It will be the last service officiated by Rev. Fred C. Braunschweiger, who will leave Monday to become pastor of Holy Sacraments Church, Portland, Ore. Braunschweiger has been counselor for the North Bay Circuit of the California and Nevada district of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, acting president of the Marin Easter Seal Society, on the board of trustees of the Marin Psychiatric Assn. and a member of the Community Council of Marin General Hospital.

Latter-Day Saints Meet This Weekend

Hundreds of members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints are attending a quarterly area conference this weekend in Santa Rosa with stress on home teaching and Sunday school.

Stake president Weston Lawrence Roe of Novato will conduct the general conference sessions tomorrow at the Santa Rosa Stake House. The stake includes 14 wards (parishes) in Marin, Sonoma and Mendocino counties.

Laymen School Will Sponsor Four Courses

The Marin branch of the Laymen's School of Religion will offer courses in Mill Valley, San Rafael and at Hamilton Air Force Base during the six-week spring term beginning this week.

"Man and Superman in the Twentieth Century Novel" is being offered Tuesdays from 8 to 10 p.m. at Mill Valley Community Church, Rev. Douglas Saxby, professor at Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, will be the instructor.

The course will be an analysis of 20th Century novels with a view to their understanding of the human situation in relation to God and the world. Authors included will be Falkner, Silone, Rand and Camus. All of these works present variations on the theme of man's autonomy and social responsibility.

"The New Theologies," to be taught by Rev. John Hadsell, university Presbyterian pastor at the University of California at Berkeley, will be offered at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael.

This class will discuss the problems and possibilities of "new theology," "the death of God," "the validity of God-talk," and "the new morality." Classes will be on Thursdays from 8 to 10 p.m.

Men of Hamilton Air Force Base and their wives will have a chance to tackle the subjects of "Faith in the Space Age" and "Communication and the Search for Meaning" beginning Monday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

"Faith in the Space Age" is an introductory course in theology. Instructor will be Rev. Harry Mumm of Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary. The other course will be taught by Rev. Muriel James, dean of the laymen's school.

Orthodox Jew Community Nearing End

COCHIN, India (AP) — Here on the Malabar Coast, hidden among Cochin's palm trees and winding alleys, a community unique in all Asia waits for death.

This is a small group of Orthodox Jews whose faith has survived for nearly 2,000 years in the surrounding multi-religious Indian sea of Hindus, Moslems, Buddhists and Christians.

Only 89 members of this community that once numbered thousands are alive now. About 50 per cent are above age 70 and, as they say, have "taken notice from God."

There are only three teen-age boys in the community, and the five girls of marriageable age, who must wed other Orthodox Jews, have no husband prospects. The last wedding was 5 or 10 years ago — no one seems quite sure.

How and when Jews first landed in India is disputed, but synagogue records say they arrived in 72 A.D., as traders and refugees from Middle East pogroms. Some historians say they came from Persia, others say they are descendants of escapees from captured tribes in Palestine.

They are extremely well-educated by Indian standards and India needs educated youngsters. But Ezziekeel Roby, 13, says "we won't get any promotions if we get jobs."

If they leave the counrty, they must leave penniless, because India, hard pressed for foreign exchange, will not permit citizens to take money with them.

Alaska Slides

Charles Schmid, director of Point Reyes National Seashore, will show slides of Alaska and tell of his experiences while stationed at Mount McKinley National Park at 8 p.m. next Saturday at St. Columbia's Episcopal Church, Inverness.

1,000 YEARS—Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, primate of Poland and archbishop of Gniezno and Warsaw, enters the Roman Catholic cathedral at Gniezno Thursday to begin celebration of 1,000 years of Christianity in Poland. In spite of Communist refusal to permit visit of foreign churchmen and other restrictions, more than 15,000 Roman Catholics jammed the streets of the ancient church center to begin the observance.

Churches And Communism

Russians Advocate Soft Sell To Change Faith To Atheism

MOSCOW (UPI) —Workers at a cardboard box factory tried their best through argument and insult to turn their plant into a closed shop for atheism.

They "persuaded" several coworkers to give up their belief in God. But two believers refused to "see the light." Jeers and catcalls failed. Finally the pair was taunted with dirty stories and intimidated—to no avail.

Such sledgehammer tactics will not work. That's the message which Soviet authorities are trying to get across.

A soft-sell approach for atheism would be much better, the authorities say.

The magazine "Science and Religion," which related the factory incident, declared: "Trying to do away with believers in such a harsh way will only help them to become more devoted believers and fanatics."

Despite almost 50 years of official atheism, religion dies hard in this country. There are still millions of Russians—although mostly persons over 40—who attend services and masses in the nations Orthodox churches, synagogues, mosques and Catholic and Protestant churches.

There is no law against going to church or believing in God in the Soviet Union.

But it takes great devotion and often guts to practice one's faith. During Easter season services, priests and communicants are often jeered as they enter churches and occasionally hooligans try to molest them.

Soviet officials, however, provide policemen to prevent this. Sometimes slogans like "there is no God" are scrawled on church buildings.

In Moscow there still are 44 Russian Orthodox churches compared with approximately 600 before the 1917 revolution.

The atheism drives take many forms.

There is an "atheist corner" in many schools in Moscow. "Religion is the opium of the people," proclaims one banner beside a large picture of Karl Marx.

"Do not worship a God but work for your government," states another over a table at a high school that contains anti-religious pamphlets.

The "House of Atheism" has a 5,000 volume library devoted to "scientific atheism" and so called exposes of religion.

Through films, lectures, magazines, books, atheist clubs and a nationwide society, the message of godlessness is carried.

Despite efforts to institute atheistic rituals for marriages, birth registration and other ceremonies formerly the domain of the church, many families still prefer these affairs to be conducted under religious auspices.

The newspaper Soviet Latvia, published in the Baltic Republic, decried the fact that Communist party officials wanted to show atheistic movies on religious holidays.

"Parting with religion is a gradual process. It cannot be imagined as an immediate eliminating of everything that is in the minds of the people . . . the understanding of (this) fact must hold us from attempts to beat religion with one stroke.

Organist To Give Recitals At Church

Marilyn Mason of the University of Michigan will give organ recitals at 8 p.m. today and at the same time tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

She will give a "master's class" for organists all day Saturday on the Bach "Clavieruebung" and will play the major portion of the work tonight with the Marin Pro Musica. Tomorrow's recital will be a solo.

Memorial Service

A memorial service for Horace B. Dillehay of Terra Linda, killed in a highway accident in San Francisco Wednesday, will be held as part of the 10:15 a.m. service at the First Congregational Church, San Rafael.

Christian Faiths Are Isolated Under Regime Of Red Chinese

NEW YORK (AP) — Red China's increasing bitterness toward the western world has driven its Christian churches still deeper into their lonely isolation.

The fact that the churches survive in fair numbers despite the pressures of an atheistic government is known only through reports from travelers and refugees.

Chinese Christianity has been cut off from direct contact with world church organizations since the Communists took over in 1949. Rev. Wallace Merwin, an Asian specialist of the National Council of Churches, sees little prospect of a change in the near future. The United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., however, is seeking by various means to hold the door open until a day comes when Red China may relax its hostility.

"There is an article in the constitution of every Communist nation, including China, that guarantees freedom of religion," Reverend Merwin said.

"And in China, there never was the active effort to suppress the church as there was in the early days of Soviet communism. Nevertheless, the fact is, churches in China exist by the grace of the government, and church-to-state relationships are far from ideal."

Rev. Archie Crouch, spokesman for the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., said it hopes to make contact with the churches in China through various ecumenical channels, such as the World Council of Churches.

Reverend Crouch said the church in which Presbyterians were most interested is the Church of Christ in China, made up of 17 Protestant denominations, primarily Presbyterian, which had missionaries in China until the Communist revolution forced them all out.

The Church of Christ is the largest single church in China, but there also are many Baptist, Lutheran and Roman Catholic churches.

Council To Hear Conservative, Catholic Views

Roman Catholic and conservative Protestant views will be heard along with those of the World Council of Churches at the annual U.S. council meeting Wednesday through Friday at Buck Hill Falls, Pa.

Major ecumenical developments in the United States and the "church and peace" will be the two general themes under discussion.

Carl F. H. Menry, editor of "Christianity Today," conservative Protestant periodical, and Rev. John Sheerlin, editor of the "Catholic World," will deliver addresses on ecumenical developments.

Eugene L. Smith, executive secretary of the World Council of Churches in the United States, will speak for member churches of the U.S. conference.

'The Parable'

A film "The Parable" will be shown at 8 p.m. Tuesday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, with members of St. Raphael's Roman Catholic, First Methodist, First Presbyterian and Trinity Lutheran churches of San Rafael invited to view the movie.

Clergy, Laymen Bring Church Back To Life

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—St. George's Episcopal Church in the West End of Louisville was on its last legs.

It had opened in 1912 and by 1945 had 250 members, mostly white. Then the whites began moving to the suburbs. Membership shrank to 20 and the church was put up for sale.

One night in May, 1964, Negro teen-agers broke into the gymnasium. That incident sparked a new life for St. George's.

The Urban Mission Council, newly formed of priests and laymen from city churches, saw an opportunity for service.

St. George's became a council project.

The gym and adjoining yellow-brick church were refurbished. Youths now play basketball there, often without supervision.

"We've never had any trouble," says Rev. Charles B. Tachau, the minister. Dances are held each week. They had to be stopped for a while because the gym could accommodate only 300 and 600 were attending

A boys club for 70 youths, aged 8 to 14, meets in the basement which, with help of the Salvation Army, has been equipped with pool tables, table tennis and handicraft facilities.

Rooms adjoining the gym, used for church school and coffee hours on Sunday, are sites for story hours for younger children on Saturday mornings.

Above them is a large room used by the Volunteers in Service to America, the domestic Peace Corps, and a community organizer for the federal anti-poverty program.

The church now has about 60 members, about 35 Negroes and 25 whites. Average attendance is 55-60.

"If we are interested in them, they are interested in us," said the Rt. Rev. Robert Estill, who organized the Urban Mission Council shortly after he became dean of Christ Church Cathedral. He also is chairman of the Kentucky Human Relations Commission.

The first step of the council was to appoint a group of laymen from other parishes to work with St. George's. Many of them still attend services there.

"The whole message of metropolis is interdependence." Dean Estill said. "The people in the suburbs beyond the express way are just as involved as the man living under the express way and looking up at it. In many cases they can do more because they are part of the power structure. They must come back in and do something about the problems of the inner-city."

Cardinal Asks For Volunteers

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Joseph Cardinal Ritter sent a "challenging" letter to pastors in his Archdiocese of St. Louis. He wanted to know if the priests would like to serve in a poor parishes.

"I realize," the cardinal said, "how unusual it is to suggest that pastors of established parishes, where they have labored perhaps for many years, might consider making such a request."

Cardinal Ritter said "many pastors who have reduced the running of their parish to a comfortable, if demanding, routine should be given a chance to volunteer for the new challenge of the apostolate to the poor and the oppressed."

Integration Said Difficult To Continue

PHILADELPHIA—Most integrated churches face a future of re-segregation, or an entirely Negro membership, contend the authors of a new study book from the Methodist Board of Missions.

The primary problem is residential segregation, according to Rev. Robert L. Wilson and Rev. James H. Davis, research and survey executives for the board in Philadelphia, Pa.

They found that "once racial change begins, the average urban neighborhood tends to complete the cycle from all white to all Negro," rather than to stabilize with an inter-racial population. The only exception was in cities with a major institution, such as a university, which provides a continuing white housing market.

It is only during the period of transition, "when the values of the culture conflict with those of the church (that) the congregation develops a sense of unity and mission." Before and after trransition, the "white church" or the "Negro church" tend to be "comfortably a part of the culture," according to the book.

The book warns churches against taking a survey to learn whether members favor or oppose Negroes in the church and warns against passing resolutions on the subject. Resolutions which exclude Negroes "are harmful," it declares, while those which welcome them "are of doubtful value unless the congregation follows its statement of purpose with definite action."

VALUES
HAVE NEVER BEEN BETTER
AND
LOOK AT THIS SELECTION OF CHOICE LISTINGS!!

A-FRAME
Just listed, this unique little hillsider is a real winner. Luxurious throughout, with parquet floors, built-in electric kitchen, a Swedish fireplace, and a big deck with lots of glass. Brand new! Our exclusive at $19,750.

TERRA LINDA
This delightful contemporary home has a real working (and playing) relationship with its big fenced private lot. Separate fun yard for the kids. Interior has luxurious paneling and carpeting in mint condition, built-in kitchen, family room. Three bedrooms, 2 baths, lots of storage and utility space. In recreation district. Defies comparison at $28,500.

OLD MARIN
Shingled cottage at the end of a little lane with tall trees. Level and close to town, but private! Newly refurbished, and in perfect condition. Large modernized kitchen with built-ins, two bedrooms, panelled living rooms with brick fireplace. Wide veranda. $23,950.

TOP BUY
Three-year-old hilltop home with a vast view and a huge wrap-around deck. 1100 square feet of living space includes huge living/dining room with fireplace, two big bedrooms, G.E. kitchen, eBamed ceilings. Garage. Good exposure with full sun. A steal at $21,950. Terms.

A CHEAPIE
Narrow as an arrow, this hillsider is perfect for one person or two thin ones. Actually, a great deal of charm and privacy, and certainly value. One bedroom, den, efficiency kitchen, and a bathtub on legs. 10% down, low closing costs. Big view. $13,950.

ARTIST'S STUDIO
The big separate studio at the rear of the sunny level lot is the special feature of this one! In a top weather area with lots of room for outdoor living. Nice two-bedroom home with a brick fireplace and a big deck. Expandable, $24,500.

FAIRFAXER
Lovely Cascades setting with level secluded lot surrounding a charming brown rustic home with cathedral ceilings, quarry tile kitchen and dining area, and pegged plank floors in the huge living room. Two bedrooms, 2 baths, a full basement. Older, but in fine shape. Just reduced to $19,950.

CORTE MADERA
We're so proud of this one that we're having an "open house" this Sunday from one to five. The address is 624 Corte Madera Avenue, and you'll love it! On a big ½ acre lot with a big view, the design and workmanship of this contemporary home are superlative. Four bedrooms, 3 baths, separate dining room, and a custom kitchen. Family room/dining area. Big decks and full sun on the level patio.

EASY STREET
Close-in legal duplex on a big level lot with four-car parking. Solid older structure with two pleasant two-bedroom units, perfectly maintained. Rents total $222 per month, so the income is tops for the price, or you can live in one and let the other make a major portion of the payments. Exclusive! $23,750.

OAK MANOR
One of the nicest in this choice area. A nearly-new quality-built non-tract beauty with three bedrooms, 2 baths, 2 fireplaces, a family room, and a real feeling of HOME. The view is wide across unspoiled oak-studded hills and valleys. Big two-car garage. Priced most properly at $29,500.

BIG LEVEL LOT
10,000 square feet of level land provide the setting for this quality-built home. Light and sunny, with a pleasant outlook, there are three bedrooms, 1½ baths, a dining room, and a big bright kitchen. Well-located, just a few level blocks from shopping and transportation. $31,900.

YOUNG MARIN
A home in the contemporary idiom with a view that reads like a Japanese landscape painting. Interior warmth from the wide plank flooring, tall modular windows. Three bedrooms, 2 baths, combination family/dining room area. Two years old. Expandable. Big wide deck and perfect weather and exposure. New listing. Non-tract. $26,950.

LOMA VERDE
Just two years old, this delightful ranch-style home is immaculate. Four big bedrooms, 2 luxurious baths, plush wall-to-wall carpeting, dream kitchen, and many custom extras. Big lot with mature landscaping and an elegant rock garden. Oversized two-car garage. $33,500.

SHIBUI
Here's a home with warmth and personality in abundance. Huge L-shaped living room with sunny view deck and an adjacent shade garden. Beautiful all-electric kitchen, 2 large bedrooms. Property is expensively landscaped in easy-care gardens, and the nearly new house is perfectly maintained. See it today! $24,950.

SMALL WONDER
A tight-running small home up in the hills on a view lot. Just a few years old and in better than new condition. One huge bedroom. Just enough space to lighten your spirits, but not so much that you become a slave to maintenance. Charming living room with raised hearth fireplace. View windows onto sunny deck. Built in kitchen. Covered carport. $21,000.

COLONIAL MANSION
The most beautiful house in San Rafael's choice Dominican area! Four bedrooms, 3½ baths, formal living room, formal dining room, a 20 x 30 paneled library, butler's pantry . . . everything it takes to live and entertain well! 20 x 40 heated pool set in a lovely garden. Just reduced to $79,500, which makes it the buy of the year!

CAPE COD
Charming two-story family home, across the street from Coleman school. Good central hall plan. Beautiful private garden with creek at rear. With a little painting and decorating, this house could have value way beyond its modest price. Great big family room, FOUR bedrooms, two baths. First time advertised! $29,950.

WANT TO BUILD?

Home Buyers . . . Read This!!

ONE GREAT AMERICAN SAID: . . The Renter who sings "HOME SWEET HOME" is kidding himself and serenading the landlord. Rent money once handed over is gone forever, but the money you put in "REAL ESTATE" is still yours. It changes form . . . It becomes PROPERTY instead of gold and simply passes from your right pocket to your left.

Bay Sparkles Near Tiburon And Belvedere

Trees cover the eastern slopes of the Tiburon Peninsula at the southern part of Paradise Cove, while the ridge is a grassy area once used for grazing dairy herds. In the foreground at the left is the Net Depot, once operated by the Navy but now the location of research facilities of the U.S. Department of Mines and the U.S. Division of Fish and Wildlife. Beyond the peninsula is Belvedere Island, connected with Tiburon by the Lagoon area. Richardson Bay extends from the southern tip of Belvedere Island to the right. Across Richardson Bay is Sausalito, with the Golden Gate Bridge to San Francisco visible in the background. The road on the Tiburon Peninsula which can be seen prominently in the foreground is Paradise Drive. (Photo by Aero Photographers)

Dodgers Nip Cubs; Phillies, Cards, Alanta Also Win

By MIKE RATHET

Don Drysdale went twice as far as Sandy Koufax, but neither has gone as far as Jim Lefebvre.

A batboy for the Los Angeles Dodgers seven years ago, their second baseman and the Rookie of the Year in the National League last year, Lefebvre has gone right to the top this year—as the leading slugger in the majors.

The 23-year-old switch-hitter pulled Drysdale off the hook last night by slamming his fourth homer in three games, a three-run shot in the eighth inning that carried the world champions to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Lefebvre, who hit two homers Thursday night, now leads the majors in that department as well as runs batted in, with eight, and has compiled a .467 batting average by connecting for seven hits in 15-at-bats.

He has collected all but one of the Dodgers' homers this season, and already has accumulated one-third of the number of homers he hit last year when he batted .250.

Drysdale, meanwhile, made his first start of the season after his 32-day holdout, and proved more effective than Koufax. Where Koufax surrendered five runs in three innings Wednesday in his first start, Drysdale lasted six innings while giving up eight hits — all singles — and only two runs.

Another holdout, San Francisco's Bob Shaw, went 5 1-3 innings in his debut but beat Drysdale and Koufax to the victory circle by getting credit for the triumph as the Giants whipped Houston 6-2.

Roger Craig became the majors' biggest winner by posting his second victory as Philadelphia edged Cincinnati 4-3. St. Louis continued its mastery over Pittsburgh at Forbes Field by subduing the Pirates 9-2, and Atlanta added to the Mets history by edging the New Yorkers 3-2.

Drysdale was touched for two runs in the second inning on three hits, a balk, a hit batter and sacrifice flies by Randy Hundley and Don Kessinger. The Dodgers, meanwhile, were unable to do anything with Dick Ellsworth until the seventh when Ron Fairly singled and moved around on an error by the Cubs starter and Nate Oliver's grounder.

Then in the eighth Wes Parker doubled off reliever Ted Abernathy, Fairly drew a walk and Lefebvre followed with his homer, putting the Dodgers and himself on top.

Craig, working in relief of Jim Bunning, got the victory for the Phillies when they battered former teammate Jack Baldschun for two runs in the ninth inning.

Baldschun came on for Reds' starter Sammy Ellis, who had allowed only four hits, and immediately ran into trouble when Cookie Rojas singled. A wild pitch and Clay Dalrymple's single produced the tying run. Then a walk and John Briggs' single brought the winner in.

The Cardinals tied the major league record for such things by beating the Pirates for the 18th straight time on Pittsburgh's home grounds.

Bob Gibson pitched a six-hitter and struck out 10 while the Cardinals supported him with a 13-hit attack that included two-run homers by Alex Johnson and Lou Brock.

The Mets lost their home opener for the fifth straight year although Cleon Jones did his best, throwing a runner out at the plate and then hitting a homer in the eighth inning for a 2-1 lead.

But the Braves struck in the ninth against Jack Fisher, scoring two runs on a double by Joe Torre, Lee Thomas' single, a throwing error by Jones and Denis Menke's squeeze bunt.

It's September In April For Haller

Tom Haller worked out by swinging a heavy bat much of the past winter, and the lighter one he swings now seems just as menacing to pitchers opposing the San Francisco Giants.

The big catcher, who usually enjoys his best hitting during September, hit the ball at a .469 clip during spring training. In his first four regular season games he's at .357.

His three-run homer last night off Dick Farrell, a smash traveling at least 400 feet and far over the fence in right-center, drove in three runs as the Giants beat Houston 6-2 at Candlestick Park.

That boosted his RBI total to five for the infant season.

"Let's hope it continues," quietly commented the former University of Illinois quarterback who has been more noted for great defensive play than hitting during his career with the Giants which started in 1961.

"I hope I can stay in this pattern and hit the ball hard."

Before the season started, Tom had said, "I'll just have to convince myself it's September all season. Practicing striding and swinging with that heavy bat may have helped a little."

Right-hander Juan Marichal, who beat Chicago on a three-hitter in the season's opener, opposed the Astros and Dave Giusti today. Tomorrow it will be Bob Bolin for the Giants against veteran Barry Latman for Houston.

Willie Mays passed another milestone last night and he didn't linger long. In the first inning, he scored the 1,500th run of his illustrious career. In the third he tallied No. 1,501 ahead of Haller's homer.

Bob Shaw, who held out 33 days, pitched the victory although needing help from Frank Linzy in the sixth.

Shaw signed for an estimated $43,000 on April 2 and saw his first spring action the following day. He started against the Astros with only seven frames of spring hurling behind him.

"I'm just about the way I am at the beginning of any season," Shaw commented. "I have a tendency to be real tight at the beginning of a year."

Answering a question, he said, "I could go nine full innings my next time out. It's just a matter of getting in a groove.

I worked out hard from Jan. 15 on. Now it's a matter of relaxing and getting better timing.

"In this game, I felt just about the way I thought I'd feel . . . so-so."

Shaw found himself in trouble with one run in and the bases full with two outs in the first inning. After a 3-1 count on Jim Gentile, he got the big first baseman on a ground out.

Gentile failed that time but hit safely his other three times at bat.

HAZARDOUS—Walt Hazard of Los Angeles scores on driving layup as the Lakers downed the St. Louis Hawks 130-121 last night in final Western Division game in National Basketball Assn. playoffs. (UPI telephoto)

Lakers Win; Battle Celtics Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (AP)— "We have our reservations in Boston and we're ready for them," said Los Angeles Laker coach Fred Schaus in the crowded, noisy dressing room.

The Lakers had just won the National Basketball Assn.'s Western Division title, beating the St. Louis Hawks, 130-121, in the final game of their best-of-seven series.

And now the Lakers move to Boston where their best-of-seven playoff for the NBA title begins tomorrow against the defending champion Celtics.

A capacity crowd of 15,200 jammed the Sports Arena here last night to watch the deciding contest, and the fans saw still another even match in the give-and-take series.

But in the end, it was Laker stars Jerry West and Elgin Baylor who made the difference. West led all scorers with 35 points, and Baylor was right behind with 33.

Significantly, of the Lakers' 39 points in the final period, Baylor contributed 14 and West 13.

"It helps to have great pros like West and Baylor on your side when you need some clutch points to be made," said Schaus in something of an understatement. "They make the shots and get the rebounds when you need them the most."

Richie Guerin, player-coach of the Hawks, praised the Lakers and at the same time, complimented his club.

"The Lakers proved they are a great team and I think they have a good chance against the Celtics," Guerin said. "I can't ask my players for any more than they gave me. They did a great job and they're going to be a good team for many years."

The Hawks were led by veteran Cliff Hagan, who closed out a brilliant 10-year pro career, with 29 points. Bill Bridges scored 23, Joe Caldwell 21 and Guerin 20.

Behind West and Baylor for the Lakers were Rudy LaRusso, who hit for 20 points, and Walt Hazzard, who added 19.

The Lakers took an early lead, but Hagan brought the Hawks back to a 24-24 tie, and two jumpers by Caldwell gave St. Louis a 28-27 lead at the end of the period.

The game continued evenly to intermission, with St. Louis preserving its tenuous margin, 58-57.

In the third period, Hazzard and LaRusso sparked the Lakers to a 75-70 spread at one time, but the Hawks came back again to tie 91-91 as the fourth quarter opened.

Then Baylor and West took charge, giving the Lakers their fourth western division title in six years in Los Angeles.

LIGHTS OUT AT G. G. RACE TRACK

ALBANY (AP) — Electricians worked through the night trying to get Golden Gate Fields ready for today's nine races after a power failure yesterday sent everyone home after the fourth race.

It was the second power failure of the season, although the first one when the track opened for the spring was foiled by the use of auxiliary power.

The auxiliary was not good enough yesterday. A switch blew out in the main transformer before the program began. Although the power was restored briefly between the third and fourth races, it quickly went out again.

Management surrendered at this point, giving the 8,497 fans rain checks on the sunniest and hottest day of the year.

A total of $357,985 was wagered on the four races. On April 1, the last Friday races were held at the track, a total of $851,544 was wagered on the nine races.

Track management said the track could have operated through nine races but that the parimutuel clerks did not want to work in half darkness under auxiliary power for more than three races.

Brewer Sets Pace, But Par Still Puzzles The Champs

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gay Brewer led the way into the third round of the $100,000 Tournament of Champions today but the mystery of this golf show was the absence of wreckage on par.

The 34-year-old Brewer, a Kentuckian who plays out of Dallas, held a two-stroke lead over his nearest challengers with a 36-hole score of 70-69-139. Bill Casper Jr. of Peacock Gap, San Rafael, the first round co-leader with Brewer, and Dudley Wysong were tied at 141—Casper with 70-71 and the 26-year-old Wysong, from McKinney, Tex., 71-70.

Arnold Palmer was five shots off the front end in his bid to win the tournament for the second straight year, with 74-70-144, a score he shared with Lionel Hebert.

Jack Nicklaus, the pre-tournament favorite, was eight strokes back of Brewer, and so were Gary Player and Joe Campbell. Nicklaus and Player had scores of 76-71—147 and Campbell had 74-73—147.

Deadlocked at 143 were Bruce Crampton, Frank Beard and PGA champion Dave Marr, while Doug Sanders and Bobby Nichols occupied the 145 berth.

Brewer, who last weekend tied with Nicklaus and Tommy Jacobs after 72 holes in the Masters and finished third in the playoff behind Nicklaus, had this philosophy about yesterday's round:

"I concentrated on not making bogeys," said Brewer.

Brewer hit into the water hazard on the 17th hole for a bogey five or his leading margin would be greater. It was his only bad shot of the afternoon.

Wysong drove into the rough and took a bogey five on No. 18 or he would be alone in second place.

Australia's Bruce Crampton was four strokes under par until he suffered bogeys on the final three holes and he wound up with a 71 for 143.

As for the intriguing part of the tournament, after 36 holes of play, only six pros were under par 144. A year ago, there were an even dozen. This time, only three have broken 70. Last year the figure was 12.

The pros blamed it on the tall and tenacious rough and the inconsistency of the greens.

Anaheim Seeks AFL Team; Leahy Coach

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Southern California group has filed incorporation papers in hopes of getting an American Football League franchise, with former Notre Dame great Frank Leahy as coach and general manager.

The group, Orange County Empire Football Inc., said the professional team would play in the new Anaheim Stadium opened this season for baseball by the California Angels of the American League.

A spokesman said Leahy has been signed to a five-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

Leahy, 57, coached for 11 years at Notre Dame with a record of 107 wins, 13 losses and nine ties. He retired in 1953.

The AFL announced last January it plans to expand into the greater Los Angeles and Chicago areas for the 1967 season. It is expected to decide in June who will get the franchise.

Three other groups are said to be bidding for the franchise in Southern California.

Bruce Werlhof, Santa Ana attorney and a leader of the incorporation drive, said if the group wins the franchise, actor John Wayne has promised to buy stock and probably would serve as chairman of the board.

Werlhof said Wayne's son, Michael Wayne, is one of the corporation's directors.

Leahy has worked in the insurance and stocks fields since leaving football. He lives in Portland, Ore.

"I finally deduced that I've missed coaching tremendously," said Leahy in explaining his acceptance of the group's offer. "It's left a tremendous void in my life."

Werlhof said the organization was incorporated with capital of $7.5 million.

Leahy said Anaheim Stadium could hold 60,000 fans and called it "the finest dual-purpose facility in America."

New Goalie For Seals

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP)—Marcel Pelletier, a 38 - year - old goalie who gets around, can be used tonight by the San Francisco Seals when they meet the Victoria Maple Leafs in the second game of their Lester Patrick playoff.

The other three teams in the Western Hockey League postseason playoff gave permission Thursday for the Seals to use Pelletier if they so desired. Pelletier is the reserve goalie in the playoffs for the four teams.

The Seals tried amateur Bob Gray in the nets Tuesday against Victoria in the first of the best-of-seven series and the Maple Leafs won 6-3.

Their regular goalie, Jack McCartan, was injured with seven games to go in the season and the Seals obtained Joe Daley from Memphis. But Daley was ruled ineligible for the playoffs after leading the Seals to six victories in those seven contests.

San Rafael, Novato Baseballers Win

Bulldogs Trip Up Redwood

San Rafael High School's baseballers won their second straight Marin Athletic League game yesterday at Albert Park and handed Redwood its third straight loss. Final score was 6-4.

After Rick Schau, Rocky Shone, Paul Shelley and Jim Magliulo each knocked in a run to help San Rafael to a 6-1 lead, Redwood's Len Pieri blasted a three-run homer in the top of the seventh to give the Bulldogs a scare.

Joe Cunningham picked up the win for San Rafael, although he needed help from Bill Joost to get the last man out.

San Rafael Nine Goes For Record

Litchfield's semi-pro baseballers from San Rafael will be trying to make San Francisco AAA Winter League history tomorrow when they take on the Montrose Chemical nine at Funston's Garrigan diamond, 2 p.m. in the last game of the season.

A win for the Marin team, which has already clinched the league title, will make it the first to ever go through the rough AAA league without a loss. Litchfield's has been tied twice this season, but never beaten.

Scheduled to start on the mound for Litchfield's is southpaw Bob DeRosa who has been too much for enemy batters so far this year. He has not given up an earned run in his 31 innings of work, has allowed only four singles, while striking out 27 batters.

Leading batters for the Marin nine are Doug Wilson, .461; Alex Barrett, .430, and Joe Panella, .414.

Ex-Drake Star Is Now A Coach

Dick DeBisschop, 26, former star at Drake High and then later at Oregon State University, will be an assistant football coach at Treasure Valley Community College at Ontario, Ore.

DeBisschop, the only football player from Drake High who played in the California North-South game, will teach mathematics in addition to his defensive line coaching job.

A 1958 graduate of Drake, DeBisschop lettered in football, basketball and track for two years there. At Oregon State, he played for Tommy Prothro's football teams in 1960, '61 and '62.

He is married to the former Michele Morrison of Ione, Ore., and they have a son, Bobby, 17 months old.

Tryouts Slated For Swim Club

The San Rafael Swim Club, last year's Marin County champion, will hold tryouts for its novice team next Wednesday, 4:30 p.m., at the San Rafael High School pool. Boys and girls 6 through 17 are eligible.

The novice team, cosponsored by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department, will be entered in the Marin County Swim League, while the San Rafael Swim Club AAU team hopes to repeat as champ of the Redwood Empire Swimming League.

Softballers Set Doubleheader

Two entries in last year's State Softball Finals will battle in Marin tomorrow when Sohner Tree Service hosts Half Moon Bay Inn in a 2 p.m. doubleheader at San Anselmo's Memorial Park.

The perennially-strong Half Moon Bay club has won its first six games this season and is once again expected to be a strong threat for state honors.

Gary and Morey Swarm, Sohner's answer to the Dynamic Duo, are expected to handle most of the pitching chores against the invaders.

Hornets Win 1-0 Over Drake

John Youngs' triple in the fifth inning knocked across the only run of the game yesterday as the Novato Hornets nipped the Drake Pirates 1-0 in a sun drenched baseball game at Novato.

Mark Moore, Novato catcher, worked a walk from Drake hurler Roy Bunt in the fifth inning, and Phil Jones went in to run for Moore. Young followed with a 325-foot triple in right center to score Jones with the winning run.

Novato southpaw John Dolinsek threw a four-hitter to get the win.

College Of Marin Swimmers Lose A Close One

College of Marin's outmanned but talented swimming team lost a narrow 43-48 decision to West Valley College at San Jose Thursday.

Highlighting the meet for Marin were two school record performances: Breaststroker Bill Pandiani swam the 200-yard event in 2 minutes, 30.2 seconds, breaking his own record by 3.8 seconds; and the medley relay team of Dean Ferrandini, Pandiani, Tom Knopf and Bill Anderson streaked 400 yards in 3:56.1, shaving 1.3 seconds off the school mark the same quartet set earlier this year.

The medley team's 3:56.1 was the second fastest time in Northern California junior college competition this year. Foothill College has done 3:48.0.

Other Marin winners Thursday were Steve Hoxie in the 200 free (2:09.9) and 500 free (5:47.5), Ken Jones in the 50 free (24.9) and Knopf in the 200 butterfly (2:11.1).

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, April 16, the 106th day of 1966 with 259 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase; the morning star is Venus; the evening star is Jupiter.

American inventor of the airplane, Wilbur Wright, was born on this day in 1867.

On this day in history:

In 1862, Congress abolished slavery in the District of Columbia.

In 1889, Charlie Chaplin, the movie actor and producer, was born on this day in London.

In 1947, a French freighter carrying nitrates exploded at a dock in Texas City, Tex., setting off a series of explosions and raging fires that killed more than 500 persons.

In 1962, three Roman Catholic segregationists in Louisiana were excommunicated.

A thought for the day—U.S. President Franklin Roosevelt said: "The truth is found when men are free to pursue it."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Wrong Response To Opener Leads Only To Crying Towel

Some bridge players keep an axe near the bridge table to use on people who talk too much about the importance of the opening lead.

That makes it safe to talk about declarer's play at the first trick, after an opponent has made the opening lead.

Opening lead — ♣ 10

Put yourself in the South seat, playing at four spades against the opening lead of the ten of clubs.

With any other lead you could knock out the ace of trumps and play the rest of the hand in solid comfort.

WHERE TO WIN

Against the club lead you cannot afford to draw trumps. But first you must decide where to win the first trick.

If you win the first trick with the king of clubs in your own hand, you will find the crying towel right behind the bar.

You won't make four spades. The opponents can get a trick in each suit if they defend properly.

BEST PLAY

You can make four spades if you win the first club in dummy and lead hearts at once.

West refuses the first heart trick but must take the second. When West then leads another club, you are able to win in your own hand.

This leaves you in position to cash the king of hearts and discard dummy's losing club.

Only then can you afford to touch the trumps.

You can limit the loss to one trump, one heart and one diamond.

If you win the first club in your hand and then tackle hearts, West holds off one trick and leads another club.

You must win in dummy and cannot get to your hand to cash the third heart.

The opponents get their club trick, and you are down one.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♡ A 8 4 2
◇ J 9 8 3
♣ 10 9 7 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

You have only 5 points in high cards, but your singleton is worth another 3 points in support when you have four of partner's trump suit. This is enough for a raise.

Block Island Wrecks Removed For Scrap

NEW SHOREHAM, R.I. (AP) — It's spring cleaning time on Block Island.

All unwanted used and abandoned cars will be brought to the island's shores where a barge, complete with crane and wrecking equipment will chop them up and haul away the wreckage to a mainland scrap yard. It's all part of a plan to beautify Rhode Island.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Some Substances Can Substitute Satisfactorily For Whole Blood

VAN DELLEN

V.P. writes: "If there are cheaper substitutes for blood transfusions, would it not be better and wiser to use them? I cannot help thinking that transfusions spread disease. And besides, you don't know whose blood is running in your veins for the rest of your life."

An inexpensive substitute for blood does not make it better or more suitable for the illness. Sugar or saline solutions, valuable when dehydration is a problem, do not take the place of blood when the individual is bleeding.

THERE IS no substitute for an exchange transfusion for babies born with an Rh problem (erythroblastosis fetalis). The same can be said of a transfusion in open heart surgery. Each procedure requires many units of blood to keep the artificial heart-lung pump going.

Blood can be separated into its components. "Packed" cells are obtained by removing the liquid from whole blood. The red cell mass that remains is used in certain types of anemia. The liquid portion (plasma) is employed in shock and malnutrition, especially in debilitated patients who need surgery.

OUR READER may refer to plasma substitutes such as dextran, serum albumin, and PVP (polyvidone) that are frequently used to combat shock. Dextran also is used in open heart surgery to minimize the number of blood transfusions required to prime the pump. These popular substitutes are used when indicated.

Diseases such as hepatitis can be spread by transfusions. This is minimized when donors are carefully selected and great care is taken in the removal and storage of the vital fluid.

Whole blood that is stored too long is likely to be contaminated and many blood banks separate the plasma from the cells by the 10th day of storage. The plasma can be kept for months and after a half year is essentially free from the risk of transmitting serum hepatitis.

Ralph M. Brown Lifted The Curtain Of Secrecy

RALPH M. BROWN's place in California's history is firmly established.

He was the father of the Brown (anti-secrecy) Act, which the State Legislature some years ago formally designated as the Ralph M. Brown Act so there would be no mistake about who was honored in the naming.

When he died a week ago today at the age of 57, Ralph Brown had not yet achieved his full potential in California history. With a little political luck he might yet have become attorney general or possibly even governor.

ALTHOUGH HE WAS a registered Democrat, he was the State Assembly's last bi-partisan or non-partisan Speaker. When Jesse Unruh succeeded Brown, minority party members were relegated almost to nothing in the Assembly's power structure.

At the peak of his influence in the Legislature Brown chose not to seek reelection again from his home district (Stanislaus County). He wasn't able to conceal the reluctance with which he reached that decision; it was purely a matter of money. In fairness to his family he decided he just could not continue on a legislator's pay. His two law partners—his father and his brother-in-law—had died. With his absences in Sacramento, the Brown law firm just ceased to exist.

When Governor Brown offered him appointment to the Appeals Court bench at Fresno several years ago, Ralph Brown just couldn't say "no."

So he withdrew from the field of active politics.

But many of his friends and admirers in both parties confidently expected that someday, somehow an opportunity would present itself to him—the opportunity to serve in one of the highest offices of our state.

Now his untimely death of a heart attack has removed him from the scene.

HIS ASSOCIATION WITH the birth of the Ralph B. Brown (open meeting) Act was in keeping with his views on public questions.

He tended to see issues in their simplest terms.

He once was the victim of injustice as the result of a closed meeting of a county Board of Supervisors.

To Ralph Brown the matter was quite simple.

If Boards of Supervisors (along with city councils, school boards and other local legislative bodies) are in truth doing the public's business, they should transact it—all of it—in public.

It was as simple as that.

HIS MEANS OF getting the law onto the books was necessarily not so simple and direct.

When he became chairman of the powerful Assembly Judiciary Committee, he caused his committee to conduct exhaustive research into the subject. Lengthy hearings were held. The resultant findings turned out to be just what he expected. Except for protecting innocent employees from publication of irresponsible accusations, there was no place for secrecy in the conduct of local governmental affairs by the people's elected representatives.

At one time or another since then his law has come under criticism by organizations of office holders (League of California Cities, supervisors association, school trustees association, and so on).

In each instance, the legislature has come to the same conclusion that Ralph Brown and his committee came to years ago:

There isn't any real justification nor is it in the public's interest to conceal the acts of local elected representatives by a curtain of secrecy.

Additional Brown Act legislation later brought a measure of open meeting requirements to most state boards and commissions.

IT IS TRAGIC that Ralph M. Brown did not live to reach his full potential on the California political scene.

His kind don't come along often.

A Pink Cloud Of Quince

A pinkish-cream cloud of quince blossoms hangs over our back fence each April. They resemble apple blossoms, but somehow seem a little bit larger.

The tree is ancient, having been on the place long before we moved in 20 years ago. It has been mutilated and uncared for, neglected and untouched by sprays which are saved for finer fruit trees.

But it surpasses them all during spring blooming time. And each autumn the quince literally hangs heavy with its large, yellow, woody fruit.

At least, it tries!

Bouquets And No Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Donald Dixon of San Rafael, a senior at Sonoma State College, for winning an internship in public affairs by the Coro Foundation.

A BOUQUET to first grader Steig Klein of San Rafael for winning the Marin Museum Association's county-wide art appreciation contest.

BOUQUETS to three Marin youths for winning scholarships from the California Bankers Assn. The three are George D. Grossi of Novato, Michael D. Maloney of Fallon and Eric E. Angress of Marshall.

A BOUQUET to the weatherman for turning on some real "spring fever" weather.

BOUQUETS to San Francisco State College students for giving time and patience to tutor youngsters in the Sausalito School District.

A BOUQUET to Scott Bulfinch of Novato High School for winning the county finals in a speech contest sponsored by the Lions Clubs of Marin County. He will compete next week against the winner of the Sonoma County finals.

BOUQUETS to the Tomales High School faculty salary committee on its frank appraisal of existing salaries. The committee asked no increase in salary this year because of a pay raise granted last year.

FIND MEANING IN YOUR JOB

Why do some people dislike their jobs and quit? And why are others happy in their work and stay?

Researchers from the University of Michigan surveyed 2,500 skilled workers and came up with these five basic factors affecting one's attitude toward his job:

1. Achievement—The need to feel one has done something worthwhile or important.

2. Recognition—The need to feel one's accomplishments are made known to others.

3. Autonomy—The need to feel one has power over one's actions and has an area of prime responsibility.

4. Affiliation—The need to be related to people, to have friends and to be in communication with others.

5. Evaluation—The need to feel that the standards for judging one's performance are reasonable.

The Lord expects you to seek just conditions for yourself, not only at work, but also in the family, in organizations and in community projects.

But you should also seek ways to bring out the best in others by promoting such conditions for them, too.

"I must do the works of Him Who sent me while it is day; night is coming, when no one can work." (John 9:4)

May I add holy purpose to all that I think, say and do, O Lord.

Most Cities Staged Easter Egg Hunts

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Saturday, April 9, the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department held its first annual Youth Easter Egg Hunt, co-sponsored by the San Anselmo Lions Club.

Although it was one of many Easter Egg Hunts held in Marin County on Saturday, threatening weather didn't stop 1350 youngsters from participating in the San Anselmo event. Thus, the hunt in San Anselmo, without a doubt, had more participants than did any of the other cities.

Independent-Journal reporters and photographers were present at the event, but there was no mention of the hunt in the Independent-Journal Saturday evening. ARE YOU AWARE OF READERS IN CITIES OTHER THAN SAN RAFAEL?

As the Independent-Journal is circulated throughout the county, it is my opinion that publicity should be given to each park and recreation department — not San Rafael alone.

Something to think about?

Fair Play Committee Endorses Editorial

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The Board of Directors of Marin Committee for Fair Play adopted the following resolution at its regular meeting on April 11, 1966:

Marin Committee for Fair Play commends the affirmative aspects of the April 11, 1966 editorial in the Independent-Journal. We agree that we must not be unduly discouraged by obstacles in implementing such programs as job training and the others listed in that editorial. We agree with the editor that the violence, vandalism and resistance to police authority that occur from time to time in Marin City are in fact no worse than less publicized similar events in other parts of the county. As the editorial says, the vast majority of Marin City residents are good citizens who stand solidly on the side of law and order. A newspaper such as the Independent-Journal can do much to help the public maintain balance and perspective, and we look forward to constructive non-inflammatory reporting of the racial situation in Marin.

Young Column Has Some Force

Editor, Independent-Journal:

About 10 days ago Whitney M. Young Jr. had a column in your newspaper accusing liberals of becoming so agitated over the war in Viet Nam that they are losing their perspective on domestic liberal issues. It was a fine article. Mr. Young pointed out that Vice President Humphrey has been a leading spokesman for liberal issues, especially civil rights, for at least 20 years. This fact is being forgotten by the emotionally charged groups opposing the Viet Nam war who have attacked the Vice President. Young's words needed to be said. He also pointed out that the "hero" of those opposing the Vietnamese war, Senator Fulbright, has a long record of opposition to civil rights. And that President Johnson is waging other wars beside the one in Viet Nam, wars long overdue: against poverty, for Medicare, urban aid, aid to education, etc.

I am very unhappy about the war in Viet Nam; I am unhappy about all wars of violence, whether fought by Americans or by other human beings, but I think it is well to remember the other issues before us. Some of these issues are deeper in meaning and involve more American citizens even than the war in Asia. It is a terrible thing to kill or be killed, whether in Viet Nam or on California highways, but it might be worse to have to live without hope, respect, or recognition of one's basic human worth, as too many citizens of this country—and some in this county—are forced to do.

New Judge Exceeds Bounds On Verdict?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Judge John Kennedy, recently appointed to the San Francisco Muncipal Court, appears to have ruled that Marin County should relinquish its jurisdiction over all real estate south of the Alexander Avenue turnoff on the Golden Gate Freeway. Eventually, we are sure, he will try to extend his rule on traffic violations throughout Marin.

On Thursday, March 31, he found a driver guilty of motor vehicle violation that occured entirely within Marin County according to unrefuted testimony in his San Francisco Courtroom. He found the defendant guilty with the phrase "for that kind of driving in Marin."

Although it is quite normal for people to strive for more power and responsibility, no judge should arbitrarily extend his rather despotic authority across county lines at the expense of suburban jurisdiction. There must be methods of reminding him to stay in his own balliwick.

Law Enforcers Not Punch Bags

Editor, Independent-Journal:

As a resident and taxpayer of this community, I am sick and tired of the attacks and physical abuses heaped on the deputy sheriffs and firemen in Marin City. They are public servants, NOT public punching bags.

One such deputy sheriff in particular has become the target of persecution and personal harassment from this lawless band of rabble. His only defense is that he cares very much what happens to the youth of this County, as he himself is a family man. I am speaking of Deputy Sheriff Charles Prandi, an officer who has spent most of his time working successfully with juveniles.

He must not be singled out and crucified because he is doing his duty and enforcing the law. Isn't this what he is hired for?

If these chronic misfits are allowed to threaten and blackmail the citizens of this County, then we get just what we deserve.

People are going to have to speak out and back up our law enforcement or else we won't have any. Then God help us all.

Buddhist Maneuvering May Be One Of War's Strangest Tales

WASHINGTON (AP)—When the full story behind the Buddhists' maneuvering in South Viet Nam comes out it may prove to be one of the slickest pieces of Machiavellianism in our time.

The Buddhists are trying to overthrow their government. The U. S. government doesn't seem well-informed on what's going on among the Buddhists and what's driving them or, if it is, it's keeping the information to itself.

FOR THAT REASON no one seems able to say whether the Buddhist leaders are in a deal with the North Vietnamese Communists to seize the South Vietnamese government, ask the Americans to leave, and let the Reds take over.

It might appear at first, if this is what the Buddhists have in mind, that they are operating on sheer gall since this country is backing the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and has enormous forces in Viet Nam.

But they might be banking on something else to help them carry the day: divided American opinion.

When the history of these days is written the effect of what has happened here in the field of one of America's most prized possessions — freedom of speech — may appear as a strong factor in the Buddhists' thinking.

President Johnson's policy on Viet Nam has been under attack from many quarters in this country — particularly in the Senate and tse academic world — and perhaps he can't gauge its full effect on him.

FOR INSTANCE: Would he have pursued the war harder been less reluctant to bomb North Viet Nam more extensively if the critics weren't on his back? But any effect on Johnson is only part of the total possible effect of the criticism.

For example: What has been the effect of Americans' criticism of their own government on the thinking of the North Vietnamese Communists about continuing to fight?

Or on the South Vietnamese Buddhists about their chances of overturning their American-backed government and getting away with it?

JOHNSON apparently has felt confident, despite the criticism, that he had the support of a majority of Americans for his Viet Nam policy.

But the criticism here at home could leave no doubt in the minds of the Vietnamese, North and South, that American thinking was divided not only about how to wage the war but even about continuing it at all.

For instance, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said the American people are going to "repudiate this administration and they should. You just can't justify our being in war over there."

He called the U. S. position in Viet Nam "shockingly immoral" and said that if the South Vietnamese were ever to choose freely a Communist government, the United States should support it.

If you were a Vietnamese and heard that — and much more — you wouldn't be under any illusion that Americans were 100 per cent behind Johnson in trying to crush the Communists or at least force them to seek peace.

AND IF YOU were a Vietnamese, American division might seem to you a symbol of uncertainty and hesitation and therefore an inducement to action which otherwise might have seemed hopeless to you.

One Man's Answers To Hot Summer Risk

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

If the glaring failures of the McCone report highlight the gap in thinking between the white leadership and Negro slum-dwellers, another report from the U.S. Bureau of the Census highlights the striking economic gap which is at the heart of the problem.

A special study of South Los Angeles, an area which includes Watts, found one in 10 unemployed. While unemployment nationally was halved, for this section it was unchanged — and for Watts it was three times the national average. The average Watts family's purchasing power declined by $400 between 1960 and 1965 — this at a time when the typical American family's income rose by 14 percent. A third of the houses in the area were found to be substandard, yet the median monthly rental rose from $69 in 1960 to $78 in 1965.

ALTHOUGH the McCone report called for 50,000 new jobs, only 1,000 have been provided for Watts's unemployed. Despite the urgency of the situation, conditions are pretty much the same as they were before the riots. As one Watts man said, "The only time they care about us is when we start busting windows."

Another Watts man bluntly stated his despair: "Do you know what it is to get up at daybreak and spend a whole day looking for work only to be turned down because you're black . . .and on your way home some cop wants to crack your skull or put you in jail for vag . . . man, I've had it with equality and all those lies about opportunity."

Unless "those lies about opportunity" are fulfilled and proved not to be lies there will be similar explosions of rage in our cities. Almost every city in the nation teems with Negro resentment over the lack of jobs, inadequate schools, rotting housing, and police humiliation.

THUS THERE IS an urgent need for massive action to deal with the facts of slum life. First on the list of national priorities should be jobs for all who want them.

Ghetto youth should be put to work on neighborhood improvement projects and dropouts should be paid to attend all-day summer schools. These would be far from make-work projects, they would represent the imaginative harnessing of underutilized manpower to perform necessary social services.

On-the-job training programs should be stepped up, with assurances of job placement for those who qualify.

The anti-poverty program should get a massive injection of funds and eligibility requirements and other red tape restrictions should be eased. Where local politics prevent maximum utilization of funds, the Federal government should step in with programs of its own, bypassing local politicians.

SINCE ALL of the riots in recent years began with some police incident, special efforts should be made to train policemen in human relations and make them responsive to their sensitive role. Civilian review boards should be set up and, where it is politically impossible to do this by summer, local mayors should bypass established procedures to assure ghetto-dwellers that past abuses will not be allowed to continue.

THE COST should be weighed against the 34 dead, over 1,000 injured, and $40 million in property damages in Watts last summer. We cannot spend $10 billion to fight a war in Vietnam and much more than that to race to the moon, without allocating similar priority to alleviating the misery and degradation prevalent in our cities. We must realize that a national emergency exists and rise to the responsibility of dealing with it.

NOT-SO BORING ELECTIONS

Off-Year Ballot Marathon Starts

By RICHARD F. NSWCUMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Off-year elections can be a bore, unless your brother is running. But don't go away. 1966 has a good cast of characters and some acts everybody can enjoy.

The overture was played to national oblivion March 1 with an Arkansase primary for one House seat. But the first of the main acts, May 3 in Alabama, should be good watching. The Democratic primary features Lurleen Wallace and a cast of nine others for the gubernatorial nomination. Gov. George Wallace can't run again, but he's sending his wife on stage. Among the competition: Richmond Flowers, state attorney general; two former governors, John Patterson and James E. Folsom, and State Sen. Bob Gilchrist. If nobody gets a majority, the runoff is May 31.

Even then nobody is home free. Rep. James D. Martin is running strong for the Republican nomination, will probably have little opposition at the party convention in July, and might just give Alabama a Republican governor.

From now on, the state primaries roll along through every month, right up to the last one, Hamaii's on Oct. 1. Not all states have primaries; some choose candidates by party conventions. Payoff day is General Election day, Tuesday, Nov. 8. All 435 seats in the House of Representatives will be filled. Also at stake are 35 Senate seats and 35 governorships.

Taking the governorships first, the two with greatest national interest will be California and New York. They are the states with the greatest political potential on the national scene.

California offers two battles for the price of one. The primary June 7 pits Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, seeking his third term, against Samuel W. Yorty, mayor of Los Angeles, on the Democratic card. The Republicans pick from Ronald Reagan, erstwhile movie star and now spokesman for the conservative branch of the party; George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco, classed as a moderate; Warren Dorn, a Los Angeles county supervisor, and William P. Patrick, a Tiburon manufacturer. The primary winners then go against each other in the main act in November.

In New York, barring accidents, it will be Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller vs. a Democrat as yet unknown. The Democrats will choose their man in state convention, starting Sept. 7, with no lack of candidates. Eugene Nickerson, Nassau County executive, has already announced, and other names heard include Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., former New York Mayor Robert Wagner; Frank O'Connor, president of the New York City council, and several upstate leaders.

The present governorship lineup is 33 Democrats, 17 Republicans. With 20 Democratic governorships at stake, and 15 Republican, the Republicans are talking like they hope to improve their standing. Democrats might be happy to settle for the present division.

Republicans cannot hope to capture either house of Congress, but they are out to improve their score. The Senate division is now 68 Democrats, 32 Republicans. The 35 seats up for choice are 21 Democrats, 14 Republicans. The House stands 292 Democrats, 140 Republicans, 3 vacancies. The Democrats took 48 Republican seats in the Johnson sweep two years ago and have no intentions of giving them back.

Names to watch:

Edward W. Brooke, Massachusetts Republican, wants to be the first Negro elected to the Senate.

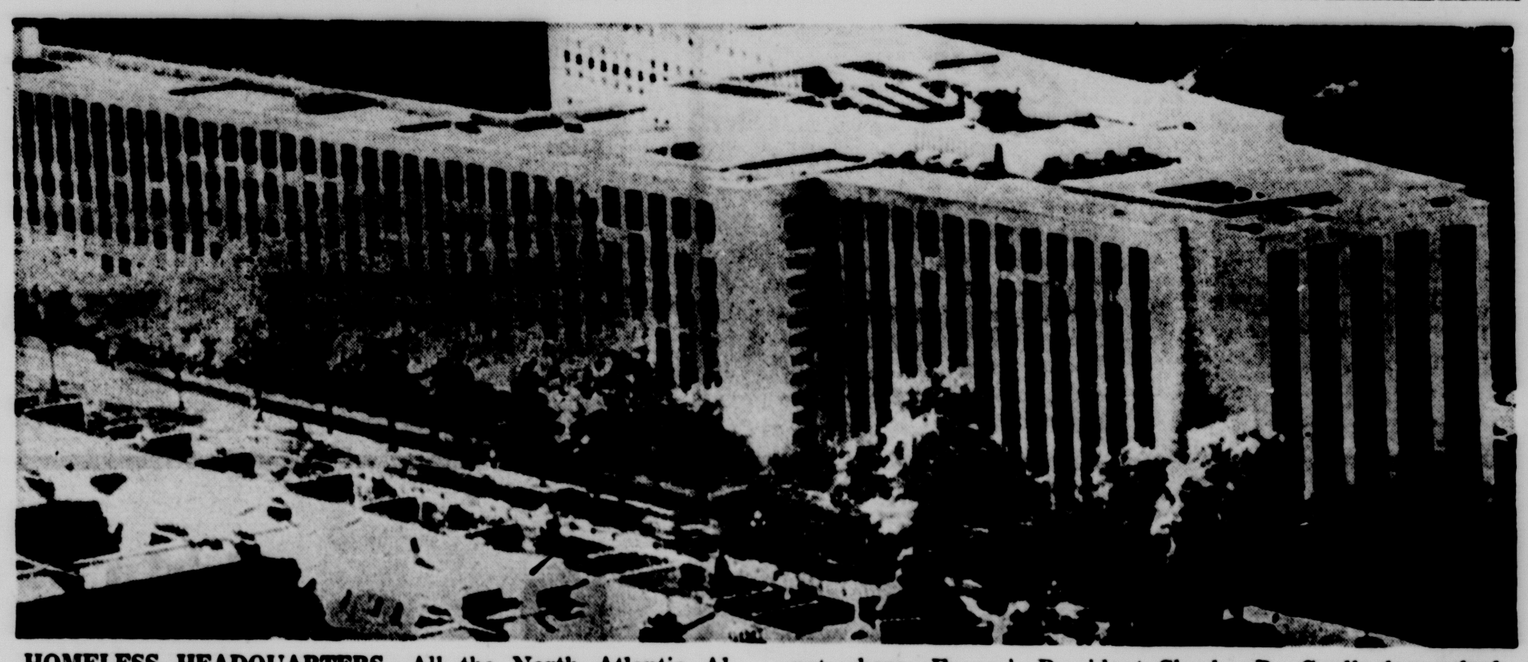
Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, a Republican. Running for the Senate, with presidential overtones in the background.

Robert Taft Jr., Ohio Republican, bearer of a famous name. Defeated for Senate in 1964, trying now for the House.

Gov. George Romney of Michigan, up for re-election, with the Republican presidential team for 1968 a possibility.

Sen. John G. Tower, up for re-election and about the last of the Texas Republicans. Democrats would like to erase him from the President's state.

Gov. Orval Faubus and Winthrop Rockefeller. Likely will go again in Arkansas. Faubus has said he won't run again "if" the Democrats come up with a strong candidate.



HOMELESS HEADQUARTERS—All the North Atlantic Allies except France are getting ready to bid farewell to this long-time headquarters at Versaille—to relocate they as yet know not where. France's President Charles De Gaulle has asked that all NATO bases be vacated by April 1, 1967, but experts doubt the keys will be surrendered that soon. (UPI Telephoto)

NATO Allies Packing Up To Move—Where?

By DONALD ZYLSTRA
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — The United States and its Atlantic allies have embarked quietly on preparations for relocating NATO military headquarters which France has ordered removed from its soil.

A remaining question is whether the United States can, or will, pull its NATO facilities and troops out of France by the next April 1, as President Charles De Gaulle wishes. America, in a note to France on Wednesday, rejected the French-suggested deadline.

Nevertheless, officials on both sides of the Atlantic indicate France's demand for removal of NATO military functions is irrevocable. Thus, the round of activity on headquarters relocation has begun—though specific details are being withheld.

Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE) is at Versailles and central group headquarters for NATO forces at Fontainbleu.

Teams of technical and political experts are examining every facility and location in western Europe that might help solve the massive relocation problem. Their efforts are concentrating in Germany, the Low Countries, and Great Britain, but have extended to Italy, Denmark and elsewhere.

New office locations will have to be found. Complex military communications networks must be readjusted and portions completely relocated and rebuilt. A new alignment is being sought for a NATO oil pipeline system now anchored in France.

Existing buildings and sites available for military headquarters are being examined, arrangement for purchase or lease investigated, and international and national legal requirements are under careful study. The cost of relocations NATO military headquarters has been estimated at $500 million to $750 million.

Faced with the prospect of abandoning a billion-dollar investment in fixed military facilities, NATO authorities want to avoid such harrassments again.

For this reason, while London continues to be considered a leading prospect for relocation of SHAPE headquarters, a site in the Netherlands or Belgium, even Luxembourg, could get the nod.

Officials shopping for a permanent location might reason that smaller nations are less inclined to be affected by future national aspirations or "prestige" considerations and thus, might offer a more permanent home than larger powers such as Britain or Germany.

United States military personnel remaining in France now total about 26,000. They and about 30,000 wives and children must also be moved before De Gaulle's deadline.

In addition to the two large NATO military headquarters sites, about 40 other U.S. bases will close. Of 10 large U.S. air bases in France, five have already been returned to the French.

One of the most important of these is Chateauroux, 70 miles south of Paris. European headquarters for the Air Force Military Airlift Command (MAC). MAC crews are dispatched from this busy base to serve all of western Europe, the Mediterranean, Middle East and Africa.

About 500 U.S. military and civilian personnel, plus many French employees, man the Chateauroux facility.

Other installations slated for early removal include six major ammunition dumps. (All nuclear weapons used for NATO defense were removed long ago at French insistence.)

The least optimistic students of De Gaulle's removal ultimatums assume the French leader will take over U.S. and NATO installations in his country without even a gesture toward payment.

Other NATO legal experts are convinced that this is one area in which careful negotiations might decide not to risk widespread ill will by refusing payment involving his European neighbors.

Many NATO diplomats believe the French leader would show no such reluctance in dealing unilaterally with the United States. They reason that De Gaulle might see prestige to be gained by deliberately refusing payment to a nation as powerful as the United States.

If that occurs, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) recommends that the United States refuse French gold claims equivalent to the value of military property France takes over without payment.

In any case, most U.S. legal advisers urge that an official demand for payment be filed. They note that the absence of a U.S. request for reimbursement could establish a damaging precedent.

Whatever difficulties may be encountered in arranging relocation of NATO headquarters, the leading NATO powers appear eager to accomplish the task promptly. A show of solidarity now could go far to discourage other members from acting outside NATO in defense matters, as France has done.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The intense pressures generated by war and political discontent produced a number of "firsts" this week in Viet Nam which could have far-reaching effects on the future of the Southeast Asian cauldron.

On the tense political scene, a special congress, convened by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky to assuage the explosive, anti-government riot against his regime, recommended that national elections be held within five months to replace the ruling military junta with civilians.

The election decree signed by Ky represents the first attempt by a South Vietnamese administration to effect an orderly change of regime since former President Ngo Dinh Diem was elected provisional chief of state by national referendum in 1955.

The powerful Unified Buddhist Church, which fomented the anti-government riots, accepted the terms of the decree Friday and endorsed the Ky regime as a caretaker government until civilian officials take office.

Barring unforeseen developments, the elections will break an 11-year concatenation of military coups and resignations that has produced eight non-elected rulers and almost constant political instability.

In the war against the Communists, B-52 bombers signaled a new escalation of the air war by staging repeated raids against North Viet Nam. Previously, the Guam-based fortresses had only unleashed their showers of destruction on Red strongholds and supply lines in the South.

One of these B-52 bombing runs against the north completely devastated the strategic Mu Gia Pass, effectively sealing the Ho Chi Minh Trail, the major supply line to Communist forces in the heaviest bombing raid since the destruction of Nagasaki, Japan by the atom bomb in 1945.

Another indication of the spiraling U.S. commitment in the Viet Nam war was revealed by the casualty list for the week ending April 9. For the first time since U.S. troops landed in South Viet Nam, more American GIs were killed in action than their South Vietnamese allies. In all, 95 GIs were killed, compared with 67 South Vietnamese.

Around The World, Around The Clock:

Mexico City: President Johnson, reveling in the most enthusiastic welcome he has yet received on a state visit, told Mexicans he would work for a hemispheric summit conference to "breathe new energy" into Latin America. Johnson also conferred with Mexican President Gustaldo Diaz Ordaz before returning home.

Beirut, Lebanon: President Abdel Salam Mohaad Aref, the Iraqui strongman who directed the 1958 revolt which crushed the monarchy in Iran, died with several aides when his private plane crashed during a sand storm in southern Iraq Wednesday night.

Paris: French President Charles De Gaulle reportedly remains adamant in his call for the removal of all foreign troops from France and the return of all military bases to French sovereignty by 1967. De Gaulle apparently intends to defy a strong U.S. note of Tuesday, warning of danger to the NATO alliance from "such precipitous action."

Beira, Portuguese Mozambique: Quickly taking advantage of a U.N. resolution sanctioning the use of force to prevent oil from reaching the breakaway Rhodesian regime of Premier Ian Smith, a British frigate halted and boarded the Greek tanker Manuela Sunday on its way to Beira with Rhodesian-bound oil.

Pittsburgh: The United Mine Workers worked towards a contract agreement with eastern and southern soft coal producers in order to end wildcat walkouts by 50,000 miners in eight states.

East Lansing, Mich.: Michigan State University disclosed that the school had been used for a State Department project to train Vietnamese civil policemen from 1954 to 1962. MSU officials claimed, however, that they were unaware that five CIA operatives were employed in the project and that they were dismissed when it became known.

Paris: The French government cancelled a 20-year tradition of honoring American Sergeant Laurence R. Kelly, who died during the liberation of Paris in World War II.

Budget Still Stalled Over Accrual System

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—There still has been no progress on the biggest Legislature's problem—the adoption of a $4.6 billion budget — despite inter - party meetings of the assemblymen. Approval of the spending document still is blocked by the Republicans' refusal to go along with the switch to the accrual accounting system, proposed by Governor Edmund G. Brown Senate Democrats.

The switch to accrual, which would make some $250 million more available for spending in 1966-67, by budgeting against revenues earned but not collected, would permit the Democrats to avoid an election-year tax increase.

Brown has held firm to his position that it would be wrong to ask for new taxes this year when they can be avoided. No proposals for cuts in the budget have been made as yet, but Republicans were about ready to unveil a new program.

The controversial "implied consent" bill for drunk drivers—defeated a number of times in past years in the state Senate—has been approved by that house.

In the Assembly, members voted 63-1 for the complicated measure which would revise sections of the state constitution dealing with the Legislature and judiciary.

Along with the revision bill, Assemblyman Jerome R. Waldie D-Antioch, who is running for Congress, introduced a bill to set the legislative salaries at $18,000 a year. They presently receive $6,000. Waldie's bill would restrict lawmakers' mileage allowances to actual costs on common carriers, or 15 cents a mile if no common carrier were available.

Smog legislation, which has been introduced but had not been moving, has started to roll.

Personal income in California during the last quarter of 1965 rose to a record high, at a seasonal rate of $61.25 billion. State and local government payrolls were up 10.1 per cent, military pay was up 9.6 per cent, and federal civilian payrolls were up by 7.9 per cent.

Farm income dropped 10.2 per cent from a year earlier and manufacturing payrolls were up 3.7 per cent over the third quarter of the year.

Interest rates for the state's Cal-Vet farm and home loans will remain at three and three-quarters per cent, despite increase in interest rates by the FHA and VA. Joseph M. Farber, director of veterans affairs, said the rate on the 130,000 outstanding loans has been in effect since 1962. He said the rate has been made possible by the fact that, in the 45 years of the program, the repossession rate has remained at about one-tenth of 1 per cent.

This coming week is Show Time. The 1966 High Fidelity Music Show opens its doors at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium on April 21, and will continue through Sunday, April 24. We have tickets that will save you 50c of the admission charge. They are free for the asking. Come in and get your tickets.

Calls have been received telling us that reception of FM Radio Station KPEN has become very difficult lately. In most cases this is due to the increase in KTIM's radiating power. Since KTIM is located only 400KC away from KPEN's frequency, with some FM tuners and in some locations it may be impossible to get separation of the stations. Better FM antennas or better FM tuners or receivers may help.

If your FM signal needs improving, a good Yagi type FM antenna may do the trick. What is a Yagi antenna and how does it help? The Yagi antenna is usuall made up of 3 or more elements in patallel with each element slightly longer than the one ahead of it. (Yagis can have as few as three elements.) By focusing, this kind of an array strengthens the signal over that received with a simple antenna. This additional signal may be enough to reject background noise that comes through because of insufficient signal. This additional gain is not accomplished without some sacrifice. You can't get something for nothing. Whereas simple antennas pick up signals from all directions, the Yagi type picks up signals from one general direction usually about 30 degrees wide depending on the number of elements in the antenna. In some areas where signals are received from many directions, the Yagi would require a rotator to turn the antenna to the desired direction.

The ability of a Yagi to receive from one narrow direction can be a decided advantage. Signals arriving from bounces that are coming from the rear or from the sides of the antenna will be rejected thus eliminating or reducing the distortion caused by this multi-path ghosting. The more elements an antenna has, the more gain it will have (that is the more signal it will bring into the set) and the narrower will be its pickup direction. If you are in a critical area, the correct antenna may work wonders.

Hamilton Javelin Thrower

Airman Second Class Is First Class Athlete

By BILL DUPUY

When Davey L. Schmidt joined the Air Force a little more than two years ago, she had no idea she would be able to use her javelin-throwing experience in her military career.

But now, thanks to a stepped-up athletic program for women, the airman second class assigned to the 78th U.S. Air Force Hospital at Hamilton Air Force Base could wind up in national competitions, even the Olympic games.

Twenty-year-old Airman Schmidt is both a Woman-in-the-Air Force (WAF) — and a javelin thrower. And she is darn good at both jobs.

RECENTLY INITIATED into the Laurel Track and Field Club of San Francisco-Oakland, Davey will be able to train with other girls 15 to 30 years old under famed women's track coach Roxy Andersen.

"Roxy has been very successful with her club," Davey says admiringly of the woman who is commissioner of women's track and field for Northern California and Nevada.

"Her district of the amateur Athletic Union (AAU) was named tops not long ago for its fine women's track program," she adds.

THE TRIM, five-foot 11-inch, Billings, Montanan hopes to be one of Roxy's choices for the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City. She also has her eye on the Russian-American track and field competition this July, but does not know if she will be in top shape by then.

At any rate she hopes to be ready for the Pan-American Games at Winnipeg, Canada, in 1967.

"I am sure I will throw the javelin, but I may also have to train in the discus and shot put," she declares.

Davey's track interests date back to her high school days. She was running the 100-yard dash and the quarter-mile when she suffered shin splints in her junior year.

"I WANTED TO continue in athletics but I didn't know where to start. Then I lucked into one day's instruction in throwing the javelin and I've loved it ever since," she explains.

To get her own javelin Davey put in an order with a sporting goods company. "It took a year to get it," she claims. "Apparently the demand for them isn't too great."

She led her high school team to victory at several state events and in 1963 broke the existing women's javelin record in the Rocky Mountain Championships at Fort Collins, Colo., hurling the eight-foot-long stick 107 feet two and a quarter inches, over 10 feet further than the previous record-holder.

THAT YEAR SHE also placed fourth in the shot put competition.

Davey came to Hamilton from Hancock Field, Syracuse, N. Y., and is enthusiastic about the move to an area where training conditions are better both "climate and opportunity-wise."

Her mother claims Davey, the younger of two Schmidt sisters, has always been interested in any type of sport. "She can ride a horse better than any

"CAN WHITENESS BE RESTORED TO MY DRESS?"

The yellowing of the fabric and loss of whiteness is due to exposure to light. A flourescent dye was used to give your dress the brightness it once had. However, flourescent brighteners vary in their fastness to light. Different fibers, too, accept these brighteners better than others. In the case of wool, silk and fur the color change is permanent. In the case of washable cottons, the fabric can be re-treated with fluorescent brighteners.

Whether the fabric which has lost its original whiteness can be satisfactorily whitened often depends upon how badly it has been discolored. In some cases a brightener in water may restore whiteness, however, if the fabric cannot be cleaned with water such a method is not practical.

Consult with your professional cleaner. He will be able to tell you the best method to follow in restoring the brightness you once admired.

cowboy," Mrs. Schmidt says.

The young WAF's immediate plan in life, aside from taking honors in future athletic competitions, is to continue college. With a few spare-time courses to her credit now, Davey hopes to finish some day with a major in wildlife conservation.

BUT FOR THE moment her interests are centered on the javelin and throwing it as far as she can.

It may take a little while to get back in shape, she confesses, because her right wrist has been out of a cast for only a few months now.

"I broke it skateboarding," she confesses with a laugh.

THE FAMILIAR OLD station house at the edge of Tiburon wears a fresh coat of olive green paint today. But this pencil drawing by artist Willard Cox shows the weathered landmark as it looked before. It is one of a series of sketches and paintings by Cox in his one-man effort to "conserve" those relics of Marin's heritage that are subject to change or might be lost.

MARIN LANDSCAPES by Willard Cox of Tiburon are among the most popular works of art in the rental gallery of the Marin Society of Artists at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. This one captures the beauty and serenity of Strawberry Point. Cox often finds his subjects close to home.

WILLARD COX puts the finishing touches on one of his landscape studies in his studio in his Tiburon home. Old buildings and other "monuments" from the past especially attract Cox as subjects to be preserved in sketches and paintings. (Independent-Journal photos)

A Record Of Our Heritage

Willard Cox's Work Serves Causes Of Art And History

By MARIA WOODWARD

The almost legendary old station house that stands at the edge of Tiburon has a new look.

Although the basic structure remains unchanged from those early days when it served as a railway depot for the bustling new town at Point Tiburon in 1885, the face of history has been slightly re-touched with a fresh coat of contemporary olive green. And within walls that once housed the railway clerks of Col. Peter Donahue's southern terminus, a stylish new antique shop has just opened.

The restoration of the old landmark is, in a contemporary sense, right in step with the development and growth of the Tiburon peninsula. But those who might be seeking a truer image of the past may well find it in the drawings of Willard Cox.

IN A PENCIL sketch entitled "Tiburon—End of the Line" the artist has captured the weathered old depot as many Tiburon residents still remember it. It is an artist's view and a historian's view as well, for "End of the Line" evokes the old clapboard station clinging tenaciously to its rocky shoreline looking for all the world like the last, lonely survivor of an era long vanished, yet not quite forgotten.

The paintings of artist Cox memorialize the past, but he is neither by temperament or by inclination a man devoted to fighting progress.

"More people will be coming to Marin. You can't stop them and you can't stop the changes that will be made," he declares matter-of-factly.

"Unfortunately," he adds, "the landscape around us will also change."

BEFORE THIS happens, he has set himself to the task of recording the hills, the trees and the monuments of an area that seems doomed to large-scale demolition. His efforts have thus far produced 30 some pencil sketches of Marin scenes. Among them are China Camp, Angel Island, Strawberry Point, the Audubon House and the Old Stone Tower at Paradise Cove.

Despite absence of color, the drawings seem touched by nostalgia and a sense of yesterday. As one member of the Belvedere Landmarks Society puts it: "Willard Cox may lack the zeal and fire of the dedicated conservationist, but his work gives a deeper insight into the man. Anyone who has seen his paintings will understand that he is a conservationist in the truest sense . . ."

In support of this view is the artist's widely reprinted painting of old St. Hilary's Church-Museum, which is considered by many one of the best ever done of the famous old Tiburon landmark.

THE ART OF Willard Cox for all its sentimental appeal was nurtured within the cold confines of the commercial art world. A partner in the San Francisco firm of Logan and Cox, the artist devoted himself for many years to the job of supplying art in all its forms to an insatiable advertising industry. The firm, which is still doing business under a different name, numbered among its big accounts Standard Oil, Lucky Lager,

BULLETIN: FIRST 10 MONTHS OF 1965 IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA*

Anthony builds more pools than the next fifteen single pool builders combined!

WHY ANTHONY?

We believe that much of the overwhelming preference for Anthony results from the recommendation of satisfied pool owners. Here are some of the reasons:

DEPENDABLE ACCESSORIES. At our 15 acre facility we manufacture our own top-quality line of pool parts and accessories. Our reputation for the dependability of our filters, heaters, water purifier, and pool cleaner—plus the assurance of service on all equipment from one source—is one of the big reasons many people recommend Anthony Pools.

FINANCIAL BACK-UP. The warranties of a builder or manufacturer depend on his ability to back them up. Ask any builder for his financial statement. Here is Anthony's current financial back-up: Cash, $1,265,567; Total net worth, $3,050,832.

IT'S EASY TO JOIN THE POOL OWNER SET. On ten-year financing, a complete pool can be yours for very low monthly payments. For example, a loan balance of $2000 runs only $26.67 a month. Is it any wonder so many young families are adding an Anthony pool to their way of life?

*Per most recent building permits reported by independent reporting service. Anthony also built more pools than all franchised pool builders combined!

TIBURON'S WILLARD COX

A Conservationist Preserves With Pencil And With Paints

Dole Pineapple Co. and Olympia Brewing Corp.

"Our output was tremendous," recalls Cox. "We had 12 specialists in the field all working like beavers to fill the demand. This may not fit in with the popular picture of the solitary artist finding inspiration along a windswept shore. But art is art and whether it is conceived in a studio or on a hillside it is an individual effort. It cannot be manufactured.

During those years I worked in commercial art I put in my best efforts. The reward was artistic success and a solid reputation in my profession."

DESPITE THE pressures of business, Cox took time out occasionally to do the kind of painting he has always liked best, the landscape. One of these, "Streets in Bolinas," an oil painting, still hangs in the Gold Room of San Francisco's Bohemian Club, of which he is a member.

The hectic days behind him, Willard Cox has now embarked on a second career and is currently engaged in doing freelance work that enables him to enjoy the benefits of a more leisurely life. Now there is time to glance at the green hillsides that surround his home and to evaluate his role as an artist to the tempo of the rapidly changing community in which he lives. He enjoys an occasional stroll down Tiburon's Main Street, the sight of which inspires both affectionate comment and artistic indignation.

"I admire a great deal of what Fred Zelinsky has done here," says Cox, "but I think I would have done it differently. This is the most lopsided Main Street that ever existed. One side of town looks like a sweet little old lady, slightly overdressed and trying to look chic. Then there's the sophisticated side of the street, which is too cold. . . ."

COX HAS recorded his impression of Main Street in a straight-line pen drawing done in flat perspective.

"The charm of these buildings are their faces," he says. "They give you a sense of being in a non-dimensional world with doors that open into nowhere and walls with nothing behind them." Nevertheless, he enjoys living in the unique little town and would like to see fewer utility poles marring the view and the Tiburon section of Highway 101 transformed into a tree-lined boulevard in the European manner.

He devotes several hours of each day to experimental painting and exploratory forays into textures and patterns. An old tin can he dug up in the back yard has become the subject for two paintings done in the modern vein.

"A TIN CAN may be nothing but a piece of junk to some people, but to an artist it's like finding gold. I see an accidental sculptured quality in it that makes it a beautiful object and a challenging subject," he says.

For relaxation, artist Cox finds a restful retreat in the kitchen where he can indulge in his favorite pastime, cooking good food. He numbers among his specialties a variety of salads, exotic beans, and prides himself on his cioppino.

He feels there is a parallel between painting and the culinary art and describes the similarity thus: "Cooking food is like being a good artist. Take cioppino, for example. The sauce is your dominant theme with the richness of heavy color providing the background. Composition takes shape with the addition of fish and those wriggly crabs. Finally, your light accents are the spices—a touch of basil or perhaps oregano. As in art, it can be a masterpiece of a fiasco, depending on the artist."

AS WILLARD COX claims cioppino as his specialty in the kitchen, it is his landscape work that is considered his specialty in the field of painting.

"I have a feeling for it," he says. "I seem to get a personal message from old barns."

At the gallery of the Marin Society of Artists, where canvases of local artists are offered to the public on a rental basis, the paintings of Willard Cox have been made available to many an art lover. His most popular painting is one that received first prize in the Ames Ford art exhibition in San Rafael. It is entitled "The Explorer" and is a painting of the artist's 5-year-old grandson, Tony, walking down the Old Spanish Trail.

He is enthusiastic about the work being done by the Marin Society of Artists and says: "I feel the society is doing a wonderful job by bringing art out of the galleries and into the living room. By renting a painting you can live with it for awhile. You may end up hating it or loving it. Either way it is an education and it results in a greater appreciation of art."

ALTHOUGH HE has not traveled extensively, Willard Cox feels that travel is a great "eye-opener" for the artist, enabling him to get a fresh outlook and often acting as a stimulus in clarifying past scenes and impressions. A trip he made to Alaska produced a number of Indian paintings and it was in Seattle that the artist completed "Fishing Boats at Salmon Bay" which won a first award in the Seattle Art Museum competition.

At home, among familiar subjects, whether it be a rusty tin can, a beautifully shaped tree, or a bowl of flowers arranged by his wife, Gladys, there is ample inspiration for artist Cox. By way of future plans he would like to build up his collection of pencil sketches, which he hopes to reproduce and sell as prints for framing.

He feels that there are still unexplored stretches of open country and spectacular Marin coastline vistas that await his discovery.

"I want to get these things down before the changes come," he says.

THERE IS A sense of urgency in his need which finds an ominous echo in the sound of a bulldozer from a nearby hill. His sketches as of now include the Tiburon Peninsula, Bodega Bay and various parts of the Gold Rush country.

Where to next?

"I was reading something about Marincello the other day," mused artist Cox.

"How do I get down to the Marin headlands?"

SECOND ONLY TO his art as an enthusiasm of Willard Cox is cooking. He likes to relax in the kitchen, and he is especially proud of his cioppino.

Andy Bretz—A Man Who Is Out To Sell Novato

By THERON NEWELL

If you should by chance happen on a big man, usually in his white shirt sleeves without a coat regardless of the weather, who is in a hurry but still takes the time to stop for a jovial greeting, the chances are pretty good you would have met Andrew Bretz, manager of the Novato Chamber of Commerce.

That could happen in Novato, elsewhere in Marin County, Northern California or other points, because Andy's job, and his varied interests, take him all over the Bay Area and the United States. He is literally the man on the go.

He holds an enviable record of attending conventions, classes or speeches where he can get fresh ideas on chamber management.

FOR EXAMPLE, since retiring from the service in October, 1961, he has completed three short basic courses in Chamber of Commerce management at Santa Clara University, and two of a three-term advance course in chamber management at the University of Colorado in Boulder. He will complete that course this summer.

In addition, he has attended the National Chamber of Commerce convention in Washington D.C. for the past four years, and plans to attend again this year. He has also attended a one-week course in industrial development at the University of Oklahoma in Norman.

Such is the devotion of Andy, as everyone calls him, to his job.

THE GROWTH OF the Novato Chamber since he has been the manager shows the results of this. When he started in June, 1962, the chamber had Patricia Reynolds as part-time help and was housed in a small office in the Patio Building. Its budget was $10,000 per year with 125 members. Andy went to work at the modest salary of $350 per month.

In the intervening time, the chamber has grown until it has Mrs. Reynolds working full-time and is in larger quarters in the Locke Plumbing Building. Its budget is now $25,000 per year and it has 280 members. Incidentally, Andy's salary was raised to $725 per month.

"It's been a slow pull upward, but healthy," he said.

NOR DOES HE take the credit for the growth.

"We have a lot of talent on the board of directors and have had excellent leadership in Richard Nave who is completing a two-and-a-half year term as president," he added.

Among the things Bretz suggested for the chamber was changing the terms of the board of directors from two to three years with one third of the members on the 15 man board being elected each year.

Andy was born in Detroit, Mich., 51 years ago and graduated from Southeastern High School there. In 1935 he enlisted in the regular army where he spent one year. Then he held various jobs in the auto industry around Detroit until 1941. He had taken correspondence courses and was a member of the reserves, so that when he was recalled in 1941, he had the rank of second lieutenant.

HE SERVED IN Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Camp Wolters, Tex., and the Philippine Islands in the public information field. He left the service again in 1950 when he went to work as an underwriter for the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York.

One year later, he was recalled again, this time serving in the United Nations Civil Assistance Command as an information officer to the Korean people.

In 1954 he was returned as community relations officer to Headquarters Sixth Army at the Presidio of San Francisco, a post he held for four years.

He next had a tour of duty in Stuttgart, Germany, and then returned to the States to Fort Ord where he was stationed for one year until he retired in 1961, as a lieutenant colonel.

IN THE MIDDLE of this busy career, he was married. He had met Hertha Franck in Detroit in 1941. The romance lasted for several years and they were married in Pueblo, Colo., in 1946 just before he went to the Philippines. They have one daughter, Christa, 13, and live at 2044 Feliz Road, Novato.

Andy laughs when he recalls his first meeting with the late Chapin Day, editor of the editorial page of the Independent-Journal. Chip told him that he had read about him when he took the job with the Novato chamber.

"You belong to more organizations than any man I ever knew," Chip said.

When one looks at the impressive list of the organizations to which he is a dues-paying member, one believes that Day's was the understatement of the year.

ANDY'S MILITARY career made him interested in organizations connected with the military. He helped organize the Novato Chapter of the Air Force Assn. and is its vice president. He is also the vice president of the San Francisco Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army.

He is the president of the San Francisco Chapter of the Reserve Officers Assn. He also belongs to the Marin County Chapter of the Retired Officers Assn., the Lloyd Hamilton Post of the American Legion, the Amvets, the 40 et 8, the Donald V. Westlund Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Ordnance Assn.

His many civic activities are shown by his membership in other organizations. These include being on the executive board of the Redwood Empire Assn., the Marin County Senior Citizens Advisory Council, the Novato Senior Citizens, the Board of the Marin Visitors Bureau, International Foreign Exchange Students Committee, the Board of Directors of the Red Cross and chairman of the Red Cross Marin County Visiting Services Committee.

HIS JOB HAS drawn him into the California Assn. of the Chamber of Commerce Executives, Business-Industry Political Action Committee, World Affairs Council of Northern California, the California Check Investigators Assn., Sales and Marketing Executives and the Public Relations Society of America.

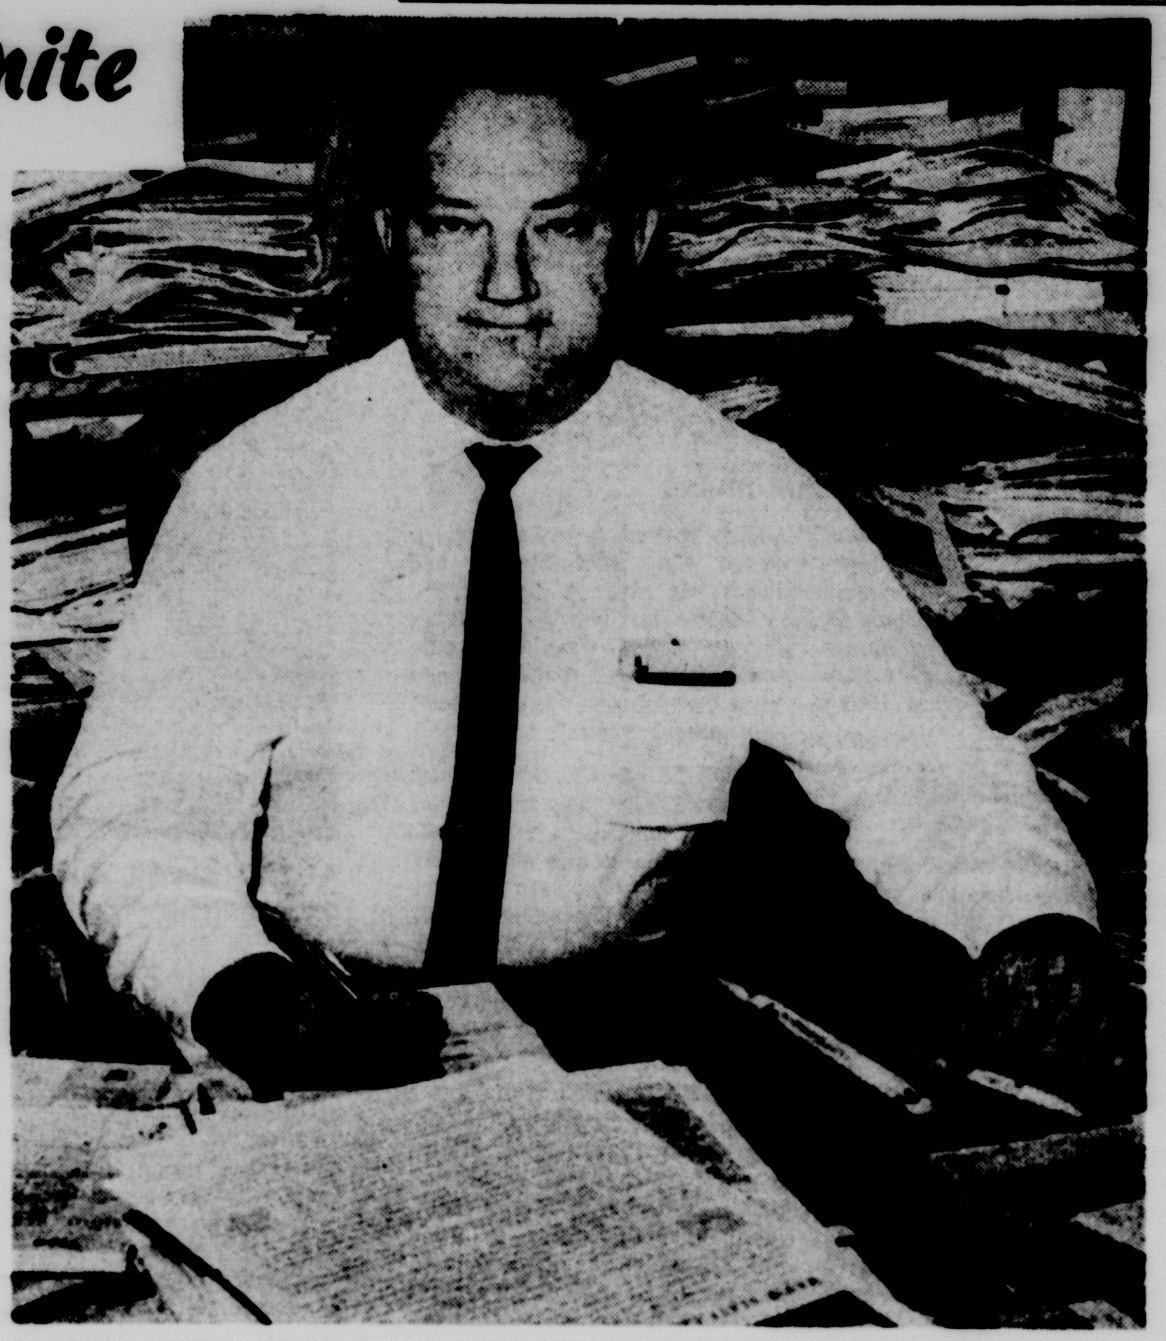
For relaxation, he belongs to the San Rafael Elks Lodge, the Novato Moose Lodge and the San Francisco Press Club. He also bowls two nights a week with the chamber of commerce team.

He is a member of Grace Lutheran Church.

ANDY HAS A favorite bolo tie the pin of which carries his favorite motto. This motto was written by Red Motley, past president of the National Chamber of Commerce. It sums up Andy's approach to all of his interests in life.

It reads: "Nothing happens till someone sells something."

And that is the way he runs the chamber — selling Novato.



ANDREW (ANDY) BRETZ has been the manager of the Novato Chamber of Commerce since June of 1962, and during that time the organization has more than doubled its membership under his vigorous leadership.

The Story Of A Weaver —

Ruth Bruce Found Craft That Fulfilled Her Needs

By MARJORIE IRVING

To fill a time void left when her son departed for college, Ruth Bruce of Kent Woodlands returned to her earlier art background—first with a brief course in ceramics, and then with a 25-hour class in weaving at Reno, Nev.

This set the stage for her to become one of the Bay Area's most respected weavers.

MRS. BRUCE WAS born in Colorado and brought up in Montana and Washington. She graduated as an art major from Mills College, and for a brief time prior to her marriage to a future telephone company executive, Robert Bruce, she was a fashion illustrator.

At the conclusion of her 25-hour weaving course under Mrs. Relsey Aiken, a former Tamalpais High School teacher, she told herself: "It has been fascinating, but goodbye. I have no loom."

However, at that time Mrs. Aiken opened a small shop called Clay and Shuttle and asked her student Mrs. Bruce to weave for her in the front display room - weaving studio while she herself made pots and other ceramics in the back (and only other) room.

LOOKING BACK, Mrs. Bruce still cringes at the thought of the first warp she put in the loom with the public looking on. With virtually no warping experience and working with homespun yarn for a coat, she lost the cross (which separates each thread from the other for proper warping sequence).

"But," she says, "I've never lost another cross!"

The visitor to her home high atop Crown Road feels that with a slight stretch he or she can touch the peak of Mount Tamalpais. Which brings to mind Mrs. Bruce's own feeling about her art-craft: "Weaving makes one stretch for more achievement and try for higher and newer things."

AT THE LARGE LOOM in her Kent Woodlands home, Mrs. Robert Bruce works on one of her distinctive weaving creations—a rug. The design sketch can be seen at right.

HER HOME IS one of quiet peacefulness, blending with the nature which is her source of inspiration. Her studio brings indoors both the bay and subdued colors from her garden and transfers them to her large yarn supply. At the studio door is her collection of rocks, cones, pods, etc., emphasizing her feeling that "nature is the inexhaustible source for design inspiration, and as long as it is there, one can never go stale."

It was after Mrs. Aiken moved to Healdsburg that Mrs. Bruce bought her first loom made by "Papa" Gravander of Mill Valley; she wove a little, but there was no one near to add more to her knowledge or to assist. However, the two courses under Mrs. Aiken had forced the major decision between two crafts—it was easier to move a loom than a kiln.

The telephone company helped Mrs. Bruce's career by transferring the family to Sacramento, where she found an active weaving guild and excellent teachers in Marian Kurtz and Kay Geary. She joined the Kingsley Art Group, and started serious weaving.

A SMALL RUG was cited for excellence at a weaver's conference in Stockton around 1952 (no ribbons were given in those days.) And she acquired a modern jack loom.

Mrs. Aiken provided Mrs. Bruce with her recipe for twice-woven rugs from stockings, and she developed it into one of her best known projects.

Having only one loom at the time she had to be sure she had enough material to finish the job. First she bleached the stockings, redyeing them a soft gold. Then she wove them into strips for the chenille. Finally she put on her warp and wove the rug.

THIS 12-FOOT by 46-inch rug won her a prize at the Kingsley Art Center in 1960. And, as she had a large supply of material left over, she decided to make a room-size rug in the same way.

Statistically it took her three years to collect and process the needed 6,500 stockings; one package of dye did 70 stockings at a time, all hung out doors on a line to dry. Once ready to go, it took one week to weave each of the three strips, and one week to put the strips together with nylon fish line to make the 11-by-12-foot rug in her living room.

Her design was an exacting one, forcing her weaving to be most precise, or the pattern would not have carried across the total face. Many of the professional weavers said it could not be done, but her "impossible" rug proves them wrong.

DURING THE Bruces' stay in Sacramento it became apparent to Mrs. Bruce that she needed serious training in color and design, available only in San Francisco. Since she did not drive, she got up one day a week at 4 a.m., caught a 5 a.m. bus, and got back home at 8:30 p.m.

One semester was enough of that.

It was in 1961 that the Bruces moved to Marin, which offered Nancy Kenealy's weaving classes at the College of Marin, and it was Miss Kenealy (Fashion Show coordinator for an upcoming handweavers conference in Berkeley next weekend) who sponsored Mrs. Bruce's application for Contemporary Handweavers of California. She became an active member of the Marin Society of Artists and is a frequent exhibitor in their Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

nual Conference of Northern California Handweavers — "Nature, Our Greatest Designer."

Her rosey-orange fabric, which will be on exhibit, was inspired by her favorite rose, "Tropicana." The design took some heavy thought as Mrs. Bruce was determined to use only yarns she had on hand. It was also partially responsible for her new proud possession: A 10-harness double-beam 46-inch wide Gilmore loom. In addition she has a 24-inch eight-harness double-beam portable Macomber loom; a four harness 46-inch Gilmore single beam loom and a 16-inch folding loom which slips into the car for vacations, classes, etc.

The three favorite activities in Mrs. Bruce's busy life are "weeding, weaving and watercolor painting" and, she says, "If one gets too frustrating, I can always turn to another."

AFTER DEVELOPING her garden on the rocky hills in Kent Woodlands, she decided weaving was the most satisfying of the three w's for "the multiples of threads come out even and there is no sense of hurry, as in watercolors." She feels the paintings and weaving compliment each other with color blendings and design ideas intermingling back and forth.

Another comparison is that "setting up a loom is like music because the treadling is like playing the keys with color and texture an added obbligato. The excitement is during the concentrated design period and threading of the loom; the peace and respite come when throwing the shuttle, an act also allied with music through rhythm."

The fabric of a reversible jacket often worn by Mrs. Bruce as she works received both a blue (highest award) and a white ribbon at the 1964 handweavers' conference in San Jose. And a seat cover in her home earned her an honorable mention at the 1965 California State Fair in Sacramento.

"WEAVING FULFILLS a need, especially if I have not been able to find and buy what I want. So I dye my own threads, organize the sequence of colors, and experiment with weaves and treadlings to arrive at exactly what I want. Also it is fun to take old drafts and modernize them by new treadlings, use of color stripes, etc."

Marin County is rich in many fine weavers: "Mama" Gravander, Ida Dean Grae, Dominic De Mare, Bea Bernardi, Myra Falch, Janet Van Evera, Sonja Pimental (now better known for her creative knitting), Nancy Kenealy, Rosalind Ray Watkins, Kamma Zethraus, to name only a few. And Mary Minton of Mill Valley publishes the monthly Handweavers Bulletin which boasts statewide circulation.

Marin has its own guild, the Tamalpais Weavers, which will be one of 20 guilds exhibiting in Berkeley at the 14th Annual Northern California Handweavers Conference in the Claremont Hotel.

IN FACT, THE entire Bay Area is alive with new, fresh and creative weaving talent.

People may judge for themselves by attending the conference in Berkeley next Saturday or Sunday.

Saturday is open to the public only by advance registration and between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

On Sunday, however, the public can attend from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. without advance registration.

A Marinite Recalls

(Editor's Note: There are still many Marinites who remember the great earthquake and fire of 1906. But their numbers are growing smaller. Here, the I-J magazine presents the recollections of one of their number, San Francisco-born Clarence A. Hull of Larkspur, a Marin County resident the past 12 years. Hull remembers vividly his experiences as the 60th anniversary of the Bay Area's most spectacular disaster approaches.)

By CLARENCE A. HULL

Yes, I remember well that fateful day 60 years ago.

Being a native San Franciscan, I remember many of the places and events before the earthquake, but this day in question stands out like a beacon light in the dark. It was to change the way of life and the whole face of old San Francisco—or at least that part of it that was ravaged and flattened by the quake and fire (which was more than half of the densely populated area).

Many accounts and pictures of the havoc are printed every year in newspapers at this anniversary time, but for me it is a personal and never-to-be-forgotten experience that needs no reminders.

TO A LAD OF 10 it was quite a thing. Still, the children and teen-agers took it in stride and some even got a kick out of it as they did not realize the seriousness of the situation. The older people, on the other hand, were walking around in a sort of daze or stupor, watching the fire approach or looking at the ruins. An exception, of course were the firemen, policemen and soldiers who had duties to perform.

The fire engines were all over the stricken area, but when they tried to set up the hoses to the hydrants, the fire laddies found virtually no water, only a trickle, because the water mains were all broken.

To get back to the early morning of the earthquake—April 18, 1906:

IF I REMEMBER correctly, the night before was clear and cool. I was living with my mother and father at 164 Clinton Park Avenue, a street running parallel to 14th, and our house was directly in back of Mary's Help Hospital on Guerrero Street. We were all sleeping soundly when at a little after 5 a.m. the shake began and I found myself halfway out of bed while the chandelier above was swaying vigorously. I could hear my father in the next bedroom say: "Goodbye, I guess we are going."

I got on a dressing gown and ran into the kitchen to find a shambles. The table had been thrown to the other side of the room and whatever had been on it was now splattered on the floor. The cooler door (no refrigerators those days) had opened, spilling all the leftovers from the night before into the middle of the room. Dishes were smashed, cabinets toppled.

Now everyone was talking at once and wondering what it was—an explosion, a quake, or what? Then we made our way to the street and found half the chimneys of the block strewn about the street.

ABOUT 10 MINUTES later, there was another quake. More chimneys fell and most of the people hurried back into their houses. This shaking was to continue almost all day at intervals.

There was a lot of noise by then; fire engines rushing around with sirens blasting, excited people wondering what to do next. Then the reports started to come in that six or eight fires had started all at once in the rubble. Gas mains were also broken, igniting still more fires.

Of course, we were not permitted to make any fires in our stoves. Some were started in the outlying districts, but most were extinguished quickly.

NOW THE MATTER of food and water was on everybody's mind. By the next day, 19 relief stations had been set up for distribution of milk, bread and some groceries, especially for infants and mothers.

Also by this time martial law had been declared. The militia had taken charge and food was taken from grocery stores and bakeries that had not burned and handed out in what were called "breadlines." Women and children came first.

If a person bought milk in a store, it was $2 a quart, and flour was $5 a sack.

All on our block were ordered out of their homes as they were to be blown up as part of a backfire to help stop the oncoming flames.

I REMEMBER my father obtaining a pushcart with two wheels. Piled high with bed clothing, kitchen utensils and necessities, this cart was pushed up to Market and Duboce streets where we camped under a hill at the exact spot the Safeway Market now occupies. There, at least, we were sheltered from the wind, two large pieces of canvas being our only covering. A fireplace of bricks and iron bars was set up at the curbstone and served as our stove, and the fire coming closer and closer all the time.

Several things come to my mind as I think back those 60 years.

It seems that a few doors from where we lived a newly married couple had moved in. When ordered out by the soldiers, the man took all his pots, pans and other possessions he could carry and buried them in a hole he dug at one corner of the lot for the unfinished hospital across the street. He then went back to his house where he said he had $600 in gold hidden in his mattress upstairs.

WELL, THE GUARD told him that it was too late, and turned him back at bayonet point. The man almost lost his mind. I believe that was all he had left in money.

A few minutes after that, the street was cleared and the whole block was blown up. This was one point where the fire was stopped.

If you happen by, you will notice that the houses opposite Mary's Help Hospital at Guerrero and 14th are new, while the next block are pre-fire houses, not touched by fire. Another point where the fire was stopped was on Dolores and 17th streets opposite the Mission Dolores Church.

THE WATER IN the district was obtained from a well which was a relic and part of an underground creek flowing down 18th Street in the early days, to create a lake near Mission Park on a flat spot. I suppose that is why Mission Dolores was built there—because of the water, and the climate, the church being sheltered by the surrounding hills.

Well, anyway, when the fire got close, a bucket brigade of 100 men formed and handed the water from man to man to be thrown on the homes along the west side of Dolores Street, thus saving that side and halting the fire there.

It was said if the fire had crossed Dolores Street, all the Mission, Eureka and Noe Valleys would have gone up in flames, perhaps all the way to Ocean Beach.

AFTER THREE DAYS of camping out at Market and Duboce, the rain came down in torrents and we were obliged to move.

We were lucky to obtain quarters in an abandoned market, the Brown Bros. Grocery Store, at the corner of Market and Octavia. The smell of pickle vinegar was very pronounced, but we were only too glad to get out of the rain.

By this time, Camp Lake was set up at Duboce and Market streets and the hill was dotted with new tents given the refugees of the neighborhood.

Apartment houses fill the area at present, and you would not recognize the district today, which is across the street from where the new Mint is located.

I BELIEVE THIS hill was called Reservoir Hill, and we used to fly kites from it before the earthquake. The sight of the fire moving toward us to the west was all too clearly seen from this vantage point.

Tales of many tragedies were told—about men trapped in basements downtown who burned to death before they could be taken out—who begged for a gun to shoot themselves or for somebody to cut their wrists to put them out of their miseries.

The water supply for this area came from a spring that seeped out of the side of the hill where the new Mint now stands. I heard that a plumber stuck a pipe into the ground and this started the water flowing into a small well at the site. Everyone could get water with a bucket or a pail. With hundreds of refugees camped there in tents it looked like a military installation.

THE PEOPLE WERE trying to decide if the fire would cross Market Street at Van Ness Avenue. As they watched and even as the dynamite trucks were approaching, it seemed as though a miracle took place, for the fire did stop there.

I suppose the Market Street Powerhouse that supplied the power for the cable cars up Market and Valencia streets helped to stop it, since the building was spread over a wide area and was made of brick. I remember the tall brick chimney, several hundred feet high, was broken in two, and half of it was left standing for several years. But the plant was never used again, for the cable cars were gone from Market and Valencia forever.

Speaking of Valencia Street, when the earthquake struck, the earth opened up near 17th, and the Valencia Hotel, which was four stories high, sank down three stories into the ground, with only the top remaining above the surface. Many people were killed in their rooms. I believe this part of the street was also built over an underground creek.

I REMEMBER, TOO, getting milk and groceries from the relief station at Market and 14th streets at the old Pierce Piano Factory and from the grocery next door, then under military supervision. A little brick church was another relief station on the west side of Church Street above Market. There you could obtain a tent, portable stove and utensils, if you had the order from the authorities. This church is still standing.

All horses and wagons and other vehicles were commandeered as transportation for the sick and elderly to hospitals set up on the far side of the city.

Transportation out of the city to any point in the United States was free, courtesy of the transportation companies, and many hundreds took advantage of this offer. This was by train, boat or bus—not many airplanes then! I also recall that bread was obtained by the people from the Young and Swain Bakery on Geary above Divisadero Street.

THE FIRE BURNT itself out in four terrifying days, after which the remaining inhabitants settled down as veteran campers in San Francisco. My family obtained camping equipment and moved to an empty lot at 16th and Market streets and stayed there for several months until they could rent a house in the Eureka Valley.

Bricks and dust filled the burned-out area and many people were employed to clean the bricks for future use. All able-bodied men were required to work as carpenters to build shelters over the manholes on upper Market Street. As wages they received certificates good for meat, groceries, milk and equipment for their families.

I recall that in the burned area downtown the only things left standing were concrete foundations, brick work and occasional steel safes, small or large, most of which had to be doused with water for days before they could be opened, they were so hot. If they were opened before they cooled, everything flammable inside would burst into fierce flames.

Wheels from many of these safes, which were iron, were used to make coasters for the boys of this era.

WE MISSED especially the brightly colored cable cars that ran on the main streets. I believe the Market Street cable which ran up to 18th and Castro and over the Castro Hill was cream colored, the Valencia cars blue, the Haight Street ones brown and Hayes Street cars green. But later on when the electric cars were installed, everyone seemed to be satisfied.

It was an end of an era and a beginning of a better one, I suppose.

Now, after all these years, they are tearing down most of the old houses in the Western Addition and building new, giant apartments.

NEW SHOPPING centers were established in the Mission and Fillmore districts which really started them on the way to becoming the business centers they now are. As for Van Ness Avenue, it was used by most of the large department stores such as The Emporium and Hale Bros. as temporary locations until new buildings could be erected on Market Street and near-by. "Auto Row" later moved in on this district.

I worked at The Emporium on Van Ness Avenue as cash boy and utility boy in the book department during summer vacation.

In retrospect, I remember also the years just before the great catastrophe of 1906.

MARKET STREET was always busy and bustling. There was a "25-cent side" and a "50-cent side." Also a part of upper Market Street around 10th Street or 11th Street had stores with wooden awnings; most of these were on the south side of the street.

I recall a miniature wagon built by Studebaker, in a window at Ninth and Market streets which I very much desired to own. At that time this firm did not manufacture automobiles, but horse-drawn vehicles only; also the Hibernia Bank was where it now is, on the corner of Jones and Market, and across the street was Prager's Department Store—quite an establishment at that time. I don't think they reopened after the fire.

Now, I can recall seeing the first ice cream cones made in San Francisco. It was in a restaurant-type store on the north side of Market Street opposite Seventh Street, and they were made in a window in plain view of the street traffic.

IT SEEMS THAT a very thin pancake-sized wafer was cooked on a griddle, and just before it cooled and hardened, it was set in a metal form. When it was ready, it was taken out and a scoop of ice cream was put on top. The price was 10 cents and they sold as quickly as the man could make them.

Gone forever is the Old San Francisco of yesterday: Meiggs Wharf; Harbor View, where the Marina is now located; the Cobweb Palace nearby; the Wigwam Theater, where the City of Paris now stands; the Mechanics' Pavilion on Van Ness Avenue, where the high school now stands, near Grove Street; the Shelby Shot Tower south of Market Street; the steam trains going from Presidio and California streets out to the beach to Sutro Baths; the famous bird man with his marvelous canaries, whose stand was in front of the old Sutro Baths; the old Cliff House, that looked like a bird-cage and was so named.

WOODWARDS Gardens, situated on Valencia, Mission, 14th and 15th streets, where the Valencia housing project now stands, was like the chutes at the beach. The horse-cars running along lower Market Street, up Clay and Sacramento, made their turn in front of the Ferry Building.

I remember the Hokey Pokey ice cream man—a character before the earthquake and fire. He wore a tall silk hat and drove a horsedrawn wagon, dispensing ice cream to the children for a nickel or so, and calling out: "Hokey Pokey Ice Cream Cones!"

There was a vendor of wild game, with geese and rabbits strung on a wooden rod he carried on his shoulder. His call sounded something like "Wagi, wagi!" meaning wild game.

THESE THINGS will live forever in the cherished memories of the Old San Franciscan.

Looking back you can see the Old Orpheum Theater on O'Farrell Street—the patrons after the show going across the street and downstairs to Coffee Dan's and making a lot of noise striking the saucers and tables with their spoons.

There were many theaters in the downtown section of the city. The Tivoli Opera House, McGuires Opera House and the Morosco, all fine in their day. San Francisco was also noted for its race tracks before the 'quake, including those at 22nd and Mission, and at Fulton and Sixth. I think the latter was called the Bay City Race Track.

There was still another on Ocean Avenue near Plymouth, a coursing track where they raced greyhound dogs after live rabbits. The City College now occupies this tract. I remember it was surrounded by tall eucayptus trees on three sides.

THE RESTAURANTS of old San Francisco were famous all around the world and many new dishes were invented in them. It is said that chop suey originated in San Francisco.

It can be said that some of the large buildings in the stricken city held up very well during the earthquake, only to be gutted by the fire. For instance, the Fairmont Hotel on top of Nob Hill still retained its original walls—also many of the brick and concrete buildings like the Flood and Phelan buildings are still there.

It is said that the builders tried to dynamite the Emporium Building after the fire to knock down the walls, but were unsuccessful, and that the original walls are still standing—unlike the old City Hall, which took 28 years to complete. Then, the walls went down on the first shake—a monument to faulty construction on the part of the builders.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

SPRING

Over meadows lush
The vibrant notes sung
Of throaty passing thrush
Who nod to lazy petaled heads
Longside freshened waters
    gurgling spring:

A song lush meadows
Always seem to sing.

Congratulating a self
For being the wandering thing
In rambling seeks a high
In singing brooks that meander farther down
In harmony well met.
The branching of new creeks:

A quest in songs crescendo
Finally found
Whose crested note becomes
For gurgling spring
An ever singing
    river's crown.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Some recent recordings in the humor field:

WELCOME TO THE LBJ RANCH! — The Robin-Doud Comedy Interview—Capitol Stereo SW 2423:

By now, you have probably already heard some excerpts from this very funny lp on the air. It is becoming almost as well-known as Earle Doud's earlier effort, "The First Family."

But this time the voices of famous personalities such as the President and Lady Bird, Eisenhower, Goldwater and Nixon are the actual voices of these people. The trick is that the questions which are posed to these people were thought up and recorded long after the answers.

The "panel" of questioners includes, in addition to Doud and Robin, newsman John Cameron Swayze, Westbrook Van Voorhis and John St. Leger. Of the eight interviews, I felt the funniest were those with Lady Bird and with Senator Goldwater.

The album really has no political points to make, it is just fun entertainment. Stereo adds to the fun, too.

THAT WAS THE YEAR THAT WAS — TW3 Songs and Other Songs of the Year — Tom Lehrer — Reprise Stereo RS-6179:

Everybody remembers Tom Lehrer, right? Especially after his highly successful stint last summer at San Francisco's hungry i, where this album was taped in stereo.

Many of the 14 songs were featured in the ill-fated TV satirical series, TW3. Two of them are presently part of "Funny Side Up," at the Sir Francis Drake Theater in San Francisco. All are great.

Lehrer has sharpened and refined his humor, and although his voice is still third-rate and his piano accompaniments sound all alike, the lyrics and delivery are hilarious. Don't miss "Smut," "Pollution" — ("The breakfast garbage you throw in the Bay, is served up for lunch in San Jose"), "Who's Next?," and "The Vatican Rag."

ART BUCHWALD reports on Sex and the College Boy and other subjects vital to our national security—Capitol T 2205:

Art Buchwald's reports from Paris established him with newspaper readers around the world as one of the funniest columnists in print.

Now working out of Washington D.C., the rotund observer of international events has been making some in-person appearances. Here is one at Georgetown University that cannot fail to have the listener in stitches almost from beginning to end. Subjects covered in Buchwald's highly original commonsense variety of inconoclasm include Hong Kong Suits, Lunching for Charity, LBJ's Humor, The Communist Threat, Barbie Dolls, the Peace Corps, and a man-to-man talk with his son about How to Separate the Friends From the Enemies.

ANCIENT GODS from early civilizations are included in the Mexican heritage shown in the color film "Mexico's California" to be shown and narrated Thursday at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall at College of Marin, Kentfield, by famed Walt Disney true life adventure photographer Laurel Reynolds.

THE LEADS in the Azarian Teen Club production of "Bye, Bye Beatles" that opened last night at St. Raphael's Auditorium in San Rafael are played by Paul Giampoli and Jan Jacobs. Additional performances are scheduled for Sunday at 7:30 p.m., and again on April 24, in the same auditorium.

THE BOOK PAGES

The International Repercussions Of TV—Past, Present, Future

By DON KEOWN

TELEVISION: A WORLD VIEW by Wilson P. Dizard, Syracuse University Press, 349 pages, $7.95.

ACT YOUR WAY TO SUCCESSFUL LIVING by Neil and Margaret Rau, Prentice-Hall, 150 pages, $4.95.

To many of us, television is simply the device that sits in our living room, pouring forth a diet of entertainment that is a bit bland, but easily available and economical.

Few of us ever think of its international implications.

Wilson P. Dizard, a U.S. Information Agency career officer, is one who has not only thought considerably about TV as a worldwide communications instrument, but who has also observed its operation and its effect in many lands. He has written a book based on those observations and upon other investigations.

"Television: A World View" takes the wide, comprehensive viewpoint. What has television accomplished in the past? What are its strengths and weaknesses right now? What does it seem likely to do in the future? And, most important, what should it do if it is to serve mankind best?

It is interesting to read of the roles of television under diverse conditions—in developed and undeveloped lands, in western and iron curtain countries, in socialistic or welfare states and staunchly capitalistic nations, in ultra-nationalistic, sometimes racist states and in democracies.

It becomes apparent that television has had an impact far beyond our living room, or our national boundaries. Those effects have been mixed, both good and bad. And if the good is to be brought to the forefront and predominate, a concentrated policy and program for greater development and better utilization of the medium is needed. Dizard has some specific proposals.

He writes adequately, if not with sparkling style.

The reader finishes his book with much greater awareness of the status of TV in other lands, and with an appreciation of the importance the medium will hold in the future. It can become an instrument of blatant nationalistic propaganda or strictly a source of hypnotic, spoonfed entertainment. Or it can become a powerful tool of education, a force for better world understanding and an implement of great spiritual and material benefits for all the nations and races.

Dizard makes clear that one of television's most valuable attributes is its ability to leap over barriers—both natural and manmade. What it carries with it when it makes these leaps can be vital to the world's future.

IS LIFE REALLY a play, the world a stage and all of us the players?

It's an interesting concept, and when you think about it, something of a cynical one.

And yet there is more than a grain of truth in it. How many times a day are you called upon to pretend a liking for a person you dislike, feign an enthusiasm for a program that seems absurd, indicate an interest in a project that bores you?

All this day-to-day insincerity poses some interesting ethical questions.

Unfortunately, "Act Your Way to Successful Living" by the Hollywood writing team of Neil and Margaret Rau does not delve into these ethical aspects. It accepts the conditions—the pretense and the wearing of the mask—and simply advises us to turn to the professionals for our best advice on acting.

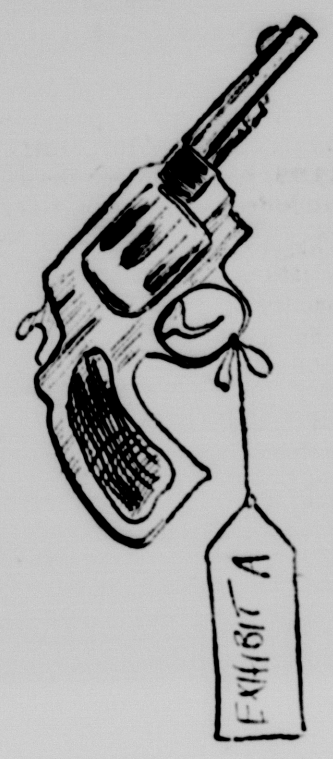
They then offer a series of exercises and devices (mostly mental) by which directors, coaches, actors and actresses attain the desired believability before the cameras and on stage.

Hollywood personalities, so often plagued with personal problems, would seem strange choices as guides to successful living. But actually, dustjacket and publicity releases notwithstanding, the behind-the-scenes experts predominate. And the stars who are included are generally those who have led more stable lives away from the limelight.

Their professional techniques, however, would generally seem to have only tenuous application to everyday living. And the book would appear to hold greater interest as a curiosity piece with its revelations of how creative theatrical people function than it would as self-help guidance.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE BARON AND THE CHINESE PUZZLE by Anthony Morton, Charles Scribner's Sons, 189 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.



Anthony Morton, of course, is just one of 13 pen names under which that unbelievably prolific British master of the crime novel, John Creasey, writes.

As Morton he is the creator of John Mannering, art and gem connoisseur and antique dealer who was once the notorious jewel thief The Baron.

This newest adventure takes Mannering from his London shop halfway around the world to Hong Kong where a scheduled exhibit of Oriental objets d'art threatens to precipitate an international crisis.

It is all expertly done with Creasey's usual smooth, professional competence—a lively plot, sharp characters and picturesque backgrounds.

Still, we think it should be said that the so-called police procedural story remains Creasey's forte. He is at his best turning out one of his George Gideon or Roger West classics. Outside that genre, he is just one of several very good practitioners.

Incidentally, the Mannering alias The Baron character is the inspiration for a British television series now being shown in this country.

Beebe's Last Was On The Rich

THE BIG SPENDERS by Lucius Beebe, Doubleday, 393 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Carleton Williams.

Frank Sinatra gave away, so the story goes, some $50,000 worth of gold cigaret lighters before he reached the age of 35. To me, whose questionable solvency is maintained only by penurious remuneration from newspaper and magazine publishers, such largesse entrenches Sinatra among the big spenders. To the late Lucius Beebe, on the other hand, Sinatra was beneath notice as a fast man with a dollar.

In this, his last work, Beebe is at his haughty, snobbish best. With delightful relish he recounts the open-handedness of those who, in his form sheet, were the front runners in the pack of big spenders. Among them:

Diamond Jim Brady, the legendary railroad equipment salesman who presented Lillian Russell with a diamond studded bicycle and who once gave a dinner party costing $105,000—of which $60,000 went for favors for the guests.

Henry Sell, official entertainer for the Hearst organization, who once imported an entire apple orchard from Vermont to decorate the Ritz ballroom.

James Gordon Benet, whose yacht upkeep ran to $150,000 a year and who kept on board a cow "against the unlikely contingency of its owner wanting a glass of milk."

Mrs. Potter Palmer who, when a social rival displayed her family gold table service for 50, asked, "And what do you do when you're having company in for dinner?"

"The Big Spenders" is must reading for us peasants who, in the vicarious Walter Mitty tradition, flip gold coins with "Bet-A-Million" Gates for upwards of $50,000 a toss. In his account of the lives of men "with bank accounts in eight figures to the left of the decimal," it is difficult not to agree with Beebe's credo that "a rich man is the noblest handiwork of God." It is also hard not to share his distress over the present, in which "it is difficult if not impossible to find a living man who has given a dinner party at which nude chorus girls leaped from the innards of a lamb potpie."

One can but hope that Beebe, wherever he may be, has found a standard of living that is truly ambrosial.

Our Reviewers Report

From Norway

THE WEREWOLF by Aksel Sandemose, University of Wisconsin Press, 374 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Aksel Sandemose, born a Dane in 1899, adopted Norway as his country at 30.

As a Norwegian writer, he published here translations of "A Fugitive Crosses His Tracks" and "Horns For Our Adornment" in the 1930s. "The Werewolf," which appeared in Norway in 1958, has since been published in several European countries and was chosen the best foreign novel in France in 1964.

Nordic works in English translation are a rarity. But this book should be much more than a curiosity to us. Although Sandemose modestly abjures the classification of novel for this book (and certainly it lacks much in traditional form and discipline), it speaks forcefully to the human condition.

His treatment of time is experimental. He uses a method which he describes as "archaeological" rather than the traditional chronological. Events are placed in historical context as they come up in a series of hardly perceptible flashbacks. The total effect is similar to the natural way the normal mind will wander when one is not straining to concentrate. The result is successfully comfortable.

The theme is presented in a highly symbolic form, and probably would be appreciated as such only by mature, serious students of literature.

Sandemose uses "The Werewolf" to symbolize "all the forces hostile to a full, free life - the thirst for power over others' lives, the lust to destroy what cannot be possessed or controlled."

The actual story centers around a woman and the two men who love her—her husband, a wealthy gentleman farmer, and an independent writer. The three have managed to live with understanding and respect for each other. However, the forces of conformity constantly work to erode the relationship. How they cope with these forces provides the plot.

Capsule Education

SHIPS by Edward V. Lewis, Robert O'Brien and editors of Life, Time Inc., 196 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Alan P. Cunningham.

This latest in the seemingly endless output of Time-Life books on special subjects reflects, as do the others, the boundless resources of talent available to the vast Luce organization.

As a result, it is well written, excitingly illustrated and seems to be a capsule education for anyone who has a love of the sea and its vessels.

The book avoids trying to be a history of men's achievements on the water; instead, the authors have limited themselves to tracing the evolution of ship design over the centuries, rounding the book out with essays on fundamentals of ship design, navigation and how ocean conditions are re-created using tiny ship models in tanks.

Each of eight chapters is supplemented by a color picture essay, self-contained but related to the chapter. One of the most fascinating places in the book is a two-page fold-out cross-section of the 2,044 passenger liner France. The function of nearly every square inch of this "floating city" is explained.

It must be greatly satisfying for those who head the Luce empire to decide one day they will publish a book on a given subject, then wait for the wheels to turn until a polished, readable book like this one appears.

The only danger, one suspects is that, like a Cecil B. DeMille extravaganza, such productions may at times tend to reflect the pre-conceptions of the publishers rather than being totally objective and scholarly works.

Nevertheless, this one seems like a worthy addition to the Time-Life collection. And, for a former landlubber with a lately acquired interest in the sea, it proved highly informative and interesting.

Wildest Novel

GASCOYNE by Stanley Crawford, G. P. Putnam's Sons, 254 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

In the wildest novel of this year, or any year for that matter, Crawford relates the adventures of an outlandish protagonist who should ring a bell with Californians.

The protagonist is Gascoyne, a wheeler-dealer of unlimited capacity, who lives in his car and operates by telephone while he breezes along the freeways.

Although the portrayal is widely exaggerated, it stems from kernels of truth about a society oriented toward cars, freeways, supermarkets, cheap housing tracts and warfare.

There are crazy, slapstick passages including a hectic police battle, an undercover sale of micro-mice and a man who has a tentacle.

The pace is break-neck and the humor fast and furious, but, when the laughs are over, there is the frightening thought that Gascoyne and his ilk are closer to reality than we'd like to admit.

A Growing Cult

PLAYER PIANO by Kurt Vonnegut Jr., Holt, Rinehart, Winston, 295 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

There have been underground murmurings in recent years about Kurt Vonnegut's satiric novels, published a decade or so ago. As his cult continues to increase, his works have been dusted off and re-issued.

It doesn't take one long to see why his admirers are so faithful. Vonnegut's comedies are delightful little exercises in cold blood. It is a bit frightening to note that some of his wildest prophesying, back in 1952, now seems inevitable and commonplace. We must remember that for a machine to pronounce the winner of an election before the people had finished voting was utter science fiction back in the distant fifties.

KURT VONNEGUT JR., author of "Player Piano," is riding the wave of an upsurge of interest in his satirical novels.

The "Player Piano" deals with the situation after the war when the machines were put in to replace bumbling humans. Only the engineers, the certified high IQ boys who run the machines which run society, have any real work to do. The great mass of phased-out workers are shunted into the Army or make-work WPA projects.

Of course everyone has an enormous television and cradle-to-grave security but even in the dullest sense they have lost the meaning of their existence. Over on the other side of the river where the elite engineer caste lives we find the organization man swollen to ludicrous heights and the Joneses more difficult to overtake than ever. . . .

So the scene is set, and this story of one engineer's revolt is often outrageously funny as it slices the fuzz from some of our dearly held concepts. Vonnegut wraps it all up neatly with a string at the end. High time he was brought back before the public eye!

Fiction Glimpsed

INVITATION TO LEARNING: ENGLISH AND AMERICAN NOVELS edited by George D. Crothers, Basic Books, 356 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Essentially another non-book, although impeccably literary, to pile on the American coffee table. Nevertheless, there are some engrossing passages in this series of transcribed round-table discussions of well known English and American novels.

These conversations were taken from the CBS radio program of the same name, broadcast 1950 to 1964 by a range of notables: Lionel Trilling, Clifton Fadiman, Mark Van Doren and a host of other authors, critics and scholars. The panel consisted of the moderator (in later years the editor of this book) and two guests.

Inevitably, in cold type much of the color and vivacity of the live broadcasts is lost, and depending on the perspicacity of the participants, the interchange is sometimes rather pallid. (If there were ever any heated feelings or personality clashes among the panelists, they have been washed out in print.)

However, the subject books are the masterpieces of the English language since the 17th century, and any discussion of them is bound to be interesting on some level. Often, the points offered here are very illuminating.

This is a book to be dipped into now and then and enjoyed for the stimulating glimpses of enduring fiction it frequently offers.

One Great Actress Tells The Story Of Another

THE MYSTIC IN THE THEATRE: ELEONORA DUSE by Eva LeGallienne, Farrar, Straus & Giroux Inc., 185 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Even young devotees of the theater know of Sarah Bernhardt — but few drama lovers under 50 remember the great Italian actress, Eleonora Duse (1858-1924).

Eva LaGallienne, herself a great actress, feels Duse not only rivaled Bernhardt, but surpassed her in the true art of acting — communication.

"Madame Sarah was a great technician, but one was always aware of her technique . . . With Duse . . . her art was simple, economical, stripped . . . yet she had a power that subdued an audience in a way which even Bernhardt's fireworks failed to do."

Regardless of your feelings on the theater, this book will fascinate you if you are intrigued by the art of communication.

You may want to take the evidence that is well presented by LeGallienne and weigh it to decide for yourself whether Duse was truly a mystic, or you may decide that that question is immaterial. At any rate, the mystical element adds much stimulating speculation to the book.

An open acquisitive mind and spirit were of the utmost importance to Duse. She was a voracious reader. She always found young people stimulating and they in turn were attracted by her truth and simplicity.

She, like many people who are strong enough to find their place in history, was controversial. The public reacted strongly to her. She had no "sex appeal" as we label it today. The New York World of March 1896 said, "Duse does not appeal to love of art or love of pretense or love of shallow emotions or love of dramatic effects. She appeals to human nature."

It's difficult to think of anyone now alive who could measure up to that description — perhaps that's why it's so exhilarating to read about Eleonora Duse.

Today's Bright Idea—

Cafe Doors Are Real Swingers

By JOE JONES

These cafe doors are the swingingest!

They have all kinds of uses and are particularly good for summer.

The illustration at top shows a use between living and dining rooms, where there was no door. This is good when the guests are in the living room and the table is being set for dinner, and if you don't want to clear the table afterward, they cover up for you.

They can be a great aid to air circulation within your home in the summer. Take off the full doors (those inside, of course) and replace them with cafe doors. For a normal doorway you will need only one cafe door.

Store your full doors in the basement or attic.

You'll find you still have privacy plus grand circulation on warm summer nights.

Available at your lumber dealer, they are mostly white pine, one and one-eighth inch thick. They come in eight sizes, ranging from 28 inches by 48 inches to 36 inches by 54 inches. Cost $8.50 to $10.50.

Paint them or finish them naturally. Dress them up with interesting hardware and you'll have a more open and much cooler home this summer.

Treat The Top

After cutting the top off a fence post to the level of the top rail or in a decorative pyramid point, be sure to saturate the exposed end grain of the wood with water repellent preservative.

THE CHARM of the traditional has been implanted upon this living room wall with architectural millwork in the form of stock pine moldings from a retail lumberyard. There are cove moldings at the ceiling, baseboard and base shoe at the floor, door casing to frame the book section. Fluted pillars can be approximated with half-rounds, and cabinet doors could be made from halves of raised panel doors.

The Traditional Beauty Of Fine Millwork Lends Charm To Home

Houses built in pre-World War II days are often one of the hottest sales items on the housing market.

Their attraction usually hinges on good location and spacious rooms. But, in addition, handsome architectural millwork draws the eye of many moderns who are weary of the unadorned cube offered by the contemporary ranch-style house.

Deeply sculptured cornice moldings, fluted columns, cabinetwork built with solid lumber doors and shelving, chair rails and corner guards—all have a timeless grace and elegance that is entirely appropriate to this generation's way of life.

OFTEN, HOWEVER, the purchase price of these fine older homes added to costs for needed rewiring, replumbing and general renovating puts them beyond the reach of the average family. When that's the case, the next best choice is to purchase a home meeting requirements for space and location, then to redo the interior with standard millwork items that will capture the mood and beauty of the traditional home.

Stock moldings are not costly, as a trip to a retail lumberyard will quickly prove. But to use them, a bit of imagination is required, for sometimes two or more items, with different patterns, must be combined to achieve a desired effect.

A traditional living room wall of bookcases and cabinets, for example, can be put together using a number of stock ponderosa pine moldings. First, shelving and cabinets are framed in, then a soffit is built from the unit's top to the ceiling to make shelving appear recessed. Next cove or cornice molding is added to the ceiling, perhaps combining two patterns to achieve extra detailing.

THE AREA AROUND the shelving can be framed with a door casing, which will work like a picture frame around the installation, and pieces of screen molding can be applied to the outer edge of shelves to add detail there.

If the shelving is to be built in sections separated by uprights, the verticals can take on the look of fluted columns with half-rounds applied to the face. Don't forget baseboard and base shoe at the floor line.

Handsome cabinet doors can be made by cutting a raised panel door into sections of the required size. Again, raised panel doors are stock items available at a building materials yard. Or equally handsome are cabinet doors built of tongue-and-groove panel boards.

Paint is the traditional finish for millwork in a Colonial-style home, but a clear finish or satin is also appropriate and may be more desirable. If paint is used, moderns may find it smart to add a clear finish coat of satin plastic varnish to protect the paint from chipping and from finger smudges.

Genuine Mahogany Isn't Dark Or Dull

Its Texture And Grain Show Up Best If Finished In Light Tone

There are many persons who think of mahogany as a dark and rather dull reddish wood.

It isn't. Genuine mahogany is fairly light in color — either a salmon pink or a creamy yellowish brown. But there are many shade differences, even from lumber cut from different trees of the same variety.

It was because of these differences in tone that old-time wood finishers used to stain mahogany a dark color, since it was much easier to obtain a consistency of shade with a dark rather than a light stain. In addition, furniture manufacturers using a substitute wood stained it the same way to make it resemble mahogany.

THIS PRACTICE went on for hundreds of years with only persons in the lumber or furniture business aware that most mahogany actually was a light wood, though with a tendency to become deeper over a long period of years.

Today, most mahogany furniture is given a light rather than a dark stain, in some cases being bleached to fit in with certain styles of furniture.

The beautiful texture and twisted grain of mahogany show up especially well when it is given a light stain or a natural finish. This not only gives it a rich mellow color, but enhances the play of light and shadow so characteristic of this wood.

WHETHER WOOD filler should be used on mahogany is mostly a matter of personal opinion. When a high gloss surface is desired, it usually is better to use a filler. For dull or flat finishes, the filler may be omitted. But this is not mandatory.

Some persons prefer the open-pored or "woody" effect of mahogany without filler and, while some furniture designers might shudder at using unfilled surfaces on certain types of furniture, there is no reason why personal taste should not be the deciding factor.

If You Need Quick Privacy, Here Are Trees That'll Do The Job

Garden privacy is not something most of us want to wait for.

Outdoor "walls" are almost as necessary as the ones indoors —especially here where we spend so much time on our patios, terraces and decks.

Naturally we can't expect miracles of any hedge material. No plant is going to spring to the sky overnight like Jack's beanstalk — or make a high, dense screen in a week. However, there are plants that, properly used, will do an effective screening job in a very short time.

WHERE A VERY tall screen is necessary to privacy and space is ample, the California Assn. of Nurserymen suggests that a row of appropriate trees often get the quickest results. Trees start out with an advantage over most shrubs as they are usually several feet tall when planted, and many of them quickly double and triple their height.

The White Alder, for instance is an exceptionally fast grower, and since it thrives in moist conditions, it is excellent for planting as a tall screen in or near lawns. From spring until fall, the leaves grow so densely on the branches that the view through an alder is almost impossible. During its leafless season, the bare branch pattern makes an attractive silhouette against a winter sky.

The European White Birch is another attractive, fast-growing tree for a quick screen. Delicate and graceful in quality, this slender, deciduous tree grows quickly to 30 or 40 feet. Set out in rows—or better still, in staggered double rows—it makes a beautiful "hedge." Or, if you have only one spot that's open to public view, three of them planted in a naturalistic clump will give you the privacy you need. Birch trees need plenty of moisture and some shade.

LIQUIDAMBERS, on the other hand, can take it hot and dry. With their soft green summer leaves and glorious fall coloring, these easily grown trees form a handsome, tall, slender screen in a hurry. Planted a few feet apart, five or six of them will interlace their branches to cut off any undesired view or give privacy to a garden. The liquidamber is hardy in any California climate and will even withstand salt air.

Where a medium-sized screen is desired, you may want to choose one of the evergreen cherries for their easy maintenance and glossy good-looks. Don't be afraid to give them ordinary garden conditions. They have been cultivated in our gardens for so long that they are quite comfortable with the same soil and water you give other nursery plants.

Either the Hollyleaf Cherry or the Catalina Cherry, both natives, will start off slowly, the first year, then grow rapidly to 10 to 15 feet. Both may be held to an eight-foot screen three-feet wide.

The Hollyleaf Cherry forms a rather casual screen, with a crisp, curly overall texture. The Catalina Cherry has smooth, glossy leaves that give a more formal appearance. Neither needs any special care or soil, although they should have sun, good drainage and attention to summer watering until established.

IF YOUR GARDEN space is limited, you may find that the slender, tall-growing pittosporums are a good choice. Taller varieties can be held to three or four feet in width with very little pruning, while they grow naturally to 12 feet or more. You will find pittosporum varieties at your nursery with yellow-green, gray-green, or light green leaves. There is a variegated pittosporum variety that is extremely useful where you want a low hedge no taller than five feet. Its gray-green leaves, outlined in white, stand out beautifully, and since it is shade tolerant, it can be used to brighten dark spots in the garden.

A beautiful newcomer to the hedge and screening class is a handsome Carolina Cherry called "Bright 'n Tight." True to its name, this richly emerald evergreen forms a glossy, compact, tightly branched screen. Since it isn't demanding of soil or culture, it's proving a popular choice in California gardens.

Oleanders, pyracanthas, English Laurels, privets and Meyer Lemons are other handsome shrubs to consider for hedges and screening. Your nurseryman will recommend the proper distances for planting. The important thing is to choose your screening material now. The sooner it's planted, the sooner you can enjoy full benefit of the privacy it can give.

THE WHITE BIRCH is one of your best bets for an effective screen when you need privacy in a hurry.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ This is one of the best months for putting in a new lawn or re-seeding an established one. Your nurseryman will be glad to advise you about yours, help you choose the right seed and provide you with the equipment to do an efficient job.

✔ If you've been passing up azaleas because you can't give them shade, ask your nurseryman about the Sun Azaleas, or Southern Indicas, that actually prefer a good amount of sun.

✔ Lily of the Nile (agapanthus) can be planted now. Give it sun. It likes loamy soil, but will grow in heavy soils under poor conditions and still produce its free-blooming clusters of blue or white flowers. If you want a small form of this showy summer bulb, ask for the variety "Peter Pan." Clusters of deep blue flowers only eight inches to 10 inches high. Terrific in rock gardens or borders.

✔ Don't depend on April showers to do your watering for you. Instead, pay close attention to deep, regular watering as temperatures increase. Plants need constant moisture to support soft, young growth.

✔ For sunny color come summer, plant asters, zinnias, cosmos, petunias, ageratum, and salvia now.

Don't Be Impatient After You Plant

Most seeds do not come up overnight, although a few, like beans seem to. The seeds of most annual flowers take between a week and three weeks to germinate, so don't be in a rush to replant a row.

The precise length of time it takes seeds to sprout depends on many conditions such as air, temperature of the soil and moisture in the soil. All of these must be just right.

For Summer Color, Rely On Petunias

There isn't an easier way to add zest to the summer landscape than by planting masses of those perky, free-blooming annuals, petunias.

A splash of cherry-and-white ones in a large planter . . . drifting ribbons of pink ones bordering the lawn . . . or an artful massing of white ones to starch up your flower beds. Use your imagination.

Pick your colors and forms from the dozens of top-notch varieties available in flats at the nursery. Flats hold five to six dozen small, sturdy plants that have been grown from seed. You can buy a whole flat, a half of one, a dozen or a half dozen plants at a time—whatever you need for any particular area.

PETUNIA PLANTS will mound up and spread quickly, so plan on planting them about 10 inches apart in the ground. If you are planting in containers, they should be set more closely together, so buy enough to set them four inches apart.

There are too many excellent petunia varieties to list them all here; but some that you look for at your nursery now are: Appleblossom (salmon-pink and vigorous, a 1965 All America Flower Selection); Strawberry Tart (rose and white double—exquisite in containers); Cherry Tart (like Strawberry Tart, but with luscious cherry-and-white flowers); Sunburst (a new lemon-yellow single); Comanche (the reddest dwarf petunia—fine for edgings and containers), and Coral Satin (a mounding coral-rose beauty).

Other names to look for include White Cascade, Red Satin, White Magic, Blue Lustre, Maytime and Calypso. Some of these petunias are ruffled and frilled, others are single. When you visit your nursery you'll see their pictures on the flats of healthy plants.

PETUNIAS ARE easy to grow from small seedlings and have a reputation for blooming in spite of the most casual care. However, if you want to get the most from their free-flowering beauty, give them the soil, exposure and attention they deserve.

Choose a sunny spot, well drained, and dig their beds to a depth of at least a foot. Incorporate generous amounts of organic material such as peat moss, ground bark or well-aged manure, and you'll make it much easier for their roots to develop quickly and vigorously. Organic matter in the soil also helps to retain moisture, and cuts down your watering job.

MANY GARDENERS prefer to plant their annuals in clumps of three, as this causes less disturbance to the roots and plants keep right on growing as they did in the flat, giving a faster show. Tamp down soil firmly and water thoroughly after planting.

As soon as your petunias start into new growth, start giving them regular, light feedings with a balanced fertilizer.

MODERN VARIETIES of the petunia are vigorous, free-blooming and can be counted on wherever you want showy masses of summer color. Here white petunias make a snowy circle at the base of a striking evergreen patio tree. The tree is a Texas privet, especially grown and trained to this compact, full-headed form. California's Own Primrose Loves A Casual Climate

If you think of the primrose only as a shy, little English plant, you're missing something.

You're missing California's own brilliant, exciting primrose — the Pacific strain Polyanthus primrose. Developed in California especially for our gardens, this flower is winning friends and influencing gardeners all up and down the state.

It finds its best conditions in our cool, coastal sections — the same conditions you would give to azaleas, ferns and camellias.

WHETHER YOU grow primroses by the hundreds in big, luxurious splashes of color, or take advantage of their woodland charm in simple rock garden or container planting, you'll find they quickly become a favorite spring plant. Velvet red, deep rose, pink, yellow, white, lavender, sky blue and deep blue are some of the clear, rich colors you'll find in these tidy, perfect plants.

The up-facing flower clusters rise on short, sturdy stems from attractive rosettes of crisp, rich green leaves, making them equally beautiful alone or in a mass. They make a beautiful carpet under spring-flowering trees. They're exciting when massed in front of azaleas in bloom. Or used to edge a bed of tulips or daffodils.

According to the California Assn. of Nurserymen, primroses make excellent pot plants and long-lasting cut flowers. The blooms—especially the gold and yellow ones—have a fragrance that's described as "ambrosial."

BY NATURE, primroses are woodland plants that usually grow in the shade of deciduous trees. So keep this in mind when you select their spot in the garden. The warmer the climate, the more shade primroses need.

When planting, incorporate plenty of organic matter, such as peat moss, into the soil. This will give them the proper "woodland type" growing medium, help retain moisture, and improve drainage. Primroses should have constant moisture, but do not like soggy conditions. Feed with a complete organic fertilizer after the plants are established.

The time to buy and plant primroses is right now. Nurseries have the largest selection at this time, and you can choose the exact colors you want and enjoy their sparkling blooms until summer.

Primroses will persist as a perennial for several years. They may be divided every other year after bloom is finished.

Party Potters

Having a party in your garden soon? If so, you might want to take a tip imported from Britain. The English use clay potted flowering and foliage plants sunk in the ground to "flesh out" gardens for special events.

THE WEEKEND SHOWS

The Story Of How Man Grew Wings

The story of man's conquest of the air, beginning with films of the Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk in their pioneer flight of 63 years ago, will be unfolded in "The Epic of Time," a "March of Time," special to be broadcast at 6:30 p.m. today on Channel 4.

Other shows of special interest this weekend:

SATURDAY: Dr. James Turpin, a dynamic young doctor who founded Project Concern which operates a hospital 180 miles northeast of Saigon, Viet Nam, will be the special guest on "Doctors News Conference" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

A study of the impact of films on world opinion will be conducted tonight by host Eric Goldman at 8 p.m. on Channel 9 on "The Open Mind."

Broadening their puppet repertoire for New York artistic circles to include the Bay Area audience, the Standwell family and their friends return to KQED, Channel 9, on "Sunday Showcase: The Standwells at Home" at 9 p.m.

Anne Baxter and Paul Richards are special guest stars in a play about a Union Army veteran left mute by the horrors of battle on "The Loner" at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Tony Martin and Cyd Charisse play hosts to Vikki Carr, Norm Crosby, Rowan and Martin, Cesar Romero and others on "The Hollywood Palace" at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

Spanish film stars Carmen Sevilla and Jose Guardiola join American actor Richard Kiley in "A Spanish Affair" on "Saturday Night at the Movies" at 9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

SUNDAY: The second day of the University of California Medical Center symposium on teen-age marriage and divorce will be presented from 9:15 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Channel 9.

The Metropolitan Opera was born in October, 1883, and her 83 year of life have been glorified by the voices of Melba, Caruso, Galli-Curci, Chaliapin, and other great operatic virtuosos. The Met's biography is told by Rudolf Bing, Richard Tucker and Anthony Bliss with rare pictures and great recordings from the past on "Sunday Showcase: The Metropolitan Opera" at 8 p.m. on Channel 9.

"NBC White Paper: Countdown to Zero" is a full-hour special on the growing crisis of the threatened spread of nuclear weapons. President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and Deputy Prime Minister Abba Eban of Israel, and the defense heads of West Germany, Great Britain, France and the U.S. will offer their views on nuclear weapons at 6:30 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, United States representative to the United Nations, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" at 1 p.m. on Channel 3 and 2 p.m. on Channel 4.

Sen. Vance Hartke, who in January led a group of 15 senators in writing to President Lyndon B. Johnson to protest the resumption of bombing in North Viet Nam, will be interviewed on "Face the Nation" at 9:30 a.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Sen. John Stennis, chairman of the Senate Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee, will be interviewed on the readiness of U.S. armed forces in Viet Nam, on "Issues and Answers" at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

E. Power Biggs, one of the world's foremost organists, makes his television debut in "The Glory of God," a musical broadcast to be presented on 'Lamp Unto My Feet" at 8 a.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Lola Albright and John Ireland guest-star with Chuck Connors on "Branded" at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Gia Scala appears as a Russian scientist who is exploring the damage to an underwater sea lab when their diving bell is swallowed by a whale on "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea" at 7 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

The five Academy Award nominees for the Best Actress of the Year will be shown on "The Ed Sullivan Show" in addition to guests Jimmy Durante, Petula Clark, the Animals, Franco Corelli and Myron Cohen at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Sal Mineo stars in "Comanche," a two-part action drama about an Indian youth's love for a wild stallion on "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

The last round of the $100,000 Tournament of Champions which will pit the winners of every major golf tourney during the past year will be covered at 1 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

The fifth game in the semi-final series of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs between the Chicago Black Hawks and the Detroit Red Wings will be presented at 2:30 p.m. on Channel 4. National Basketball Assn. playoff competition between the Boston Celtics and the Los Angeles Lakers or St. Louis Hawks will be seen at 11 a.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

John Wayne, Stewart Granger, Ernie Kovacs, Fabian and French actress Capucine star in the brawling, lusty "North to Alaska" on "The Sunday Night Movie" at 9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.
